Scotlani

No. 65,664

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 21 1996

SOUTHGATE PAYS THE PENALTY

Terry Venables Exclusive PAGE 40

THE

ROBSON'S CHOICE BARCELONA SEEKS A QUICK RETURN ON A £13m INVESTMENT PAGE 13

RACHEL A woman's right to inherit

TIMES

a time traveller PAGE 14

Tories reward party 'spin doctors'

Peerage for man behind demon poster

By JILL SHERMAN, CHIEF POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT

MAURICE SAATCHI, the advertising guru behind the controversial "demon" poster of Tony Blair, becomes one of 14 new life peers to be announced today. The honour is a reward for over 17 years service to the Conservative

Mr Saatchi, 50, who has been pivotal in four successive Tory general election victories, is joined by Peter Gummer, the chairman of Shandwick plc., and chairman designate of the Royal Opera House, who has also been a key public relations adviser to the Tories for several years.

John Taylor, the Tory candidate who became involved in a damaging race row at the last general election, is also among the six Tory "working peers" announced by Downing Street today. Mr Taylor, a barrister, becomes the Tories' first peer of Afro-Caribbean descent. He lost the Cheltenham seat, which had been held by the Tories for more than 20 years, to the Liberal Demosplit over whether to back him. Since then it had been widely assumed that he would be unable to win another Tory

Yesterday Mr Taylor said: "I know it's a cliché, but this is something which has made my dreams come true. This is the rainbow after the rain. This has more than made up

Last night, Labour seized on the awards to the top Tory "spin doctors", claiming that the peerage system had sunk to new depths. "No coronets

Saatchi: pivotal in four Tory election victories and ermine will cover up Maurice Saatchi and Peter Gummer's role in dragging British politics lower than the gutter," said Frank Dobson. the Shadow Environment Secretary. "When they're deciding which title to take, one of them will be 'Lord of the Lies'." Mr Saatchi and Mr Gummer, with Sir Tim Bell, a longstanding adviser to Lady Thatcher and John Major, change tack in the campaign against Labour at a meeting with Cabinet ministers last

The triumvirate, who have been dubbed Faith, Hope and Charity by officials at Conservative Central Office, devised the controversial "New Labour, New Danger" campaign, focusing on Tony Blair, the Labour leader. This culminated in the poster portraying Mr Blair with evil red eyes, which provoked a storm of protest. It was denounced by some Tory MPs and is now being investigated by the Advertising Standards Authority.

Even the actor whose eyes were used in the poster has denied that he knew the purpose of the advertisement. le says he will back Mr Blair in the election.

The 14 awards yesterday include six Tory life peers, six Labour peers and two Liberal Democrats. Mr Major has responsibility for deciding how many working peers to appoint overall and how many for each party, but the two leaders of the main opposition parties were invited to submit their own lists.

Labour peerages have been awarded to Sir Richard Rogers, the award-winning architect whose work includes the Pompidou Centre in Paris and the Lloyd's building in the City.

Mr Blair has rewarded innovators and high flyers the traditional rather than the traditional patronage given to trade unionists or former MPs.

Swraj Paul, the Indian-born chairman of the Caparo Group, the largest familyowned company in Britain. Dr Paul made headlines for donating El million to London Zoo to build the Ambika Paul Children's Zoo in memory of this daughter, who died of Leukaemia.

Elizabeth Symonds, who announced her resignation as the general secretary of the top civil servants' union on the eve of being awarded a life peerage, is now tipped for a Continued on page 2. col 7

Rare glimpse of Victoria's tomb

BANK holiday sightseers with a taste for the sepulchral will have an opportunity this weekend to see inside the grandest of all English royal tombs, which The Times was granted rare permission to photograph yesterday.

Queen Victoria had always wanted a mausoleum for herself and her beloved Prince Albert, having seen those of her continental relatives. Within days of Albert's death in December 1861 she had found the ideal site, a sequestered corner of the gardens of Frogmore House in Windsor Home Park, which was completed in 1868.

Traditionally, the mausoleum has been open for one day each year on the that the public should have wider access to the entire royal collection, many more people will have a chance to see the overpowering grandeur in which her great-great grandmother lies.

Victoria summoned the architects who had created a mausoleum for her uncle Leopoid of Saxe-Coburg. They produced a cruciform in the style of a 13th century Italian church, and on the Queen's orders filled the interior with decoration and sculpture in the style of Raphael, regarded by Prince Albert as the greatest painter who ever lived.

On a massive granite sarcophagus, the recumbent marble effigies of this deeply devoted couple lie side by side, Victoria

Wednesday nearest Victoria's birthday, looking far more youthful than her 82 but the bump in the shroud concealing the queen's feet gives away the fact that she was barely five feet tail.

Above the main tomb, the central dome

rises 70 feet and just behind the mausoleum is a private royal burial ground from which visitors are discouraged. The infinitely simpler tombs of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor are not the ones they

Royal Mausoleum, Frogmore House (on B3021 between Old Windsor and Datchet). Open Sat, Sun, Mon, this weekend only, 11-4. Adults £4.50 and concessions.

Leading article, page 15 and he was released.

DNA tests clear boys in case of murdered schoolgirl

FROM BEN MACINTYRE IN PARIS

DNA tests have ruled out five British boys in the continuing investigation into the rape and murder of schoolgirl Caroline Dickinson. French police said yesterday. On Monday the boys, who are aged between 12 and 17 and were on the school trip to France with the murdered girl, gave blood and saliva samples to French detectives in Launceston, Cornwall, with their parents' permission. Mrs Katherine Parnall, the solicitor representing the five boys, said: "If the boys were ever suspects then the scientific evidence now confirms their innocence and eliminates

After the test were taken they were immediately flown to a laboratory in France to be matched with samples taken from the body of the the 13year-old, who was raped and suffocated last month in a Brittany youth hostel while her room-mates slept just a few feet away.

Mrs Parnall said: This has been a traumatic time for these young people and we hope any interest in their activities will now cease.

"No one wants to detract from the suffering of the victim's family and we all hope the perpetrator of this hended as soon as possible. I have spoken to the parents today and one cannot stress too highly how traumatic it has been for these boys."

Caroline's body was found on July 18 in the hostel at Pleine-Fougeres near St Malo. Two days later French police arrested Patrice Padé, a 39year-old homeless man, who was charged with the crimes after allegedly confessing. On August 6, French investigators admitted that DNA tests showed M Padé was innocent

Pakistan fans invade Lord's

Supporters of Pakistan invaded the pitch at Lord's during the under-15 cricket match aginst India yesterday.

At least two people were hurt in the disturbance, during which stumps were uprooted and cans thrown and which was quelled by police. India beat Pakistan by four

Minister pledges to clear the air

Britain's air will be fit to breathe by 2005, according to John Gummer, the Environment Secretary, who unveils Europe's first national air quality strategy today.

Targets have been set to reduce eight hazardous pollutants produced by cars and lorries but also by industry and agriculture... ... Page 4

The Times on the Internet http://www.the-times.co.uk

Lebed accuses rivals of forging Yeltsin orders

FROM RICHARD BEESTON IN MOSCOW

plunged into chaos last night. after General Aleksandr Lebed, the country's security chief, charged Kremlin hardliners with forging President Yeltsin's signature on a decree ordering the recapture of Grozny. In an astonishing declaration, the tough former paratrooper, who also serves as the remlin's troubleshooter on Chechenia, in effect ques-tioned whether the ailing Russian leader is still running the country.

The order, divulged on Sunday, is that Grozny be returned to government control. as before the rebel offensive on August 6. It was interpreted by military commanders in Chechenia as approval for an all-out military offensive starting tomorrow to retake the

By Dalya Alberge

ARTS CORRESPONDENT

THE actors performing in tonight's inaugural production at the reconstructed Globe Theatre have been coached in the art of "projecting" their voices, and even shouting, to make themselves heard. For the reconstructed Elizabethan theatre - with its open roof - is directly under the flight path

Even Shakespeare's fertile imagi-

for Heathrow.

RUSSIA'S leadership was capital. That would almost certainly cost thousands of civilian lives and destroy General Lebed's ceasefire, peace initiative and credibility. "The contents of the documents give solid grounds to doubt that the President of Russia took a direct part in finalising the text of the order, said a statement by General Lebed's Security Council, It added that the order was full of contradictions and was not signed by the Russian leader. Instead it used a "facsimile" of his signature.

General Lebed's accusation took on added meaning after a flurry of reports suggesting that Mr Yeltsin had suffered a relapse of his heart condition and that he may be considering surgery. The Kremlin. attempting to dampen specu-

pneumatic drills, car horns and police sirens. Not that Shakespeare's east had it all their own way: loth century audiences were notorious for talking.

drinking and even throwing fruit at performers they disapproved of.

Yesterday, Mark Rylance, the actor and artistic-director, was himself struggling to project his voice as he introduced his cast to the world's press. Straining to be heard, he was shouting rather than throwing his lation, announced that President Yeltsin had taken a twoday trip to the Valdai, the lake district 200 miles north of Moscow. However, they only succeeded in adding to the confusion as local officials denied knowledge of the visit. At stake are the lives of up to 200,000 civilians trapped in Grozny, They have been given until tomorrow to flee or risk a repeat of the 1995 Russian sault on the capital which left 30.000 dead.

General Konstantin Pulikovsky, acting commander of Russian forces in Chechenia, warned inhabitants that they faced an artillery, rocket and air barrage unless they evacuated the city. "Grozny will without fail be cleared of rebel fighters," he said.

Thousands flee, page 9

Decibel problem for actors at the new Globe

Couples may soon 'I do it' at a B&Q

By ROBIN YOUNG

ACCORDING to the jingle, "You can do it if you B&Q it. Now, if Britain's largest DIY retailer gets its way, that will extend to marriage. B&Q has applied for its new 5,500sq.ft superstore in Cambridge to be registered as a venue for civil marriages.

Emma Carrigan, the store manager, said: "It is being done very tastefully. We are the first of B&Q's 280 stores to apply to offer weddings."

An upstairs office has been decorated to a design by Kelly Odell, the store's in-house designer, and staff are waiting to hear if the licence is granted before adding the finishing touches, including voile and co-ordinated curtains to diffuse the light and create a voice, Gone were all traces of any

But he later dismissed suggestions that the cast were having problems with the acousties. "It's demanding rather than difficult," he insisted. "If I say a line such as, 'I love you', I have to make a choice and play it boldly and

A spokesman said that vacuum cleaners and other machinery, which were blamed for yesterday's noise pollution, will be switched off long

RADA-trained "act-or's voice".

romantic atmosphere. One member of the staff is already considering being married in Weddings at B&Q would cost more than those at the Shire Hall in Cambridge. Adrian Wright, the Superintendent Registrar, said yesterday that the national charge at register offices was £46.50. Weddings not performed in the register office in Cambridge and the register office in Cambridge and the register office in Cambridge and the register of the regi bridgeshire would be charged at £121.50 on weekdays and more at weekends. "B&Q's is a nice little room capable of holding about 20 people, including ourselves," he added, "and the staff are trying to create a really friend-

before the curtain rises for previews of

The Two Gentlemen of Verona. The

although the theatre's official gala

The original Globe Theatre in London was built in 1598, and burnt down in 1613. An army of sprinklers is in position to ensure that history does opening is 10 months away.

Picture, page 22

opening night of one of the Bard's

lesser-known plays is on Saturday,

After years of working hard for your money Abbey National's Retirement Savings Bond can make your money work hard for you offering a guaranteed interest rate of 7.25% gross p.a. throughout the 5 year term. You can also choose to receive your interest monthly or annually whichever suits your needs.

so don't delay. Call us free for further information on 0800 100 801 quoting reference A411B, or call into your nearest branch.

But, this is a limited offer

THE RESIDENCE OF THE PARTY OF T

TV & RADIO42, 43 WEATHER 22 CROSSWORDS......22, 44

LETTERS 15, 27 OBITUARIES17 JOHN GRIGG16 ARTS33-35 CHESS & BRIDGE...... 38 COURT & SOCIAL.....16

clearly."

SPORT37-42, 44 STYLE12 MEDIA20, 21

not repeat itself.

Opening times Monday to Friday 9.00am to 5.00pm or Saturday 9.00am to 1.00pm. For your security and to assist us in improving our service to you we may record or monitor all calls to Abbey National Direct. This offer may be withdrawn at any time. To be eligible all calls to Abbey National Direct. This offer may be withdrawn at any time. To be eligible to open the Bond your must be at least 60 years old. Minimum investment £2,500. Maximum investment £75,000, No additional deposits will be accepted after the Bond is opened. No withdrawals or closure may be made from the Bond before 1,9.97. The Bond will mature on 1.9.2001. You may be able to register with us to receive interest gross; otherwise it will be paid not of income tax at the prescribed rate. See leaflet for full conditions. Abbey National and the Unabrella Couple symbol are trademarks of Abbey National pla. Abbey House, Baker Street, London NW1 6XL, United Kingdom. Black barrister rejected in Cheltenham is elevated to Lords with Tory women's rights campaigners

This is the rainbow after the rain, says Tory in race row

By James Landale, political reporter

JOHN TAYLOR, whose at-Conservative MP Afro-Caribbean descent sparked an ugly race dispute within his local party in Cheltenham, said yesterday that his elevation to the Lords was "the rainbow after the rain".

The barrister and broadcaster said: "This has made up for 1992. I know it's a cliché, but this is something which has made my dreams come

"There is a lot of goodwill. I feel very encouraged and quite taken by all this. It will be a great challenge."

His father, a professional cricketer who played for Warwickshire in the 1950s, had always told him that his ultimate ambition should be to play at Lord's, he said, "Well, I am going there, but not to play

Mr Taylor, 42, from Birmingham, has remained an active member of the Conservative Party since the last election, but he has not applied to become a candidate again. The Cheltenham seat had been Tory-held for 20 years. Although he won more than 28,000 votes, the Liberal Democrats won with a slim majority of 1,668. Local Tories were deeply split over whether Mr Taylor was the right candidate for them and the constituency. He and his family endured the cartoons were spread around Cheltenham, Mr Taylor said at the time that he felt like Daniel in the lion's den.

Since the deleat, Mr Taylor said that he and his wife. Kathie, had received 20,000 letters encouraging them to ignore what happened. He has pursued a career as a writer and broadcaster and is currently presenting a consumer affairs programme, The Street, on BBC2. They have two children. Laura, aged eight, and Alexandra, who is one.

Mr Taylor said he would be an active working peer, paying particular attention to his chief interests of legal affairs and broadcasting issues. He has not yet talked to the Lords authorities about what name he might take, but he doubted that he would become Lord Taylor of Cheltenham.

Although he will be the only peer of Afro-Caribbean descent, there are several of Indian origin, such as the Labour economist Lord Desai and the Tory peer Lady Flather. Lord Pitt of Hampstead, born in the West Indies, was the last Afro-Caribbean peer. He died in 1994.

Senior Labour sources said Mr Taylor's elevation was official recognition that the only way a black person could represent the Tory party in Parliament was to be imposed on the House of Lords. "Conservative associations have shown themselves incapable candidate as an MP," one source said. Conservative officials rejected the claim and pointed out that the party had an Asian MP, Niranjan Deva, representing Brentford and Isleworth. Nine other candidates from ethnic minorities were standing at the next general

Another new recruit peer to the Tory benches in the Lords is Sir lan MacLaurin, chairman of Tesco, who is credited with turning the company into Britain's most profitable supermarket chain. This year the company overtook its greatest rival Sainsbury's to become Britain's leading food retailer, with pre-tax profits of En81 million.

Sir Ian, 59, joined Tesco as a management trainee in 1959. and swiftly moved up the ranks. He was appointed chairman in 1985 and knighted in 1989.

Yesterday he said he was very proud to receive the barony: "It is a great honour. I am looking forward to the work enormously as I have an enormous affinity with the Conservative Party.'

Two female grandees of the Tory party's voluntary wing. both of whom are ardent campaigners for more women become baronesses. Dame Joyce Anelay, 49, is vice-chairman of the Conservative Party National Union. She has spent much of her life working for the party and was consultant in social security until recently chairman of the law is also a magistrate and a former secondary school history teacher and leading figure in the Citizens Advice Bureaux. Dame Hazel Byford, 55, is president of the National Union of Conservative and Unionist Associations. The daughter of the former Tory MP, Sir Cyril of her life involved with the party. She was chairman of the National Committee of Conservative Women from 1990-93. She has been a member of Leicestershire Women's

John Taylor yesterday: he is unlikely to include Cheltenham as part of his title

Conservative Women's National Committee, playing a key role in trying to promote women in the party.

Saatchi takes a rollercoaster ride to the top

By ARTHUR LEATHLEY, POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT

MAURICE SAATCHI'S elevation to the Lords marks the latest upturn in a rollercoaster career considered remarkable even in the unpredictable world of advertising, coming just as he is being vilified for backing the Tories "devil eyes" attack on Tony Blair.

Mr Saatchi's prominent role with his brother Charles in running the last four general election advertising campaigns for the Conservatives has brought him closer to John Major than he ever was to Baroness Thatcher. Together with fellow advertising doyens Peter Gummer and Sir Tim Bell, he devised the "New Labour, New Danger campaign that party strategists hope will help demolish Labour's chances of victory.

Although the party has remained loyal to him and his agency - most notably after he and his brother left the Saatchi & Saatchi agency they founded - he has had mixed success. Best remembered in political circles for devising the Labour isn't working advertisement that helped Mrs Thatcher win power in 1979, Mr Saaichi's stock plummeted when his campaign for the 1992 general election was criticised as lacklustre.

However, Mr Major and Brian Mawhinney, the party chairman, were adamant that, despite the criticism and the acrimonious break-up of the old Saatchi empire, the brothers should be retained. The new firm of M&C Saatchi was soon awarded the contract for the next general election.

Maurice Saatchi became relatively reclusive when his company had to be saved from collapse at the start of the 90s after over-ambitious pansion. However, he regained the aggression that led to Saatchi & Saatchi becoming one of the world's greatest agencies, fighting a bitter feud before leaving last year.

Almost always dressed in black and white, the 50-yearold shuns the fast-talking style of advertising colleagues and is credited with a keen business eye and endless charm.

WPC after S help b

trial ...

Briton heid

Cr.

A Ma rem_{ing}.

Swedish

allegedi. ...

ing a horrow

Significant

David T.

lace trial to a one of seven on Saturda gration b. Trollhou

Trollhaman T

Herridasher

and anilia

charged burn

poince vaid

sand that the local sed making the

against the new years

goods brought

anni e

It seems only natural that Maurice Saatchi should be joined on the red benches of the Lords by Mr Gummer, chairman of Shandwick, and a close friend with whom he is working closely on the current Tory campaign. Mr Gummer, younger brother of John Gummer, the Environment Secretary, set up Shandwick in 1974 and built it into one of the largest public relations firms in the world. Shandwick's profits peak in the mid-1980s was followed by a rocky early 1990s, from which it has since

Next month he succeeds Sir Angus Stirling as chairman of the Royal Opera House, an appointment not without controversy. He chaired the Arts Council's National Lottery advisory panel when it gave E78.5 million towards the redevelopment of the Royal Opera single body. He has always been a strong supporter of opera and has stressed that the £200 million redevelopment should enable greater

Blair seeks to beef up prospective ministry

By JUL SHERMAN AND JAMES LANDALE

ELIZABETH SYMONS, general secretary of the senior civil servants' trade union and one of six Labour life peers to be announced today, is widely tipped to be a frontbencher in a Labour Government.

Ms Symons, 45, who is to resign as leader of the Association of First Division Civil Servants, was the first woman to be elected head of a Whitehall union seven years ago. Labour sources also emphasise Ms Symons's direct experience of government. A Cambridge graduate, she joined the Civil Service after doing research. She is a friend of Tony Blair.

She could well be joined on Labour's front bench by David Currie.

Professor of Economics at the London Business School, who only recently resigned from the team of economists advising Kenneth Clarke. Professor Currie, who becomes a life peer today, has been informally advising Mr Blair on the economy and could play a significant part in a future Labour Treasury team.

Other Labour life peers include Dr Swraj Paul, the Indian-born chairman of the Caparo Group, the largest family-run business in the country. The Caparo Group has made substantial donations to the Labour Party but has also in the past contributed to Tory funds.

Dr Paul, 65, has a personal fortune of about £85 million, putting him among Britain's 100 richest people. Labour sources said that Mr Paul had a "huge talent" which had been illustrated by his ability to transform the iron and steel industry in Britain.

Meta Ramsay, the former diplomat and foreign affairs adviser to the late John Smith, becomes a life peer. Once tipped as a possible intelligence chief, Miss Ramsay, 60, is currently an honorary visiting research fellow in peace studies at Bradford University. She sits on the executive committee of the Labour Finance and Industry Group and is a member of the Labour Movement for Europe. Larry Whitty, general secretary of the Labour Party under Neil Kinnock and Mr Smith, also becomes a peer. Credited with masterminding a radical overhaul of the party machine and its finances, Mr Whitty, 53, was moved to the post of Labour's European co-ordinator after Mr Blair became party leader in 1994. The award-winning architect Sir Richard Rogers, whose work includes the Pompidou centre in Paris, the Lloyd's building, and Channel 4's new headquarters, also joins Labour's ranks in the Lords.

John Alderdice, leader of Northern Ireland's cross-community Alliance Party, was nominated for a life peer age by Paddy Ashdown. He will speak as Alliance Party leader on Northern Ireland issues, and take the Liberal Democrat whip on wider matters; he will not join Mr Ashdown's party. Dr Alderdice's elevation marks the pivotal role he has played in the search for peace, although his party has been squeezed between the Unionist and nationalist blocs at general elections.

Peerage for Saatchi

Continued from page 1 front-bench appointment in a

Labour government. David Currie, Professor of Economics at the London Business School, and one of the former "wise men" advising Kenneth Clarke, the Chancellor, on economic strategy, also becomes a Baron. He is being tipped as a member of a Blairled Labour government.

The Prime Minister can top up the working peers list at any time during the year. following deaths or retirements, but the honours announcement caught some people by surprise. Some Tory MPs were amazed that Mr Major had decided to go ahead with the list during the summer recess and while the controversy raged over Mr Saatchi's poster. Although the decision would have been taken several weeks ago, the announcement will be seen as Mr Major's endorsement of the poster. There was also speculation over whether Mr Saatchi would play an active role in the Lords.

Mr Saatchi, who is on holiday, issued a statement insisting that he would not renege on his new duties, although he is not expected to cut down on his advertising business."I am profoundly honoured and will work diligently for the government cause in the House of Lords,"

RANGE STATE OF THE STATE OF THE

Animal activists to stand in Tory seats

Animal rights activists are to challenge 40 Tory MPs in marginal seats at the next election in protest at the Government's refusal to ban live animal exports. Respect for Animals, formerly the anti-fur trade group known as Lynx. believes there are enough traditional Tory supporters who back their campaign and are willing to vote against the

Under the campaign slogan, "Don't vote for a cruel Government", the group's candidates will not seek to attract votes themselves but instead will urge people either to abstain or to vote for a party other than the Tories.

Cull talks continue

The culling of cattle in Northern Ireland was halted for a second day as the Government continued talks with abattoir owners in a dispute over payment. Slaughterhouse operators in England are also negotiating but have made no threat yet to withdraw from the scheme, part of measures to eliminate BSE. The Government wants to cut by about half the payment per animal killed. The £87.50 fee was set high to get the cull started in May.

Holiday murder case

Three men have been charged with robbing and murdering a British holidaymaker on an island in the Philippines in May. Linda Vockins, 34. was beaten to death as she walked to a beach and her body dumped in a ravine near the holiday contage she was renting. The coroner at an inquest in Newbury. Berkshire, yesterday recorded a verdict of unlawful killing on Miss Vockins, a public relations manager from Burghfield Common.

Coach deaths charges

The coach driver and operator involved in a crash near Raglan. Monmouth, last year in which ten people died are to face charges, the Crown Prosecution Service said. Philip Crisp, the coach driver, faces charges of ten counts of death by dangerous driving as well as other charges. Ronald Lewis, the coach operator, faces four charges, including causing a vehicle to be used with defective brakes. They are due to appear at Abergavenny Magistrates' Court on September 25.

Loyalist march banned

The Royal Ulster Constabulary has banned a Protestant march from passing through a Roman Catholic section of the Ormeau Road in Belfast this weekend because of fears of sectarian violence. The Black Preceptory Boys, a loyalist group, had intended to walk the mile-long route as part of its annual church parade from its hall in Ballynafaigh to its church on the Ormeau Road.

bill for Allwood

By Dominic Kennedy, social affairs correspondent

THE NHS has agreed to pay for Mandy Allwood, the mother expecting octuplets, to be treated by the obstetrician of her choice. Two officials met Miss Allwood in secret and promised that the state would foot a bill of up to 5500,000 for her and the babies to be cared for by Kypros Nicolaides, an expert in multiple births.

Solihull Health Authority had previously insisted that other patients' services would have to be cut if Miss Allwood was treated at King's College Hospital, London, which charges more for maternity services than its preferred trusts in the Midlands. The authority had demanded that she should be treated locally and refused to approve the bill for Professor Nicolaides.

However, Rod Griffiths, regional director of public health for the West Midlands. said vesterday the NHS would Maternal choice matters." He had arranged to meet Miss Allwood outside a restaurant in Bagshot, Surrey, on Sunday. She was accompa-nied by her boyfriend Paul Hudson and a representative of the News of the World, which is buying her story for a

By Dominic Kennedy

MEN who lure girls under 16

into prostitution should be more harshly punished, a chil-dren's charity said yesterday.

Barnardo's, which is helping 45 girls in Bradford, found they were all enticed into prostitution by older "boy-friends" who had had sexual relations with them when they

The charity wants these pimps to face a maximum jail sentence of five years instead were as young as 12

six-figure sum. Professor Griffiths was accompanied by Mike Deakin, Solihull's pub lic health consultant.

"It was very cloak-and-dag ger stuff." Professor Griffiths said. "It is unusual to provide maternity care to people in hiding. He told Miss Allwood, who is 15 weeks pregnant, that she could continue being treated by Professor Nicolaides, who had been recommended by her consultant in Birmingham. Professor Griffiths defended Solihull's position because it had been based on the belief that Miss Allwood was still living in the Midlands. She has been at a safe house in Wandsworth, southwest London. "It is entirely possible that she could move again three or four times."

Max Clifford, Miss Allwood's publicist, said of his client last night: "This is someone who has always paid a contribution to the National Health. It is not asking too much that the National Health should help her in times of need." She had moved to the Surrey countryside after photographers found her hideaway in Wandsworth.

of the current two years: the penalty imposed by the 40-year-old Sexual Offences Act

for causing or encouraging prostitution of a girl aged so light, police cannot even arrest men suspected of controlling child prostitutes. They have to issue a summons creased powers, there are doubts as to whether these

Even if they had the in-

Because the punishment is under 16 but over 13

instead.

NHS pays London | Woman lawyer speaks out on Princess's sexy clothes

THE Princess of Wales and other women should not complain if men take pictures of them when they appear in public in sexy clothes, a woman barrister told a court vesterday. Jacqueline Samuel spoke out during a case against a former security chief, who was at the centre of allegations that a store's cameras were used secretly to film the Princess of Wales. The footage was reported to have included lingering close-ups of her cleavage and legs. "If a member of the public, whether royalty or not, is willing to go into a public place in low cleavage, it ill behoves criticism if anyone takes a picture," Jacqueline Samuel told a judge at Southwark Crown Court. during a hearing at which she was prosecuting Gary Archer, the former head of security at Harvey Nichols, who was accused of stealing two walkie-talkies, two rugs, a tapestry border and a footstool from the Knightsbridge store. The Recorder Desmond Browne, QC. dismissed the charges against Mr Archer.

She made her comments

Barnardo's calls for protection of child prostitutes child prostitutes often believe they are in love with their pimps. If a statement is made, it is usually retracted virtually immediately because the girl decides she still loves the man

Barnardo's, which hoped to save girls from prostitution

when it began its Street and Lanes project 15 months ago,

now has the more modest immediate goal of counselling and feeding the girls, reducing drug abuse and promoting health. Even when the charity

By A STAFF REPORTER

36, of North Petherton, Somerset, after more than a day of The Princess was said to have been secretly filmed as she shopped at Harvey Nichols and as she met her friend Christopher Whalley in a café. Miss Samuel argued that the allegations concerning Mr Archer would not prejudice his trial on the two theft charges: 'It is no offence at all to take videos of people who wear low-neck dresses in public places. Princess Diana was in a public place. I think criticism of a person who took a video would be untounded." Kathryn Brown, deputy editor of the women's magazine Elle, criticised the barrister's remarks. "Women should wear whatever clothes they want. It shouldn't be anybody's place to take a picture of them just because they are wearing a low top. Princess Diana docsn't wear overtly sexy clothes. She always dress-

A spokeswoman for the Princess said: "The only point we would make is that Her Royal Highness never complained. It may be that other influence of their pimps, the men are able to find girls as young as 13 to work for them

The young women and girls are locked into an abusive relationship where they are dependent on their 'boyfriend who they believe loves them." said Sara Swann, the project leader. "He in turn offers the young woman to his friends, sends them out on the streets or sells the girls on, under the pretext that he loves within days,

es very appropriately for her people took it upon themselves to complain on her behalf."

The judge dismissed the charges after being told by Mark Milliken-Smith, for the defence, that Mr Archer's partner, Susan Archer, appeared to have instigated the charges after an acrimonious separation. It was also possible, the court was told, that Mrs Archer, a prosecution witness, had sold the story of the secret videos to a newspaper as part of her campaign against her husband.

The judge said the possibility of a prosecution witness having instigated the charges could be prejudicial to the trial. The time lapse between the rug theft in 1993 and the date when Mr Archer was charged meant that he was unable to trace a vital defence witness. "I have come to the conclusion that it would be wrong to allow proceedings to ntinue." the judge said.

Mr Archer, who was made redundant by the store in August 1994, refused to comment after the hearing. Miss Samuel later said that her comments during the case were "legal argument" and not necessarily her view.

The girls have been raped,

physically and emotionally

the abusers go unpunished."

All but one of the girls helped

Snap poll fear makes Lib-Dems

Education, health and employment policies will suffer some of the cuts ordered by Malcolm Bruce, the party's Treasury spokesman, ahead of next month's party conference. Even the party's proposed overseas aid budget a long-standing hallmark of past election manifestos, is to be shaved. The cutting back of some "pet projects" is de-signed to make sure that other key pledges remain intact. The party wants to retain its proposal to pump £2 billion into education, if necessary by raising income tax by 1p, removing 750,000 low earners from tax altogether and to

It also remains committed to reducing vehicle excise duty to £10 on cars under 1400cc and to introducing incentives to employers offering jobs to the unemployed. Free eye and dental checks are also sacroscanci.

abused, and the majority have been infected with sexually transmitted diseases, and yet The youngest girl being helped by Barnardo's is 12 The girls most likely to be-come prostitutes are those Serviceline on already estranged from their 0800 00 41 21 families, or who have been physically or sexually abused.

trim plans By ARTHUR LEATHLEY

POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT

SENIOR Liberal Democrats are being forced to cut back their "wish list" of manifesto commitments as the party tries to control its spending plans. Urgent meetings are being held to modify some spending proposals in readiness for the possibility of a snap general election.

3,000 more palicemen.

If you are paying over £250 for your car insurance call serviceline

Navvies go back to class to fill the holes in their education

a series of the series of the Roadmending will need

By PAUL WILKINSON

DIGGING up the road is no longer a matter of sticking up a few cones, taping off a lane and sitting back to watch the traffic pile up. The navvies of tomorrow will need a certificate to say they know just how to swing a pick.

The Road and Streetworks Act 1991, which comes into effect next August, means that even the humblest labourer should have a piece of paper saying he is competent to dig his hole. It makes it an offence, carrying a hefty fine, and probably blacklisting in the industry, to run a road gang without at least member of the gang holding a City and Guilds certificate of competence in roadworks. Eventually all are likely to need them.

In an attempt to beat the deadline, an estimated 150,000 labourers are queuing to attend one of up to 80 courses which will teach them about health and safety regulations, legal requirements for excavations, how to use plans and equipment to find or avoid buried cables and pipes and even how to dig a hole correctly, leaving the site as if it had never been touched.

"The days of the uneducated labourer are numbered," said Stephen Fisher, a former senior technician with the old South Yorkshire County Council highways department, who has set up his own training scheme. The industry still needs fit young men, but all the hard work is done by machines these days. A young bloke with a mini-digger can do a tremendous amount of work in a day; he can also do an awful amount of damage. I have seen whole estates with their power or water cut off because someone has dug in the wrong place.

"In many cases it is teaching grandmothers to suck eggs, but frequently people who think they know it all find they have been taught wrongly. It is quite a culture shock for someone of 50 or 60 who has been on the roads all his life to been physically sick at the prospect, but many are self-employed and without the certificate they are out

Mr Fisher's firm Utilities Training (Northern) at Wakefield, west Yorkshire, has got its own 200-yard section of road for students to practise on. This has been coming for several years, but frankly not everybody has cottoned on. Not everyone will be ready by next

Mr Fisher has a wry smile for suggestions that his school is all about learning to lean on a shovel. tea-brewing and digging a hole have to go back to the classroom.

Some cannot read and some have been physically sick at the prospect, builder's burn, wolf whistles for pretty girls and workers dressed like slobs are numbered," he said.

"it is not part of our course, but companies are realising that their image is harmed by the prospect of a road gang turning up at 6am looking like they have just fallen out of the pub. These days site workers will be neatly dressed with hard hats and high-visibility jackets and even clean-shaven. Soon they will be skilled in dealing politely with the public."

John Ralph, a site foreman who has completed the course, said: "A lot of the things are day-to-day practices, but it has drawn my attention to the amount of detail we wili have to look at."

Paul Watter, head of roads and transport policy with the AA, said: "We are firmly behind this. Some time ago we carried out our own survey of roadworks and found that at least one third were badly placed, signed or sited. It is short-term works that are the worst. "You often seen potholes being filled off the back of a lorry and then just rolled over with the vehicle's wheels. A number of serious incidents can be traced back to poorly executed roadworks and we feel there should be some level of accountability."

WPC told to quit after stepping in to help battered wife

A SPECIAL constable who used her warrant card to help a penniless neighbour to obtain benefit for food and electricity has been told to resign from the Metropolitan Police. Bernadette Pugh says that she will refuse to leave voluntarily and claims that she has been treated unfairly.

She said last night: "Hell will freeze over before I resign. I will fight this as hard as I can. I am being punished for showing compassion." If she fails to resign, her local com-mander will ask the Commissioner, Sir Paul Condon, to Ms Pugh said that she intended to contest the decision of the divisional internal inquiry by appealing directly to Sir Paul. If that failed she would take her case to the Home Secretary. "Those are the only courses open to me, but I believe they will listen to me on humanitarian grounds." Ms Pugh, 31, a mother of two children, was suspended ten months ago after helping a 21-year-old battered wife to obtain money from the DSS office in Enfield, north London. The police accept that she acted in good faith to help a neighbour in need, but say it was "not necessary or right to abuse her warrant of author-matter". She went into the DSS office while off duty and wearing civilian clothes and produced her warrant card to facilitate a meeting between the neighbour and a senior manager. She said: "The woman, whom I knew slightly, knocked on my door and told me she was desperate, cold and starving and without money to buy food or charge her electricity key. She had a very young child and feared for her well-being." She told Ms Pugh that she had been the victim of a violent husband and had been rehoused in a nearby council flat after being given refuge in a home for battered women. She told me she was so desperate that, unless she obtained benefit, she would commit a crime and steal food. I knew I could not see her and her little girl starve or freeze

Compensation plea rejected

A former police officer who was shot and seriously wounded while on duty has been refused compensation by the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board.

Keith Bottomley, 33, was a probationary officer with Suffolk Constabulary in July 1992 when he was hit in the chest and arm. He returned to work but was 1993 and told he was "not of the right character". His claim for compensation failed because his superiors did not link the dismissal to and I did not want desperation to drive her to a criminal act. So I went with her to the DSS office and showed my warrant card to the security man who ushered us through to see a woman in charge. After she got the money she gave me a big hug."

She said that she immediately informed her superior of what she had done. "I was summoned to a disciplinary hearing and told that I had misused my warrant card. I thought that would be the end of it but then, because of a complaint from the DSS office, I was suspended."

She added: "Part of our code of conduct is to promise to show compassion and that is exactly what I did. I believe I have been treated very harshly and unfairly. If I had apprehended a mugger or thief they would not have cared whether l was off duty or not."

A statement issued on behalf of the Metropolitan Police said: "We expect special constables to work to the same high standards that we expect from regular serving police officers and this includes making proper and authorised use of their warrant card."

The statement said that Ms Pugh had agreed initially to attend a meeting last Thurs-Enfield division but had then refused to go. "A letter from the divisional manager has been sent to the special constable requesting her to resign and we await her reply."

Bernadette Pugh says that "hell will freeze over" before she resigns voluntarily

Schoolgirl was killed by local, police believe

BY ADRIAN LEE

THE naked body of a missing teenager has been found in a cornfield two weeks after she disappeared. Detectives said that the killer of Sarah Bottomley probably came from the surrounding area.

Yesterday the 14-year-old's father made an appeal for help as police began questioning residents in and around the market town of Oakham, Leicestershire, where the victim lived. Her body was found five miles away, near the village of Edmondthorpe.

which has a population of $0.

A man walking his dog found the body, which had been crudely hidden beneath a hedgerow, but it is not yet known how the teenager died. Sarah, who lived with her father Mark, 37, a factory worker, brother Daniel, 15, and sister Victoria, 10, was last seen by her family on August 5. She was not reported miss-ing for two days because her father assumed she had gone to visit her mother, Carol, 34, who lives in Wymondham.

There is a lane alongside the field where Sarah's body was found early on Monday, and she may have been killed elsewhere. She had recently camped near by with friends. Sarah was seen with a group of youths in Oakham on the evening of August 5. It is not known where she spent the night but she was seen again in the town next day. lan Stripp said there was every indication the answer to what has happened does lie here in the local community.

The case will be solved with local information." The body was decomposed and may have been in the field for a identified by her jewellery. Her father broke down as he spoke of her. "She was a very happy, lively girl who had many friends and knew a lot of people in Oakham.

Someone, somewhere, knows where she has been and who she has been with. Someone knows something and I want them to help the police find who did this to Sarah." He telephoned Sarah's mother, from whom he is separated, when he became worried about their daughter. Sarah made regular taxi trips to see her mother and the Jane off which the body was found led to her mother's village. Detectives were also searching for Sarah's clothing. The girl, who was a fan of rave music, was wearing different outfits on the last two occasions on which she was seen and it is thought that she may have changed at a friend's

Sarah Bottomley: went missing two weeks ago

Briton held on bomb charge

FROM LENNART UTTERSTROEM IN STOCKHOLM

A MAN from London was remanded in custody by a Swedish court yesterday after allegedly being caught carrying a home-made nail bomb at an anti-Nazi protest in the southwest of the country.

David Thomas, who will face trial in two weeks, was one of seven people arrested on Saturday when a demonstration by neo-Nazis in Trollhattan to commemorate the anniversary of Rudoli Hess's death erupted into violent clashes between neo-Nazis and anti-fascists.

Mr Thomas, 34, was charged with possessing a weapon with intent to harm, police said. The other six people arrested had been re-Thomas Wennerstrand, the chief prosecutor, said that Mr Thomas admitted making the bomb but denied planning to use it against the neo-Nazis.

Shipping lane rescue ends rum day out for Whiskey

By EMMA WILKINS

THE astonished crew of a passenger ferry called in rescue services after they saw a two-year-old golden retriever swimming in busy shipping Defence police launch with lower decks. lanes four miles out at sea.

Whiskey had been playing with his owner on a beach near Gosport, Hampshire, when a strong current swept him out to sea. As Douglas Cadle shouted for his pet to return to shore, the dog started swimming towards the Isle of Wight.

Ian Blaxman, the captain of small passenger ferry, was keeping lookout when he saw the dog's head 100 yards away from his boat. Mr Blaxman and Chris Quinton, a crewman, jumped into the water but Whiskey was too heavy to lift on to the ferry's high decks.

At one point they managed to climb up the ladder on the side of their boat with Whivkey, but a wave knocked them back into the sea. The men spent 20 minutes keeping the dog afluat as another crewman called the Coastguard. who summoned a Ministry of Mr Blaxman said that Whiskey was in an anxious state by the time it was eventually hauled aboard. "He scratched us to bits but land after his ordeal

you can't blame the dog because he was getting very tired and distressed."

The rescue, on Monday afternoon, was completed when MoD police managed to haul the dog aboard their launch and return to shore. Whiskey was examined by a vet and found to be tired but unharmed.

Mr Cadle, who lives in Alverstoke, Hampshire, said: Whiskey was delighted to be reunited with his brother. Ginger. He likes to swim although he has never gone quite that far before. I'm not sure how keen he will be to get into the water now."

Mr Cadle said that Whiskey had ignored his shouts and appeared to think that the Isle of Wight was Gosport beach. He became disorientated and distressed as the current started taking him away from the shore. It looked as though he was paddling to the Isle of

Foraging children in care

By AUDREY MAGEE FOUR children were in care

last night after neighbours reported seeing the eldest foraging for food in dustbins while the mother was away. It was claimed that three boys and a girl, aged from ten months to four years, had been left in the care of drunken youths at the council house in Ardoyne, Belfast. The 20year-old mother was said to be at a party. Police wore face masks against the stench of conditions in the house when children. The family had been receiving visits from social welfare since moving to the house three months ago. Yesterday the social services held an emergency internal meeting afternoon to discuss the case.

they went to retrieve the

The mother denied neglecting her family, and said she had been out shopping. She told BBC Radio Ulster: "Somebody wrecked the house. It was spotless when I left it."

Teacher jailed after school gave him second chance

By David Charter, education correspondent

A SCIENCE teacher was jailed for a year yesterday after being convicted of sexual assaults on pupils which happened after governors decided not to sack him for an earlier incident

Christopher Keeton, head of chemistry at North Chadder-ton High School, near Oldham, Greater Manchester, continued to grope girls after governors gave him a second chance when he was caught trying to kiss a 16-year-old pupil four years ago. The 32year-old was found guilty after a six-day trial at Manchester Crown Court of seven attacks on four different girls at the school.

Oldham council vesterday defended the school's actions. saying that the decision in 1992 to give him another chance while banning him from being alone with girl pupils was based on all available evidence at the time about a seemingly isolated incident.

Judge Harold Singer said Keeton had been "arrogant and bold" in defying the ban. The horror that must rise in the minds of any parents of young girls must be measureless. You gratified your lust and you did so on school premises," he said.

He added: "Not only did you indecently assault young girls, you did so in classrooms. running the risk that someone might have come in." He said that Keeton, who had been at the 1,450-pupil mixed comprehensive school since 1986, was on the evidence a fine teacher who greatly enjoyed teaching. However, six of the assaults came after the school gave Keeton a final written warning for kissing a girl on the lips after a lesson in 1992. He was charged with this assault after being suspended in July 1995 when the other incidents came to light. One of the girls wept as she told the court how Keeton persistently touched her indecently, saying: "I don't know why I like you so much." She told the jury: "At first I thought I could handle it by ignoring him. But eventually he really frightened me." Keeton's wife, Bernadette, watched from the public gallery as the judge said that the case was a "multifold tragedy" for all concerned. Mike Willis, director of education and leisure in Oldham, yesterday said that he was completely satisfied that the school governors worked "correctly and sensitively" in handling the allegations. The school, working in conjunction with the local authority, moved swifty to protect the welfare of pupils as soon as the allegations were made against him. He said Keeton was given a final written warning rather than the sack in 1992 because there was only a single allegation of indecent behaviour.

Catch the Hovercraft, the fastest way to France. It's a unique experience. As a motorist sit back and let our cabin crew take care of you in Premier Class: with complimentary refreshment, newspaper, refresher towel and duty and tax free goods brought to your seat at no extra cost. Our prices are customer friendly too. Hovercraft from Dover to Calais for £55 single Apex fare car + 5 or just £109 Standard Apex return. With 14 scheduled return crossings daily on the Hovercraft, it's easy to find a good time to cross. So call Hoverspeed now or see your local travel agent.

RESERVATIONS 01304 240 241

Our internet address is: http://www.haverspeed.co.uk/

STILL THE FASTEST WAY TO FRANCE

Gummer unveils strategy to deliver clean air by 2005

BRITAIN'S air will be fit to breathe by 2005, according to John Gummer, the Environment Secretary, who unveils Europe's first national air quality strategy today. Targets have been set to reduce eight hazardous pollutants produced by cars and lorries but also by industry. agriculture, power stations and other sources such as dry cleaners. The strategy is designed to calm public and medical experts' fears that the rise in transport fumes is at least partly to blame for rises in asthma and thousands of premature deaths during winter and summer smogs.

Clean air campaigners and environmentalists said yesterday that they feared the Government was relying too much on technical improvements by the motor and petroleum industries to deliver cleaner engines and fuels. The eight pollutants were selected mainly on health standards recommended by the Expert Panel on Air Quality Standards. chaired by Professor Anthony Aberdeen

In 1994, the proposed limits reduce nitrogen dioxide, were for nitrogen dioxide (see not proving as effective as graphic, right) were exceeded in Manchester on L2 days and in Shelfield on ten. The proposed limits for ozone were exceeded in Cardiff on 29 days and Birmingham on 26, and those for particles were exceeded in London on 43 days, Liverpool on 51 days, and Belfast on 40.

New powers under last year's Environment Act. including pedestrianising streets where fumes build up, are becoming available to local councils. Later this year guidelines will be published the Department of the Environment setting out which of these anti-pollution powers will be permitted to curb local hot spots. Tim Brown of the National Society for Clean Air, which represents local authorities and clean air researchers, said yesterday: "Some of their projections on how levels of pollutants will fall are suspect. They are based on potentially false assumptions about how much technology will deliver." He said there was evidence that catalytic converters on vehicle exhausts, designed to overnment planners had believed.

Mr Brown said the only credible way to tackle rising vehicle fumes was to increase the costs of motoring by higher taxes. These are tough and politically sensitive decisions. But unless they are taken we may well find in 2005 that we are still not meeting the targets and that the whole strategy has been a well-meaning public relations excercise," he

Tony Bosworth, of Friends of the Earth, said yesterday that for some of the eight pollutants the government had included get-out clauses meaning that levels can exceed the health standard for a part of the year. The government may also relax standards if a review, planned for 1999, shows that the costs of of the new limits are too high.

"This cost-benefit analysis essentially puts the British economy before public health. Clean air is a right which should not be subject to this kind of economic test," said Mr Bosworth.

Leading article, page 15

Barbecues raise risk of summer pollution

BY NICK NUTTALL

THE success of the Government's clampdown on eight air pollutants will depend on changes in lifestyles, economic activity and the weather.

Putting fewer but bigger lorries on the road and forcing them to burn cleaner fuels may help to reduce some fumes. But to protect children strapped into pushchairs by busy roads, it is the way the exhausts are angled into their faces that needs reconsidering.

Less hazardous fuels are being developed, but diesel provides a cautionary example. It was introduced as a cleaner fuel but has since been linked with thousands of premature deaths after the discovery of the health hazards of the sooty particles produced in the fumes.

In setting the limit for particulates, the Government has recognised that at certain times of the year it will be difficult to reach. Around Guy Fawkes night bonfires lace the air with these deadly flecks. Barbecues increase their concentration in the summer.

Hydrocarbons, chemicals such as solvents and cleaning fluids which contribute to summer-time smog, percolate from factories, refineries, petrol stations and dry cleaners. The growth in DIY painting

Asthma treatment costing NHS £410m

By JEREMY LAURANCE HEALTH CORRESPONDENT

THE Government was accused yesterday of failing to tackle the sharp increase in asthma, which is putting an increasing burden on the NHS.

The Liberal Democrats say that new figures show the cost of NHS prescriptions for asthma has risen 67 per cent in six years, from £245 million in 1990 to £410 million in 1995, equivalent to £8.60 for every man, woman and child. Prescriptions for asthma have risen from 19 million to 34 million since 1985. The figures, obtained in a written cess, were released yesterday in advance of the Government announcement on new pollution controls. Simon Hughes, Liberal Democrat health spokesman, said money was being spent on treating the consequences instead of the causes and accused ministers of dragging their feet. "The cost of not taking action is rapidly becoming higher than the cost of the action we need to take." Mr Hughes said a two-pronged strategy to cut traffic pollution and reduce smoking was required. "We must reduce vehicle journeys and reduce pollution from vehicles. If we have more public transport, the numbers polluting the roads will be less. About half of asthma sufferers also find their asthma is made worse by smoking. I am not saying pollution causes asthma - no one knows the cause and we need more research but it is medically accepted that pollution triggers asthma symptoms."

The complex relationship between collution and asthma was illustrated by regional tables provided by the Liberal Democrats that showed smogbound London has the lowest per capita spend on anti-asthma drugs. The amount spent on asthma drugs in Croydon, south London — £5.80 a head is half that spent in Gloucestershire, Warwickshire and the Isle of Wight, which all have a figure over £10.

The National Asthma Campaign said research showed asthma levels in rural areas were as high as in cities. A spokeswoman said: "There is certainly more to asthma than pollution. We eat more processed foods and live in centrally-heated, carpeted, closeted homes. We spend 90 per cent of our time indoors and indoor pollution by agents such as house dust mites is now under the microscope."

Curbing traffic fumes is no easy cure for epidemic

THE spokesman for the National Asthma Campaign is adamant: It is wrong to imply that asthma is caused by air pollution: although pollution certainly exacerbates its symptoms in people who already suffer from it. There is, however, some evidence of a modest relationship between local traffic density and the prevalence of

The truth is that, as in so many aspects of medicine, the doctors don't know all the answers. It is a mystery why there is an epidemic of asthma, and why the number of children who suffer from it has doubled since the 1970s.

if we put children who are troubled with asthma into a smoky, grimy, exhaust-ridden atmosphere, any cough of wheeze will be made worse, and we also know that this environment can induce an attack in somebody who is vulnerable to asthma but whose symptoms were previously quiescent.

In Britain the relationship between traffic pollution and asthma is uncertain, for research has shown that the incidence of asthma among those who live among the hills of Skye is much the same as it is in some of our inner cities. It is not known why. Other aspects of modern living must be considered:

VIEDICAL BRIEFING gested between the rise in

suspicion has been cast on the comforts provided by the warm centrally heated house with wall-to-wall carpeting, the perfect haven for the microscopic house mite, a potent trigger, possibly even a cause, of asthma. However take away decent heating and upper respiratory infections, coughs and colds become more of a menace, for they too can precipitate an attack of wheezing.

The relationship of stress to asthma is also ill-defined. It is all too easy to relate a severe attack of asthma to a blazing family row, but what about recurrent minor attacks of wheezing? Could they be caused by family tensions stemming from modern life?

working mothers and asthma. Is a relaxed, united home life as good a defence against asthma as freedom from car

Whatever the causes, asthma needs much more research. A British Lung Foundation study published this year showed that between 30 to 50 percent of the underfives in the United Kingdom suffer acute

Asthma is too serious and too complex a problem to be used as an easy weapon in any war between car owners and the green movement. Nobody denies that pollution must be reduced to ease the life of those who have asthma. but a greater need is to find out why they developed it in

> DR THOMAS STUTTAFORD

Some people disguise the fact they've made lots of insurance claims by changing their insurance company. That way they avoid paying higher General Accident premiums. But at General Accident Direct we can trace their insurance histories. So we don't make you subsidise the dishonest.

FOR BUILDINGS & CONTENTS INSURANCE FREEPHONE 0800 121 004 PAY BY INSTALMENTS INTEREST FREE

MOTOR 0800 121 000

MORTGAGE PAYMENT PROTECTION 0800 121 008 • TRAVEL 0800 121 007 Weekdays 8am - 9pm. Sat 9am - 5pm. 🔼 🖚

*Applies to Buildings and Contents and Motor insurance only. Written details on request.

Internet groom hav child-sev conviction Car ca das . . . Marine 15. i.

.0144

JIG I

400.4

.

11

2.7

....

 $\mathbf{p} \approx 1$

W.11

it.

Wife takes graphic revenge on firm that fired husband

By KATHRYN KNIGHT

A DIAMOND sorter dismissed after being wrongly accused of theft had his revenge yesterday when his wife smod outside De Beers' London headquarters with a huge poster of her husband in a graduation gown emblazoned with the words "Here's justice. De Beers!"

isarbecut

Taise no

Cheryl Newby chose the day when buyers come from around the world to reveal that her husband, Neil, 49. inspired by his legal battles with the company, had graduated in law last month, 45 years after he was sacked. Mr Newby had worked for De Beers for 25 years when he was accused of stealing two diamonds from the sorting floor. Although no evidence was offered against him, the company, whose London office handles 85 per cent of the world's rough diamonds, refused to re-employ him.

He nearly lost his house and his health in a three-year fight to clear his name. Mrs Newby said that her gesture had been well-supported: "People from the company: passers-by and merchants coming to view the diamonds have all come up to ask me what it's all about

When I tell them, they have all said good on us. Some workers have been 100 scared to be seen coming up to the van but have given me thumbs-up signs from the side of the road or from their windows. I wanted to show them there was life after De Beers, In Maidenhead, Berkshire, where the couple live with their two children, Mr Newby said that his dealings with De Beers had nearly broken him. He said that he had been arrrested and dismissed within hours, with no opportunity to defend himself.

He worked as a quality controller in the diamond sorting department and had travelled the world with the company, spending time in Botswana, South Africa, Zaire and Belgium.

"One morning in January 1992. I arrived at work and was immediately arrested for stealing diamonds. I was given no chance to explain or defend myself," he said. Only a week earlier he had been sent a letter about his forthcoming 25 years' service, tell-ing him that he was entitled to a gift worth £500.

After questioning, Mr Newby was released on bail and immediately dismissed from the company. The case came before Clerkenwell magistrates in February 1992, but all charges were dropped after Crown offered no evidence.

"I was taken back on at De Beers under suspension and subjected to further investigations, then I was dismissed again in May 1992. I was told that they had conducted a thorough investigation and they still had reason to believe I was guilty of theft of a diamond," he said.

Cheryl Newby with the poster displayed on a van at De Beers. She chose the day when buyers visit the firm

"I felt that after all the years had given them they were quite happy to destroy the lives of an innocent man and his family rather than back down. I decided there was nothing else I could do other than fight. I had developed a stammer, I was close to a nervous breakdown and was close to losing everything I had worked for."

Mr Newby said that De Beers called in his company mortgage the day after he was dismissed. When his solicitor objected, they raised the interest rates from the favourable company rates. TMy mother had to step in to pay our mortgage. Without her and the rest of my family's financial support, we would have lost the house and gone under. As it is we still have huge

Mr Newby took De Beers to a tribunal, claiming unfair dismissal. Two years later, the panel found in his favour and he was awarded £10,500 compensation with half his costs. It was the classic case of the and in many ways I haven't won. We are still in debt and I have had to battle to rebuild my life," Mr Newby said. "My wife and I just wanted to show people that the big guys don't always break you. A spokesman for De Beers said: "Neil Newby used to work for us. He does not work

SATURDAY IN THE TIMES

STARTS HERE.

Style guide for surfers The Jumbo Going out: the good events guide

PLUS Best holiday TV and radio in Vision, Weekend Money, Car 96, 1015 and the Magazine

THE SEVEN-SECTION TIMES IS ONLY 40p ON SATURDAY

Internet groom has child-sex conviction

By Shirley English

A MAN who wooed his American bride over the Internet is a convicted child-sex offender. Adrian Philpott married Cindy Irish. a mother-of-four from Connecticut, in Aberdeen on Monday, just three days after the couple met or the first time.

Mr Philpott's conviction has placed a question mark over their plans to set up home together in the United States. He was sentenced to three years in prison at Exeter Crown Court in June 1990 for sexual intercourse with a girl. The newlyweds had planned to fly to the US after a week in the Highlands. However, a spokeswoman at the Anyone convicted of a criminal offence of moral turpitude is ineligible for a visa." He would have to apply for a waiver, which could take more than a month.

At the wedding reception Mr Philpott, 42, said that his bride was aware of the offence and had forgiven him. He added that he had found God in prison. "It happened at a time of great stress in my life and I had an affair with a young girl," he said. His bride, a widow, has children

Hunt for missing children extended

By Stephen Farrell

THE parents of two children missing on a Norfolk beach were last night reconciling themselves to the thought that they may never see them again, police said.

Hopes faded of finding alive Jodi Loughlin, 6, and her brother Tom, 4, after the police search entered a third day. The search is to be extended today two miles inland from Holme next the Sea and Ringstead, with a helicopter using thermal-imaging cameras.

Fears are growing that the children were swept out to sea after excitedly running into the surf at the start of their holiday on Sunday. Coast-guards said yesterday that the bodies of the children may never be found.

Superintendent John Hale paid tribute to the fortitude of the parents, Kevin Loughlin, 37, and Lynette Thornton, 37, from Norwood, south London.

"They are really hit by the reality of the situation. They are very distressed this morning," he said. "They have held up with tremendous fortitude but there is only so much people can take and they are clearly suffering. They didn't even have a chance to say

At Sainsbury's you don't need a wishbone to get an offer like this.

What's the most important thing he uses to help you out?

His initiative.

Ask any AA patrol man or woman and they'll tell you every breakdown is different. Which is why we recruit people who tackle problems with confidence. Nice to know when yours is the car with the problem.

We fix more cars than anyone else.

To join, call

of our FREE Cool Bag offer.

Court backs residents in fight against bail hostel

OPPONENTS of development in residential areas claimed a victory yesterday when a judge ruled that planners could be expected to take fear into account as a factor in the quality of life.

Residents had opposed the expansion of a bail hostel in Aldridge, West Midlands. Their success in the High Court in London was attacked as a victory for the so-called Nimby tendency — not in our back yard" - enabling a wider argument to block hostels or even affordable housing from the more pleasant

The West Midlands probation committee had appealed against a decision by planners not to allow the hostel to increase its occupancy from 12 to 20. Expansion had been refused on the basis of reports from residents, many of them elderly, that there had been incidents of loutish and drunken behaviour and an increase in crime.

The hostel is next door to a home for 80 elderly people. A quarter of the the local population is over retirement age.

Deputy Judge Robin Pur-chas said: "I believe that many members of the public would be surprised, and would feel that something was wrong, if fear in a community was not capable in an appropriate case of being lawfully considered in determining whether or not development should proceed.
It is a truism that residential areas may differ. Villages will differ from towns. Suburbs may differ from residential developments within urban centres.

"In this case the inspector concluded on the evidence that this residential development would suffer particular detriment as a result of apprehension and fear, due to the contrasting lifestyles of those likely to occupy the hostel and the estate.

Sheila Healy, director of environment at Walsall council. said: "This is something of ing it.

We are pleased that the court has sided with us. We feel that crime and the fear of crime are important in people's lives in terms of where they live, and it is important that their views are considered valid."

The council turned down the planning application in January 1995. Its decision was upheld by a government in-spector after a public inquiry when he agreed that the grounds for refusal were allowed under existing planning law. The probation service argued that the council was in breach of planning rules by giving in to "subjective and unsubstantiated fears" that an increase in numbers would lead to an increase in crime. Barrie Bridgman, the West Midlands assistant chief probation officer, had condemned the inspector's decision as a dangerous precedent. He said it could have "a disastrous impact on the possibility of opening hostels anywhere in the country for defendants. offenders or any other class of citizen that people take objection to". Robert Griffiths, QC, for the probation committee, said that, if the planning inspector was right, then the result could be a countrywide ban on bail hostels, or even affordable housing, from "nice" residential areas.

Residents had complained about confrontations with hostel occupants, several robberies and car break-ins. They said that the inmates fought with each other, bared their buttocks at a bedroom window and smashed milk bottles in driveways. The residents also said that they had little faith in the people who were running the hostel.

The inspector said in December 1995 that it was hard to imagine a more incongruous juxtaposition than that between the bail hostel and the "neat" housing estate adjoin-

The 12th-century casket believed to have held a relic of St Thomas à Becket went on public display at the Victoria & Albert Museum yesterday after being saved from export by an appeal led by the National Art Collections Fund. It is regarded as the finest surviving example of its kind, with decoration chronicling Becket's martyrdom and burial. It is on view in the museum's medieval treasury, near the main entrance

Ramblers' criticise slow pace of millennium path clean-up

By RICHARD DUCE

A MILLENNIUM dream for every public footpath to be cleared is unlikely to be realised by the Government, according to figures released by the Ramblers' Association yesterday.

The Countryside Commission, acting as agent for the Government, promised in 1987 that all 140,000 miles of public path and bridleway would be cleared by 2000. An estimated 40,000 miles of paths are still obstructed by barbed wire, crops or legal dispute, the Ramblers' Association said yesterday at the launch of its Free Your Paths

The campaign concentrates on six areas in which the association says that councils are not doing enough to meet the millennium target: Wedmore, Somerset: Harlow, Essex; Stafford; Cardiff; Hopton, west Yorkshire; and Gorebridge, Lothian. Councils have the power.

under the 1990 Rights of Way Act, to fine farmers and land-owners up to £1,000 for failing to comply with orders to clear paths. Kate Ashbrook, chairman of the Ramblers' Association, which has 116,000 members, said: "Parliament has given county councils and unitary authorities the duty to enforce the law: they have been appointed as the police-men of the paths. But too often they fall asleep on the job."

Tony Goverd, of the association's Somerset branch, said that half of the 110 paths in Wedmore were obstructed when surveyed five years ago and there were only two have been 200. "We reported all this to Somerset County Council and Sedgemoor District Council, which is employed by the county as its agent. Most of the paths are still obstructed. In Sedgemoor they reckon that it will be another 40 years before all the paths are signposted and 70 years before the footpath surfaces are put in good order."

The Countryside Commission accepted that the 2000 target could be optimistic but said that the number of paths now fully open to the public was nearly 75 per cent. Richard Simmons, the commission's chairman, said that there had been a huge improvement in recent years, but added: "We have to be realistic and appreciate that local authorities have other priorities signposts where there should in these times of reduced public spending."

Thinking about sex can overcome pain

By NIGEL HAWKES, SCIENCE EDITOR

THINKING about sex or other positive things can halve the sensation of pain, according to an experiment in the United States. Thinking negatively, however, makes it worse.

The experiment was carried out by Dr Peter Staats, Director of Pain Medicine at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. With colleagues from the University of Wisconsin. he persuaded 72 people to hold their hands in iced water for as long as they could bear while thinking either positive or negative thoughts. The volunteers were also assessed for their anxiety about pain in a written test. The results showed that those who were fearful removed their hands from the iced water much sooner than others, but the pain tolerance of positive thinking. "These findings support our belief that most pain involves both a biological cause and the emorional response to it, and that treatment should address both factors." Dr Staats told the Eighth World Congress on Pain in Vancouver.

He told volunteers in the positive group that iced water made wounds heal more quickly, improved blood flow, strengthened fingernail beds and had other medical benefits. He asked them to repeat words such as "honesty" "health" or "sex".

The negative group was told that iced water was harmful. and repeated words such as "dishonesty", "sickness", "filth" and "sexual abstinence". They perceived pain much sooner and took their both groups was increased by hands out twice as quickly.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Inspectors find fault at blood bank

a blood bank has been given a month to rectify "unacceptable" lapses in procedure found by government inspectors. The faults at the East Anglia Blood Centre, based at Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge, were discovered during a routine visit by inspectors from the Medicines Control Agency. The agency and the National Blood Authority, which runs the blood service insisted yesterday that the problems were not serious and that there was no risk to health.

Cancer concern

Older women are not being screened for breast cancer despite being at highest risk. Age Concern says. Although per cent of breast cancer deaths occur in over-65s, under 2 per cent are screened.

Waterless week

The town of Nenagh in Co Tipperary will be without mains water for a week because of suspected industrial pollution. Thousands of households are being supplied by road tankers.

Compass found

Divers from St Andrews University have found a compass in a Cromwellian war-ship sunk off Mull in 1653. Dr Colin Martin called the wreck a unique time-capsule of the mid-17th century".

Malaria move

A Bristol-based law firm. Lawrence Tucketts, has been awarded a legal aid contract to fight for compensation for people who claim serious side-effects from the antimalarial drug Lariam.

Bull terrier shot

A bull terrier was shot dead by police after it went berserk 🍰 and bit its owner and her son in Warrington, Cheshire. The dog was a cross between a Staffordshire terrier and a pit bull terrier.

Chipper fish

Microsoft

Office Upgrade

A goldfish has survived unscathed in a tank of 100 piranhas at the Sea Life Centre in Scarborough. The goldfish is believed to have by a visitor as a prank.

arrangement fees, early redemption fees, mortgage indemnity fees, survey fees.

wonder the banks and building societies are worried.

No, you're not seeing things, a Direct Line mortgage can save you around £50* a month. Whether you're moving house or simply moving your mortgage, there are no arrangement or survey fees. Mortgages are available for up to 90% of the property value or purchase price, whichever is lower and there is no mortgage indemnity premium to pay. We don't charge early redemption fees either. to Direct Line.

If you're moving your mortgage, call us by 31st August 1996, complete the transfer using our solicitors package and we'll even pay your legal fees and guarantee you a saving of 20%† on your existing buildings

So, if you want the best mortgage deal, say no to the building societies and say yes

Lender	APR (Variable)	Monthly Represents (after tax relief)	Monthly saring with Direct Line	Theat Payable
MOOFMICH	7.4%	.2545.35	· C48.95	£163,605
HALIFAX	· 7.4%	£545.25	649.55	£163,695
ABBEY NATIONAL	7.4%	. £545.34	£48.94	£163,602
DIRECT LINE	6.2%	: £496.40 ·	- -	£148,920

0181 649 9099

0161 831 9099 MANCHESTER

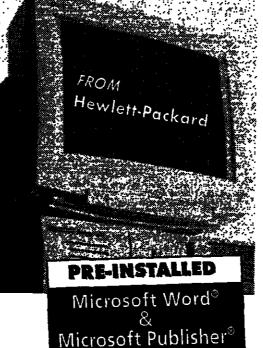

0141 221 9099

CALL ANYTIME 8am to 8pm Monday to Friday and 9am to 5pm Saturday. Please quote ref. TT4 Internet address: http://www.directline.co.uk

The guaranteed insurance swing only applies if your current best ance is available by your leader and is subject to our normal underwitting criteria and corresponding leasts of caves. For your added security all telephone calls will be recorded and the recording hept secure. YOUR HOME IS AT RISK IF YOU DO NOT KEEP UP REPAYMENTS ON A MORTGAGE OR OTHER LOAN SECURED ON IT.

Small Businesses Searching for hassle-free computing? Look no further

HP Vectra 500 Series

intel Pentium® Processor 100 - 166MHz

8 MB - 128MB RAM

1.2GB - 1.6GB Hard Disk

256k cache option

1 - 2MB VRAM

CD-ROM 4 or 8 Speed

1 year on-site warranty, 90 day free telephone software support. Optional 3 year on-site warranty

Quality Software Bundle Microsoft Word®, Microsoft Publisher®, Windows 95° and CompuServe Internet Access®

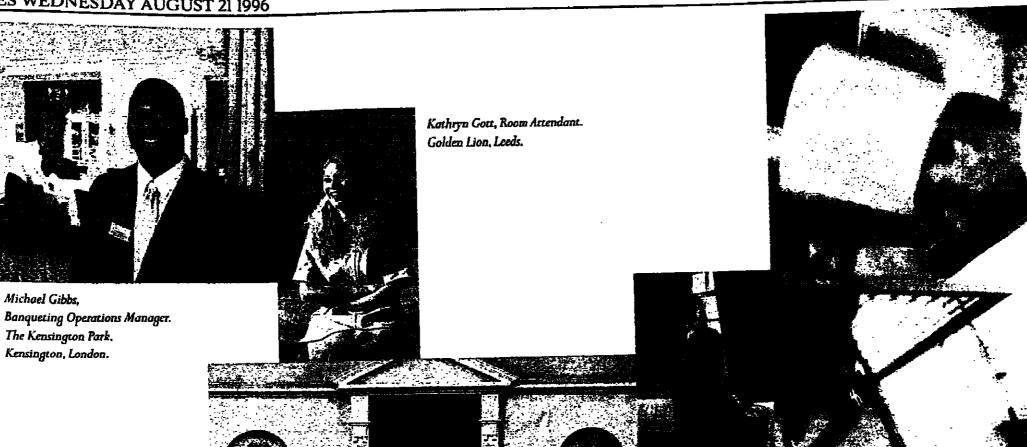

For more information or to order ring...

Christelle Guibert,

The Noke, St. Albans.

Christopher Cleveland, Head Chef. Audleys Wood, Basingstoke.

35 w

Emily Fletcher, Receptionist. The Royal Angus, Birmingham.

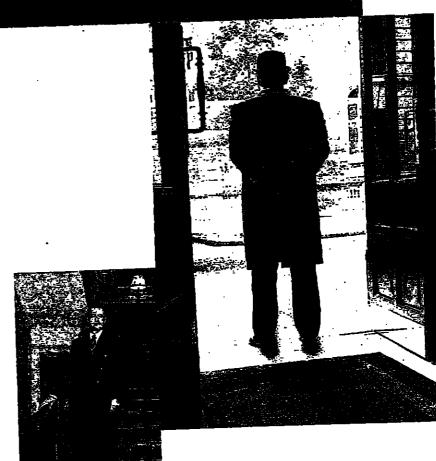

ONE THING THAT HELPS

MAKE ALL OUR

HOTELS INDIVIDUAL.

INDIVIDUALS.

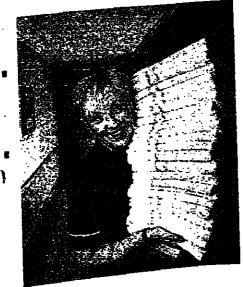

Walk round any of our hotels and one thing you'll notice is the people. Hard working and efficient. Well turned out and personable. But more than that, they're real people. With personalities all their own. Rather like the hotels in which they work. In 100 locations across the country. For more information and reservations, call 0800 18 17 16.

Jon Ward, Linkman. The Grosvenor, Victoria, London.

Karen Loughran, Laundry Supervisor. Hospitality Inn, Middlesbrough.

All pictures taken on location at The Royal Hornegments Hotel and Connector House, Lordon. This advertisement has been tuned by, and is the sole responsibility of, Thistile Hotels Pic and approved by carring another to anyone clee for providing the protections afforded to their fine protections of the properties of the properties of section 57 of the Financial Services Act 1986 Barings and Merrill Lynch are acting cachanively for Thistile Hotels Pic and will not be responsible to anyone clee for providing the protections afforded to their financial Lynch are regulated by the SFA, solely for the purposes of section 57 of the Financial Services Act 1986 Barings and Merrill Lynch are acting cachanively for Thistile Hotels Pic and will not be responsible to anyone clee for providing the protections afforded to their

Superbean leads shops into battle with gene scientists

By Nigel Hawkes, science editor

ucts, and chocolate.

120 million tons a year.

October.

Modified foods

are here to stay

By ROBIN Young

SEVERAL genetically modi- Savr tomatoes reduces waste and on the world market by

The new plants, produced by Monsanto, contain an introduced gene from a bacterium which makes them resistant to the herbicide glyphosate, sold in various forms to farmers and gardeners and best known as the weedkiller and gives a naturally thicker been approved for release and commercial sale are in North America. The first crop to be cleared for sale in Europe was plant. This year the European Union has approved a hybrid oilseed rape that will be grown commercially in Europe, as well as the herbicide-tolerant sovbean that will be grown in America. No genetically engineered crops are yet grown commercially in Britain, but food products already cleared for use here include oil from four different types of

Sometimes genetic engineering has unexpected and unwelcome results. When a seed company genetically modified soya beans by introducing a brazil nut protein to improve the beans' quality as animal feed, it was found that people who were allergic to brazil nuts were also allergic transgenic oilseed rape.

herbicide-tolerant tobacco

Most of the crops that have

A NEW soya "superbean" could become the first battleground over the genetic modification of food, which offers enormous benefits but also worries some consumers.

Food manufacturers and retailers are divided about how to label food containing the new form of soya, which is expected to hit supermarket shelves this autumn.

The shops want labels saying it has been modified, while the manufacturers say this is impracticable and could be misleading. Potentially, a huge range of products could contain small amounts of soya flour or oil produced from genetically modified plants. They include breads, pastries, vegetable oil, salad dressings, margarine, sweets, cereals, fied foods preceded soya on to British supermarket shelves.

The Co-op sells its own-brand vegetarian cheese that is manulactured by using a genetically modified enzyme called chymosin. The Co-op was the first supermarket group in Britain to promise customers that they would be told whenever genetic engineering was used, and although there is no trace of the enzyme in the end product, the cheese is labelled as "produced using gene

Genetically modified foods

do not have to be labelled, and some other vegetarian cheeses made in the same way as the Co-op's are sold without any indication that genetic engi-

Both Safeway and Sainsbury's sell tomato pureus

made from tomatoes modified

so that the enzyme that causes

the fruit to ripen and rot is switched off, delaying soften-

ing. The supermarket companies say that the use of the genetically modified Flavr-neering has been used.

technology".

some drinks and meat prod-Roundup. The herbicide kills all green plants by blocking a Geraldine Schofield of the pathway for nutrients. The substitute gene reopens the pathway, enabling the modi-fied plant — called Roundup Food and Drink Federation says that two thirds of prod-ucts on supermarket shelves Ready soya beans — to resist the herbicide. Farmers can contain soya products. Total world production is more than spray their crops with Round-Most is grown in the United States, which this year planted the soya unaffected. It should genetically modified strain make the growing of soya beans easier, cheaper and more profitable. of the plant for the first time. It will be harvested next month

The beans produced will not be sold as beans, but in a processed form as flour or oil. Professor Derek Burke, chairman of the advisory committee on novel foods and processes, which has given clearance to the new products. says that processing means no trace of the gene, or the enzyme it produces, is present in the final product.

The flours produced by ordinary soya and the genetically modifed form are indistinguishable," he said

His committee recommended that the soya products could be sold without special labelling, advice accepted by ministers and repeated by the European Commission, But for earlier genetically modified foods such as the FlavrSavr tomato, sold as pastes and purées, the supermarkets have adopted informative labels. "Our preference is to label genetically modified products," a spokesman for Sainsbury's said. "We believe customers should have the right to choose."

A spokeswoman for the British Retail Consortium, which represents 90 per cent of the industry, says that it wants consumers to be able to make an informed choice. "Some of our members have contacted the manufacturers to insist that the genetically modified soya must be identified on the label."

But John Ward, of the federation, said: "Having such a label implies there is a difference in the product, when there isn't. You couldn't enforce or monitor the labels. because there is no determinable difference."

The dummy you don't mind sitting beside you: the papier maché models will ride trains to Bridlington as part of a community arts project

By Jonathan Prynn TRANSPORT CORRESPONDENT

SILENT rail passengers who never complain about delays. ask the way to the buffet or try to strike up conversation are to make an appearance on a seaside branch line. The "passengers", life-sized papier mâché dummies, are to be placed on trains beThe model railway passenger as part of a community arts project. Others will stand or sit at station platforms. The dummies will ride on the trains from the end of next month. Some will be dressed in period costumes help to construct them. families who came to Bridlington for their holidays earlier this century. They will be made in a disused parcel office at Bridlington station. Passengers, tourists and local people will be encouraged to Shirley Hester, of the mental bealth charity MIND. which is involved in the project, said: "We hope that people living all along the line will come to help us with the sculptures and even people on holiday for a few days would like to try their hand at making an arm or a foot. We hope it will liven up the station and add to the interest of the journey."

Ken Bray, a spokesman for Regional Railways North East, said: "The models will

Thousands of grouse crash to death on deer fences

By JOHN VINCENT

THE black grouse shooting season opened yesterday with a warning that the gamebirds' survival is threatened by fences protecting young trees from deer. Their rarer and more magnificent cousin, the capercaillie, is even more seriously affected by the tall wire fences and now faces possible

Studies by the British Trust for Ornithology show that the period and only about 10,000 area inhabited by black grouse has shrunk by 28 per cent over the past 25 years. Once common from Scotland to Surrey, black grouse bigger woodland cousins of the more plentiful moorland red grouse - have dwindled from hundreds of thousands last century to about 35,000, mostly in Scotland. The capercaillie's habitat has shrunk by 64 per cent over the same

Chris Mead, of the trust, estimates that 10,000 or more grouse are killed against deer lences each year, more than a fifth of the population. He said: "These wire fences are essential for protecting newly planted trees and areas for natural regeneration. But they are walls of death as far as black grouse and capercaillie are concerned.

"They fly fast and low and are equipped to blast their way through the outer branches of trees without damage. But strands of wire and wire netting are a different matter. Overgrazing of their upland habitat by sheep and deer also plays a part, but it has become clear that the fences are responsible for much of the nationwide decline."

Ian Collier, of the Forestry Authority, said: The real problem is with the deer themselves. A reduction of their numbers to sensible levels would virtually eliminate the damage to young trees as there would be sufficient grazing left on plants the deer prefer to satisfy them." Although listed as an endangered species, black grouse are shot from August 12 until December 10. Some estates ban the shooting of black grouse and capercaillie. Both species have been shot for centuries and the capercaillie had to be reintroduced from Sweden 150 years ago after being hunted to extinction in about 1785.

Wasps fly in late after cold spring

By Michael Hornsby, countryside correspondent

WASPS are making a late arrival, just as devotees of the picnic and the barbecue were enjoying one of the least tormented summers in living

The buzzing scourge of the al fresco meal had been noticeable by its absence, probably because of a cold, damp May which killed many of the queens. Reports of a sudden surge in numbers in parts of southern England over the past few days of hot sunshine ggest that some were simply delayed.

Last August pest controllers were being swamped with requests to destroy wasp nests in attics, garages and outhouses, but this summer business has been slack. Tony Stephens, public relations general manager at Rentokil. said: "This year call-outs have been dramatically down."

George Else, the Natural History Museum's chief hymenopterist — a specialist in bees and wasps — said: 🕰 There have been fewer wasps and wasp nests than anyone can remember. The queens emerged in reasonably good numbers from hibernation but were knocked out by conditions." Britain is home to nine resident species of social wasp. They play a beneficial role by preying on pest insects and pollinating plants. Wasps will normally attack only to defend their nests or if an individual feels threatened, according to Mr Else, who strongly advises against amateur attempts to destroy an active nest. Oueens and their worker daughters can sting repeatedly. Roger Key, an entomologist with English Nature, said: "It is possible that nest building and other activities were set back a month by the cold May. and that we will now see a sharp rise in the wasp population if more queens survived than we thought."

Renewing your home insurance in August or September?

If you are 50 or over, save with SAGA Home Insurance

You will know how expensive home insurance can be, particularly if your insurance company is also having to insure younger, less careful householders. Thankfully, if you are aged 50 or over you can benefit from SAGA Home Insurance - a superior household insurance that is only available to mature, responsible people like you.

SAGA Home Insurance can offer you genuine savings over other policies, while giving you cover that fully protects your home and possessions. So if your home insurance is due for renewal soon, or if you would simply like to find out how much you could save with SAGA Home Insurance, call us today - free.

The Saga Price Promise

If you find another comparable policy at a lower price within 2 months of taking out SAGA Home Insurance, we will refund you the difference.

Saga Services Ltd would like to send you information about services vided by other Saga companies and may pass details to these companies to enable them to do so.

- Cover is comprehensive and low cost
- Free Saga Assist Service -24 Hour Domestic Helpline 24 Hour Legal Helpline
- 24 Hour Glazing Service Discounts for home security
- Free pen with your quotation

Call us today

For your free no obligation quote and a free Saga pen, simply call us on the number below. We will be pleased to answer any questions you have on SAGA Home Insurance.

0800 414 525 ext.3892

Lines open Monday to Friday 9am - 6pm, Saturdays 9am - 1pm

Alternatively, send this coupon to us in an envelope - you do not need a stamp: Saga Services Limited, FREEPOST731, Mtddelburg Square, Folkestone, Kenr CT20 1BR Please tick the type of cover for which you would like a quotation: Mr / Mrs / Miss Initial Telephone No: Answer YES to the following and you could save up to 15% Mrs/Miss: Does your home base an annually Yes 🔲 😘 🗍 maintained burelar alarmi is a 5-lever mortise lock fitted to the No. of Policy Yes 🔲 No 🗇 final exit deor? Are all other external doors fitted with Type of Property: reO val key-operated looks or holts Semi - Detached House: Detached House Are secure key-operated looks fitted to all accessible windows? Yes 🔲 😘 💭 Terraced House: Detached Bungalow: Are you an active member of Semi - Detached Bungalow: Flat Maisonette: a Police Approved Neighbourhord Yes 🗗 No 🔘 Other: Please specify: Approximately when was a built ? For insurance on listed buildings, those of non-standard construction, flats and maisonettes, or if you are the landlot J of 1920-1945 🗖 Pre 1920 🗖 the property to be insured, please telephone 0808 414 525 ext 3892

Dog owners warned after eagle escapes

By PAUL WILKINSON

FARMERS and pet owners have been told to be on their guard after the escape of a large Russian eagle. The handiers of Olga, a steppes eagle with a 6ft wingspan, believe it will be hungry after flying off during a display on Sunday.

When she is hungry small dogs, in particular, could be at risk." said Stuart Pearce, head falconer at the UK Falconry Centre near Thirsk. North Yorkshire, where Olga is kept. He said that Goldie, the golden eagle that escaped from London Zoo in 1965. had attacked a cairn terrier, but that 16-year-old Olga, which is golden eagle, was not dangerous to human beings. It was lifted up to about 2.000ft by a thermal during the show on Sunday. Mr Pearce, 33, said that escaped birds could usually be tempted back by food, but the thermal had carried Olga further than normal and it would be enjoying the cool air of higher altitudes. He thought that prevailing southerlies would carry it north, perhaps as far as Scotland.

"It could be confused after spending hours thermal-hopping. We are anxious to receive sightings." Mr Pearce raised on or

New document

NEWS IN BRIEF

Officers

sacked in

Burundi

Bujumbura: Major Pierre Buyuya, Burundi's new Tuisi

man said.

leader, dismissed yesterday is-the three most powerful mili-tary officers in his ethnically divided country, his spokes-

Colonel Jean Bikomagu, the as powerful army chief-of-staff and previous de facto head of in state, Colonel Pascal Simbanduko, the head of the gendar-merie, and Colonel Gedeon Fyiroko, head of the military at the presidential palace,

were all replaced by fellow

Despite Major Buyoya's as-surances that he was opposed to any expulsions, hundreds of

Rwandan Hutu refugees fled

Burundi yesterday for their homeland. (Reuter)

Convert's haven

Robert Hussein, the Kuwaiti Muslim who lears for his life

after being sentenced to death for converting to Christianity, has been given sanctuary in America. He was forcibly divorced by an Islamic court.

Jakarta: Father Ignatius

Sandyawan, a Catholic priest, has been charged with publicly showing hatred towards President Suharto following

Priest charged

Thousands flee Grozny before Russians attack

FROM RICHARD BEESTON IN MOSCOW

THOUSANDS of desperate refugees flooded out of Grozny, the Chechen capital, yesterday in an attempt to escape the Russian military, which has vowed to launch a huge harrage on the city tomorrow.

As human rights activists and international aid agencies issued a warning of an impending catastrophe that could cost thousands of lives, a human tide of refugees deserted the devastated capital for the relative safety of surrounding areas.

The panic-striken flight was caused by General Konstantin Pulikovsky, the hardline commander of Russian forces in Chechenia, who yesterday ordered all civilians to leave the capital within 48 hours after which he would launch his assault.

"Grozny will without fail be cleared of rebel fighters." said the thickset general, who has been publicly humiliated over the past two weeks by the Chechen separatist victory over his forces.

We do not intend to put up with brazen and barbaric actions of illegal groups which are continuing to shoot down helicopters, carry out bold acts of sabotage and surround Russian servicemen."

Although the commander

Gamid Gamidov, the Fi-nance Minister of the Russian north Caucasus republic of Dagestan, and three other people were killed yesterday when a car bomb exploded in the capital, Makhachkala. Eight people were wounded. There was no immediate admission of responsibility. (AFP) concluded a ceasefire agreement with the Chechen guerrillas only a few days ago, most of the citizens took seriously his latest threats to launch an anack.

The whole city is on its way out," Nina Madayeva said. "We have been in a basement for 14 or 15 days and could not stand it any more."

She was joined by entire families, many of whom were carrying what they could salvage from their homes as they left the city on foot. Those leaving included handicapped residents, one of whom was seen struggling to make it out on a dirt mad in his wheel-

About a quarter of the estimated 200,000 people left in the capital at the start of the recent fighting have now escaped. Many of those who remain are elderly Russians living in the city who are either too old or too poor to succeed in escuping.

Russian liberal politicians and international aid groups reacted furiously to the threat of a new assault and appealed to the authorities in Moscow and to international agencies to stop the bloodshed.

Sergei Kovalev, Russia's leading human rights activist, called on President Yeltsin to intervene in person to halt the attack and demanded that all the politicians and officers responsible for past bloodshed in the breakaway republic be "It is impossible to win a partisan war," he said, "There is only one method to suppress it: to use scorched earth racties. But this would be genocide, the mass destruction of the Chechens."

Merlin, the British medical charity whose relief workers are in Grozny, issued a warning that if the Russian offensive was allowed to go ahead, thousands of civilians would be killed.

"Grozny is facing a whole-sale slaughter of innocent civilians who are trapped in murderous crossfire between intelligence agency, denying a report published last week in

The Washington Post that he wanted to step down in

Considered the most well connected spy chief since Allen Dulles ran the CIA for Dwight

Eisenhower, he is seen as being well on the way to becoming more powerful even than Bill Casey, the notoriously influential director under

in a recent letter to Congress, Mr Deutch said there was "no reason" to replicate the CIA's network abroad. "Indeed." he said, "such a presence would be counterproductive because it would be confusing, duplicative and undermine the ClA's foreign ties". A greater FBI presence overseas, he said, would allow foreign governments to play

one US government agency off

The CIA director, however,

has been thwarted by continuing threats against America from abroad, including the explosion at a barracks in Saudi Arabia which killed 19

American servicemen in June and the apparent bombing of TWA Flight 800.

In his recent report to Con-gress, Mr Freeh warned that America could be under siege

by the millennium when international criminals might smuggle chemical or biological weapons into the country.

of eastern Europe.

against another.

Ronald Reagan.

pher Besse, the charity's chief executive, said. Last year's total destruction of Grozny. which cost 40,000 lives, is threatening to repeat itself." Rendt Gorter, who drove a Merlin medical convoy into Grozny on Sunday, said that it was impossible for the population to leave because roads and bridges out of the city had been bombed and there was no means of transport.

Troops

He described how an old man who had suffered a stroke was evacuated at the weekend as his relations wept because they had no means to escape and feared they would never see him again,

"We found Galina Vasinova. a Russian born in Grozny. who had been shot in the throat while looking for water," the aid worker said. "We offered to take her out of the city, but she answered in a hoarse voice: 'There is no need, I have nowhere else to Even the Russian-backed Chechen Government condemned the proposed military siege. Doku Zavgayev, the pro-Moscow Chechen leader, said that civilians had not been given enough time to untlunkable," he said in the riots in Jakarta on July 27, his lawyer said. (Reuter) Lie test passed

Atlanta: Richard Jewell, the Olympics bombing suspect, passed a lie detector test in which he denied any involvement in the July 27 attack, the Atlanta Journal-Constitution reported. (Reuter) Actress finding

Los Angeles: A post-mortem Hemingway, the actress granddaughter of Ernest Hemingway, was expected to show that she killed herself with an overdose of sedatives.

Peking ducking

Peking: China's capital is sinking by up to 3 in a year because of excessive groundwater use, the Xinhua news agency said. The eastern suburbs have sunk 27.6 in in the past 40 years. (Reuter)

THE battle for control of the Deutch said yesterday that he had no plans to leave the

Kevorkian: suicide help

New doubts raised over 'Dr Death'

FROM JAMES BONE

JACK KEVORKIAN, the controversial "Dr Death" who has attended 35 suicides in America, is under renewed attack after the discovery that his latest patient had previously applied to be legally protected from her husband. Judith Curren, 42, an overweight nurse from Pembroke, Massachusetts, killed herself with a lethal injection in Dr Kevorkian's presence last week. She apparently had chronic fatigue syndrome.

The coroner found no evidence of disease and said Mrs Curren's tiredness could have been due to obesity or depression. He has yet to decide if her death was suicide.

Since her death it has emerged that Mrs Curren had repeatedly accused her psychiatrist husband of physical abuse. She took out a restraining order against him in 1993. Police were called to their home up to nine times this year and Franklin Curren, her husband, was charged with abusing her just three weeks before her death.

He says their arguments were over her planned suicide. "I tried to talk her into feeling there was reason to continue," he said. Dr Kevorkian denies any wrongdoing.

Spies' empire hits back against FBI expansion plans

FROM TOM RHODES IN WASHINGTON

December.

American intelligence community entered a new phase yesterday with FBI plans to almost double its overseas presence in the next four years and apparently leave CIA agents out in the cold.

Louis Freeh, the FBI direc-or, announced that his agency will open new offices in 23 cities, ranging from Singapore to Ankara, and raise its number of field agents from 70 to 129. The programme, expected to cost $80 million (£52 million) and designed to counter a dramatic increase in international terrorism. organised crime and drug smuggling, has been viewed as FBI empire building by members of the CIA, and most particularly John Deutch, its Supported by the State Department, the CIA has said a heightened FBI presence will clash with its own work and detract from efforts to fight domestic crime.

Although such concerns have been swept aside by the determination of both President Clinton and congressional Republicans to appear tough on crime and terrorism in an election year, the battle of the spymasters. Mr Freeh and Mr Deutch, has been barely concealed.

After only 15 months at Langley, Mr Deutch is himself in the midst of one of the most impressive power plays ever seen in Washington. His goal has been to consolidate personal control over the entire intelligence community, consisting of no fewer than 28 separate and often feuding agencies before returning to the Pentagon as Defence Secretary in a second Clinton Administration. However, Mr end Seoul student protest By Nicholas Long

IN SEOUL AND OUR FOREIGN STAFF

AS helicopters sprayed teargas overhead, South Korean troops yesterday stormed a university to end a nine-day occupation by students.

The troops broke through a blocking the entrance of a teaching block and after a battle flushed out about 1,000 students, mostly

About 1,000 students besieged in another block fled into alleys and hills surrounding the Yonsei University campus where they were tracked down. They had earlier threatened to explode gas canisters and dangerous chemicals. in all 3,225 students were arrested, bringing the total held in a week of agitation at the university to around 5,500. Prosecutors said they would detain militant leaders of the protest but would show lenientowards "simple participants". The confrontation had prompted a nationwide hunt for the leaders of Hanchongryon, the student federation which organised the demonstration in favour of Korean unification.

The authorities' crackdown after students had attempted to march to the border with North Korea was followed by eight days of clashes. The police did not use firearms during the protest although they have now been auth-orised to do so.

or plot to bomb cities. The United States has been ravaged for far too long by foreign Criticism of police tactics have come from various quarcriminals originating in parters in the past few days. At the tial or complete sanctuaries abroad," said Mr Freeh, who weekend a delegation of university professors had asked the police to let the students has also proposed new offices in the emerging democracies

Mafia boss beaten up in jail

By James Bone in New York

THE Godfather's image took a beating yesterday with a report that John "The Dap-per Don" Gotti, serving a life sentence for running Ameri-ca's largest malia family, was beaten up by a black man he insulted in jail.

The Daily News, quoting law enforcement sources, said the mob chieftain was involved in a fight in a recreation area at the topsecurity prison in Marion. Illinois. Gotti's lawyer denied the report.

"It was a racial thing," one official said. "John mouthed off to a big black guy. The next day, the black clocked him. He beat him up pretty bad, his face was all bloody. He needed some kind of medical attention. Gotti, who once boasted that he liked jail "better than the streets", has spent 22 hours a day alone in his cell since being sentenced to life without parole on murder and racketeering charges in June 1992.

Gottî: attacked by black inmate he insulted

HOW TO REGISTER FOR THE THISTLE HOTELS SHARE OFFER.

CONTACT YOUR STOCKBROKER OR CALL ONE OF THE FOLLOWING SHARE SHOPS:

City Deal Services 0800 437437

NatWest Stockbrokers 0800 210212

Hargreaves Lansdown 0500 404055

> ShareLink 0345 665665

YorkSHARE 0800 736736

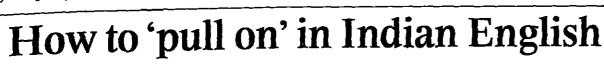

Midland Stockbrokers 0800 210299

> Skipton Building Society 0800 1380800

or write to Thistle Hotels Share Offer: FREEPOST Lon 7338, London EC2B 2LJ

This advertisement has been issued by, and is the sole responsibility of, Thistle Hotels Ple and approved by Baring Brothers International Limited ("Barings") and Merrill Lynch International ("Merrill Lynch"), which are regulated by the SFA, solely for the purposes of section 57 of the Financial Services Act 1986. Barings and Merrill Lynch are acting exclusively for Thisale Hotels Ple and will not be responsible to ansone else for providing the protections afforded to their customers not for providing advice in relation to its proposed share offer. The value of shares can go down as well as up, Persons needing advice should consult a professional adviser. Stabilisation/SIB.

FROM CHRISTOPHER THOMAS IN DELHI

HAVE you just had a lot of botherati from an ultra which has left you nceding a Patiala peg of snake-juice?
This is Indian English, a language drifting happily off by itself in syntax vocabulary and style, and it has come of age as a supplement in the latest edition of the Oxford Advanced Learner's Dictionary. Here we learn that thieves are not fleeing, they are absconding, that taking somebody's aree is to make a fool of him and that babu English is flowery language. A backbencher is not an MP but a lazy student the backhouse is where servants live, backside is the rear of a building, Bollywood is the Hindi film industry and botheration is in common usage in the form: "I am sorry to have put you to this hotherati, sahib".

Cherry merry is a gift of money, chup is an order to be quiet and a competition-wallah is somebody trying to enter the Indian Civil Service, for which the competition is stiff. A cousin brother or compensation is a cousin of approximately one's own age. A fast passenger is an express train. White people are feringhees. A fooding and lodging is a small hotel, a foreign-returned is some-body who has studied abroad and to left and right is to shout loudly. A military meal is one that is not vegetarian. just as a military hotel is one that serves meat. A Patiala peg is a stiff measure of drink, slightly more than a double.

A European with a reputation for omanising is a poodle-faker. To pull is to progress in life ("How are you pulling on these days?" "Oh. pulling on, I suppose.") A rice-Christian is one who converted for material advantage, that is, food. Shirting is material for shirts. as suiting is for suits (thus the sign above tailors' shops: Shirtings and suitings for men) Illegally distilled liquor is snake-juice, speed money is a bribe to ensure quick service, a talkiehouse is a cinema, to tele-tease is to make offensive telephone calls. Something inferior is third-class, an ultra is are often regarded as unacceptable".

someone with extreme views, a wheatish complexion is light brown and a writer is anybody employed in an

Using one's jack is to use unfair help to achieve something. Yaar is a meaningless but ubiquitous word added at the end of a sentence, as in "Let's go for a drink, yaar!". Gazetted holidays are officially notified by the Government. A four-twenty is a cheat, from Section 420 of the Indian Penal Code, which deals with the crime of cheating.

Indira Chowdhury Sengupta, of Jadavpur University. Calcutta, says in a preface to the Indian English supplement that English is still the most important language of education in India and that Indian English has acquired a distinct stock of new words and usages. Schools, colleges and publishing houses in India. however. still take standard English as their model, "and for this reason many words and usages in Indian English

Businessman is fourth to be charged as fears increase of international ring

Belgian police link child sex victims to trade with East

From Roger Boyes in charlero

BELGIAN police are investigating the possibility of a major East-West link in the European child sex business after charging a fourth suspected member of a paedophile ring.

Jean-Michel Nihoul, a Brussels businessman, was hustled into a court vesterday to be charged with criminal association with Marc Dutroux, who has already led police to the bodies of two eight-year-Cold girls and another suspect-

Suspects are being moved around various courts in the area to keep them safe from The defence team for

Nihoul, who denies any connection with a paedophilia

Dutroux's second wife, Miii chelle Martin, has been tt charged with being an accom-n plice in the unlawful abduction and illegal imprisonment e of children.

Many clues suggest that the Belgian paedophilia scandal is part of an international h businessman living in Bel-q gium has been held for questioning, bolstering press speculation that Dutch pornography groups have been spilling over the border.

But the most intriguing lead comes from the confession by Dutroux — a convicted child rapist — that he abducted two teenage girls in Ostend last

The girls, 19-year-old Eefje Lambrecks and 17-year-old An Marchal, were seen talking to a Czech girl in the port shortly before they were snatched. One theory, partly supported by Dutroux's confession, is that the girls were sold into a pornography and prostitution ring operating from Prague. Czech police say there is no

The abduction of Western girls eastwards would run counter to the trend of the past five years, which has seen hundreds of Central and East European girls being sold to Western brothels and nightclubs. But the paedophilia business is more complex than prostitution rackets: adult women, who can work hard as prostitutes, are sometimes traded for abducted children. Leads are being followed up in Germany, The Netherlands and France. Britain has been asked for technical help, in chniques used to detect buried bodies in the murder inquiry involving Fred and groups.

The search for an interna-tional connection partly re-flects a Belgian reluctance to accept that such crimes can be committed by Belgians on their own children. But it is also in the nature of organised paedophilia to move across frontiers and exploit differences in the law.

advice on the structure of

The Belgian police, for the first time, have also pooled their information on 15 child-over the past six years. Seven of those are known to have

There seems to be no indication that Britain is involved in this apparent paedophilia web, although Belgian police have been alert to a possible British connection since the arrest last year of John Stamford. He was head of the Spartacus International Paedophile Group and died during nis trial before a Belgian court

Belgian contacts with the German Bureau of Criminal

Investigation confirm the possible involvement of Russian ren who have disappeared

paedophilia gangs.

been killed.

They are very efficient in the sense that they make the best use of new technical possibilities such as the Internet," Raymond Kendall, Secretary-General of Interpol, said yesterday. "In many cases, national legislation did not foresee the effects of the Internet and lags behind."

Dutroux, who is charged with kidnapping and illegal imprisonment of children, owns 11 houses. Yet he was an unemployed electrician with no legal source of income,

Spotlight on world paedophile network

vast sums exploiting their perversion is to come under rare public scrutiny next week at an international conference in Stockholm.

Coming amid the revulsion sparked by the hunt for victims of a paedophile gang in Belgium, the World Congress Against Commercial Sexual Exploita-tion of Children will spotlight an evil which has flourished with the collapse of communism, the spread of Aids and access to new technology such as the Internet. The trade in child sex is thought to involve more than I million children worldwide.

The conference will be opened next Tuesday by Queen Silvia of Sweden who recently made a rare outburst on television against the laws dealing with sex offences. The Queen, who is patron of next week's gathering, rebuked Swedish politicians for not taking firm enough action and called for the name and photograph of anyone who sexually abused a child to be published throughout Sweden. She said she had seen some pornographic films involving children and was devastated by the images, saying all politicians should watch these films to make them act. "It is the worst thing I have ever seen," the Queen said. "It is torture of the worst kind."

Revulsion at paedophile gangs will find expression at a world forum in Stockholm next week, writes Eve-Ann Prentice. Queen Silvia of Sweden, the forum's patron, calls child sex 'torture of the worst kind'

The forum is likely to call on governments to pass legislation allowing for tourists who commit child sex offences abroad to be tried in their home countries. Only 12 countries -Britain is not one of them - currently allow this, although Britain is expected to pass such a law in the autumn. The gathering is the brainchild of the organisation End Child Prostitution in Asian Tourism, supported by the Swedish Government and the United Nations Children's Fund.

According to conference organisers. the Internet has played its part in the expansion of the sex trade. "With nearly 30 million users, it makes pornography potentially accessible to anyone with a computer and a sharpened in the past few years with a series of reports on youngsters being exploited while in the care of social services. Interpol has also been investigating for some time Europe-wide paedophile networks, especially in France and Switzerland.

The organisers of the Stockholm conference hope that delegates will adopt an action plan which will include asking governments to:

☐ Make money available to combat the sexual exploitation of children and place a high priority on easing the problem:

Promote closer co-operation between groups and promote family life to prevent children falling prey to prostitution and other forms of sexual abuse in the first place; and ☐ Give children immunity from pros-

Two years in jail for Clinton's ex-partner

FROM TOM RHODES IN WASHINGTON

PRESIDENT CLINTON had that could derail his electoral future yesterday when a former partner in Whitewater was sentenced to two years in

Susan McDougal, one of three former Clinton associates convicted of fraud and conspiracy in May, had been found guilty on four charges relating to a fraudulent $300,000 (£193,500) business loan she received in 1986.

The prosecution alleged that Mr Clinton put pressure on an Arkansas banker to grant the loan, a claim the President has denied under oath.

The sentence, which included an order to make restitution of the $300,000, plus interest, to the United States Small Business Administration, sent shockwaves through the White House.

Like McDougal, officials in Washington expected a lenient sentence after the sentencing on Monday of Jim Guy Tucker, Mr Clinton's successor as Arkansas Governor. Mr Tucker was ordered to serve four years' probation after his lawyer argued that the former governor was suffering from a liver complaint.

Yesterday's sentence was seen as a boost for Kenneth Starr, the independent prosecutor investigating events surrounding the Whitewater land development venture.

The prosecution is eager to establish whether the Clintons participated in illegal diversion of funds from the Madison Guaranty bank to

Powell fuels speculation over cabinet post with surprise campaign trip

FROM MARTIN FLETCHER IN WASHINGTON

COLIN POWELL unexpectedly joined Bob Dole on the campaign trail for the first time yesterday amid renewed speculation that he would be Secretary of State in a Dole administration

General Powell, America's most popular public figure, accompanied Mr Dole on a trip to address military veterans in Kentucky just hours after Newt Gingrich, the House Speaker, told Republican volunteers in his Georgia district that "Colin has already indicated he'd accept" the post.

The Gulf War hero insisted that he had been offered a post but had accepted nothing. He did not, however, rule out the possibility. "Anything's open, but right now the more important thing is to get the [Republican] team elected," he said.

Several Dole advisers are known to be keen to strengthen their candidate's electoral appeal by announcing before November's election that General Powell would be part of a Dole cabinet.

Mr Dole's campaign enjoyed another two boosts yesterday. He was handed a potent new campaign issue by a government report revealing a dramatic rise in teenage drug use since President Clinton took office, and three new polls confirmed a major erosion of Mr Clinton's lead following the meticulously stage-managed Republican convention. The Health Department's report on drug abuse showed a 78 per cent rise in the use of illegal drugs by 12 to 17-yearolds since 1992. Use of LSD rose 54 per cent, cocaine 166 per cent and marijuana 37 per cent. A second report showed a 58 per cent increase in emergency hospital admissions for heroin use and 19 per cent for cocaine. Levels of adult drug abuse were unchanged.

The report was an obvious embarrassment to Mr Clinton on an issue of great public concern. He has pared federal drug-fighting programmes since taking office. Last month the White House admitted employing 21 people whose background checks showed recent or extensive drug use. Addressing last week's convention Mr Dole painted a bleak portrait of an America ravaged by crime, drugs and family breakdown. He blamed the Clintons' permissive baby-boomer generation and offered himself as a "bridge" back to an age of stronger values. Polls for The New York Times, USA Today and ABC television showed Mr Dole trailing Mr Clinton by II. seven and four percentage

Miami: A tit-for-tat diplomatic dispute between Washington and Havana has left two diplomats packing their bags and increased tension between the two countries (David Adams writes). Cuba has ordered the expulsion of Robin Meyer, a US diplomat, who monitored human rights affairs at the US Interests Section in Havana. In response Washington gave José Ponce, a senior diplomat, a week to leave the country.

points respectively. In each case, Mr Dole had at least convention lead. Ross Perot, who officially joined the race on Sunday, attracted between per cent and II per cent support.
A Dole campaign spokesman claimed the trend was powerfully in the direction of Bob Dole, Jack Kemp and taxpayers who want a 15 per cent tax cut".

George Stephanopoulos, a top White House adviser, dismissed Mr Dole's advance as "the standard cotton-candy bounce" all candidates enjoy immediately after conventions, and Democrats claimed it would vanish when their convention opens in Chicago on Monday. The New York Times poll also revealed considerable public scepticism towards the centrepiece of Mr Dole's campaign - his promise to cut taxes by $548 billion over the next six years while simulta-neously balancing the budget. While 61 per cent favoured tax cuts in principle, only 38 per cent believed Mr Dole would actually deliver them. 53 per cent said balancing the budget while cutting taxes was impossible, and just 22 per cent wanted lower taxes if that meant higher federal deficits. Mr Dole used yesterday's speech to accuse Mr Clinton of devastating cuts in military spending. Mr Clinton meanwhile signed legislation that would benefit ten million Americans by raising the minimum hourly wage by 90 cents to $5.15 (£3.30) over the

Murdered TV boss, Richard Diack, with his wife Emelia

Scot's widow fails to suppress diary

FROM ROGER MAYNARD IN SYDNEY

THE widow of a Scottishdered in Australia in 1992 failed yesterday to stop publication of a diary which described their deteriorating relationship.

Emelia Bresciani. whose husband Richard Diack was beaten to death in the Blue Mountains near Sydney, had been greatly distressed by the diary's contents, Peter Bodor, her lawyer, told an inquest.

But the coronor, Phil Molan, rejected an application to restrict publication of the diary, found on a computer disc after Diack's death. The Scot, who was 41 and had family in Edinburgh. moved to Australia in the 1970s. He was human resources manager at SBS, Australia's multicultural TV station, where he met Ms Bresciani, Diack married the Peruvian-born journalist, a presenter for the station, in January 1992. But eight victim of an assault while walking in the Blue Mountains. Robbery did not appear to be the prime motive because a valuable watch was still on his wrist when the body was found the next day. Detective Sergeant Graeme Merkel, who headed the inquiry, told the inquest: "The only person identified with a possible motive was Ms Bresciani. But he added: "There is no direct evidence to show any involvement in his death." Sergeant Merkel said Ms Bresciani, 37, was in Sydney on the day of the murder. The officer said that Diack. who had property in Melbourne and Sydney as well as a £150,000 pension entitlement, had clearly been intending to leave his wife shortly before his death. The computerised diary was erased by Ms Bresciani after an SBS employee gave it to her, but it was retrieved

Reagan's 'Western White House' goes on sale for $6m

PERCHED in the California mountains above Santa Barbara, the Reagan family ranch that served for eight years as a 'Western White House" is being offered for sale at a reported asking price of nearly $6 million (£3.9 million).

Ronald Reagan, the former President who has Alzheimer's disease, no longer visits the rustic 680-acre spread where he once rode in the rain with the Queen and took Mikhail Gorbachev, the former Soviet leader, for a ride in a Jeep. "Sadly . . . it has not been used since the onset of his illness," the Reagans' spokeswoman confirmed in a statement.

The Reagans lost a valuable source of income when the former President stopped public speaking and they face mounting healthcare bills because of his condition, their son. Michael, said yesterday. Mr Reagan, a radio talk show host, was hinting that a financial squeeze may have been the main reason for his parents' decision to sell the ranch his father once described as 'close to heaven".

"They do not have any income except investments made in the blind trust when he was the President," Mr Reagan told the Los Angeles Times. "They have never been as rich as people thought they Local estate agents said that

$5 million to $6 million was a steep asking price given Califormia's slack property market and the relatively modest style the Reagans' retreat. Whether offers of that order came in depended on the power of the Reagan name.

High above the Pacific on a narrow, winding road, the ranch boasts oak groves, a meadow and a pond but otherwise is "a pretty basic property", said one agent with a larger ranch listed for half the price.

The Reagans bought the ranch, known as Rancho del Cielo, in the early 1970s, reportedly for $527,000. During the eight-year, two-term Reagan presidency it proved an invaluable public relations tool, allowing the septuagenarian President to belie his age with photo-opportunities of him engaged in vigorous outdoor pursuits, including riding horses and chopping

Mr Reagan now lives with his wife. Nancy, in a mansion in Los Angeles. Their ranch is being sold by Sotheby International Realty.

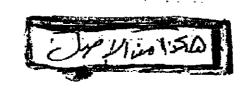

In 3 years it's never been overtaken.

For the 3rd year running, the Hijet – now available in petrol, or diesel, van or pick up – has left its rivals trailing. Once again its class-beating payload, cargo capacity, fuel economy and three year warranty have earned it the 'What Van?' 'Best Microvan' award.

NO-NONSENSE VEHICLES.

PRICE CORRECT AT TIME OF GOING TO PRESS EXCLUDES DELIVERY AND RUMBER PLATES AT £361 70 (EAC. MAT) AND SIX MONTHS' ROAD FLIND LICENCE AT £3

Reagan: used his ranch to display outdoor pursuits

For more information on the Hijer Range please send this coupon to Daihatsu Information Services, FREEPOST 506.

THE DAIHATSU HIJET

West denoun

Iranian evi

death squa

THE . .

J: - -

ٺاله

3: ₁₀₁ -

ing - murge-

flon (_{Torre})

 $A\alpha_{\rm Min}$

W1 h

iu (gara

C^{€L}

Germans accused Of helping Libya make poison gas By Michael Binyon, diplomatic editor, and Peter Bild in bonn THE arrest of two German should be ready for military businessmen on suspicion of smuggling equipment to Libya to manufacture poison gas has confirmed the worst fears of Western intelligence that Colonel Gaddafi is building up a deadly arsenal of chemical weapons.

The German authorities announced in Mönchengladbach that the two men were accused of delivering the latest automation system, which was to be used to mix poison gases, including sarin and soman, two of the most lethal known substances.

The men were identified only by their first names and initials. Udo B. and Detlef C. The city prosecutor said that police were still hunting a third suspect, a Lebanese intermediary named as Berge Balanian. The arrests have deeply embarrassed Bonn. America has long accused Germany of not cracking down hard enough on rogue businessmen helping Libya's chemical weapons programme. The news that Germans have again been instrumental in the manufacture of sarin, a gas developed by the Nazis and used in the Tokyo underground attack, has painful historical echoes.

e network

Gaddafi: complex "part

Tarbunah

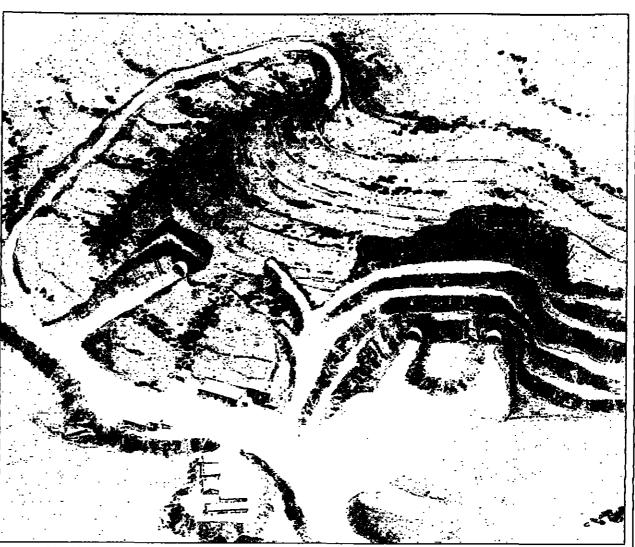

German businessmen were convicted in the 1980s of helping Colonel Gaddafi to build a poison gas plant at Rabta, 40 miles southwest of Tripoli. That plant was damaged by fire in 1990 and has since closed. The same year the head of the company that organised the deal was jailed for five years. Last March a Stuttgart businessman was accused of helping Libya to develop chemical weapons.

Bonn recently relaxed its export rules to allow firms to help in the manufacture of weapons abroad even if they did not know who would use them. But Libya remains on a list of countries to which exports are banned.

The Americans have repeatedly given warnings about Libya's chemical weapons programme. In April, William Perry, the Defence Secretary, accused Libya of building weapons at an underground site and said that America would not rule out a military strike on the facility. John Deutch, the CIA director, told Congress this year that the site, at Tarhunah, 40 miles southeast of Tripoli, was the largest chemical weapons production site in the world.

Libya swiftly denied the claims as "lies and imaginary arguments".

America has released satellite pictures of the site and consulted its allies about how to deal with the threat. Newt Gingrich, the House Speaker

A drawing based on satellite images of the suspected Libyan chemical weapons complex at Tarhunah

War risk warning by Syria

FROM ROSS DUNN IN JERUSALEM

SYRIA yesterday accused Israel of moving the two coun-tries to the brink of another war as both sides conducted weapons tests.

Damascus said Israel was beating the drums of war" and warned Binyamin Netanyahu, the Israeli Prime Minister, that he would be defeated in any military confrontation with the Arab

The remarks coincided with reports that Syria had conducted tests in recent weeks of Scud-C missiles which have a range of about 310 miles and put much of Israel within range. Chemical and biological warneads, which Syria recently purchased from North Korea, can also be attached to the weapons.

The statement appears to have finally deadlocked faltering peace talks between the two countries, which began four years ago.

While playing down the prospect of war or of signifi-cant missile trials, Israel yesterday carried out the first test of its Arrow Two anti-missile

Iranian exile claims death squad threat

THE FORMER Iranian president. Abolhassan Bani-Sadr. claimed yesterday that two terrorist units were planning to assassinate him in Berlin where he is due to testify in the trial of five men accused of murdering members of the Iranian Kurdish opposition.

Mr Bani-Sadr, 63, who has lived in exile in Paris since 1981, said he still planned to appear tomorrow and Friday at the trial of an Iranian and four Lebanese suspected of murdering four members of the Kurdish opposition in a Berlin restaurant in September 1992.

"I have received information from Iran indicating that two terrorist units, one coming from Sweden and the other from another European country, have assembled in Berlin to prepare my assassination." Mr Bani-Sadr said.

"A commando unit originating in Sweden and composed of three people whose nationality I do not know has linked up with a group of five Iranians in Berlin," he said.

The former Iranian president was ousted by Ayatollah Khomeini and has since become one of the most outspoken critics of the Islamic

THE United States and its allies denounced India yes terday for preventing a nuclear test ban treaty from sembly for signature.

regime in Tehran. He said he had recently provided Germany with a detailed report on "the organisation of the terrorist state in Iran" as well as the name of another suspected accomplice in the 1992 Berlin killings. Sadegh Saraskandi, the head of the Democratic Party of Kurdistan in Iran, was one of four Kurdish opposition members killed when men armed with automatic weapons burst into a Greek restaurant and opened fire. Kassem Darabi, an Iranian, is suspect ed of organising the attack. Mr Bani-Sadr claimed that the order to have him killed was issued by Tehran. He said he had passed his information to police in both France and Germany.

"Like all political assassinations it must have had the double authorisation of Iranian President Rafsanjani and the revolutionary guide Ahmad Khamenei," he said.

Opponents of the Islamic authorities in Tehran have accused the regime of organising the murders of a string of exiled political activists, including a total of eight people in France since the fall of the Shah in 1979.

West denounces India

for nuclear pact veto

BALL PENS 20 PACK EXERCISE BOOKS

strikes on countries suspected

American targets.

German police began their investigation last November with the surveillance of two businessmen who owned companies in the Mönchengladbach area. The businessmen were arrested on August 9,

They face a maximum prison sentence of 15 years.

After publication of the American photographs, Colonel Gaddafi said that the Tarhunah tunnel complex in a hollowed-out mountain was part of Libya's irrigation

The six-acre factory, whose cost is estimated at more than £335 million, is hidden 100ft underground and beneath layers of concrete that could withstand a cruise missile or

Leading article, page 15

"smart bomb" attack.

plotting attacks against

DATABANK ORGANISER DB 50Q

1kb telephone ■ 10 digit

Auto shut-off

A4 PUNCHED POCKET 100 PACK

Take advantage of the low prices shown by becoming a Staple

Member, it's instant and can be arranged by visiting or telephoning your local store. All prices shown are Member price

0121 333 5214

DONCASTER

HANLEY

58p EX. VAT 2 PACK Tipp-Ex Natural Fluid

VAT

44 160 LEAF

ANYWHERE!

4 colours Fits a 12° rule

STOCKTON

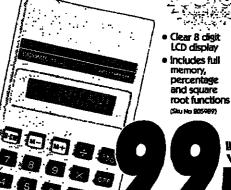

SWANSEA

RINGBINDERS Green

BASIC BOX FILES CENTURION

EASYMATE CALCULATOR TF 231

84p EX. VAT

TEXET FX800 SCIENTIFIC CALCULATOR

 10 digit liquid crystal display 56 pre-progra Random number ke

£3.39 EX. VAT

OPEN TO THE TRADE & PUBLIC 7 DAYS A WEEK

44 countries which must rati-Cheaper Car insurance ADMIRAL Call now 0800 600 800

forces India to be one of the

By Peter Capella in geneva and Our Foreign Staff fy the treaty before it can come into effect and said she could not accept that clause unless the treaty contained a commitment to full nuclear disarmament.

being adopted in Geneva and vowed to bring the pact to the India's concerns are fo-United Nations General Ascused on its neighbours. Pa-At the Conference on Diskistan and China, as well as on computer technology that armament, the Indian Ambassador, Arundhati Ghose, could allow the big powers to develop nuclear weapons formally opposed the treaty proposal. She repeated Delwithout test explosions. his concern that the text Stephen Ledogar, the senior American negotiator. said India's position was insincere: "The real reason is that the Government in New Delhi wants to maintain the nuclear weapons option." The five declared nuclear al manocuvre to bypass India's opposition.

01634 83053

LONDON BECKTON

ON ORDERS OVER £30% 문화

01703 635428 01642 675157

3 PER CUSTOMER

MON-FRI 8-8 * SAT 9-6 * SUN 11-5 OPEN 9-5 BANK HOLIDAY MONDAY

powers — Britain, America. China, France and Russia refuse to reopen talks. But with about forty of the sixtyone countries involved thought to accept the draft treaty, they were trying to rally support for a procedur-

01792 480851 01879 269692 01994 379640 01995 294776 0191 553 2976 01902 637517 01245 267404 01206 574239 01302 322080 01782 907969 CROYDON STAPLES CORNER MANCHESTEE METON KEYNES TIELRO WAKEFELD WASSENGTO WEST SROM 0191 766 5599 0191 707 8373 01494 461795 0121 544 9026 01274 73393 0117 979 8167

0181 594 9635 0181 665 5812

The square's guide to clubbing

Lost in the Jungle? No keys to the House? Follow a few simple guidelines, says Grace Bradberry, and you can slip effortlessly into today's dance scene

HIM Electric blue PVC coated suit with take-fur collar. Jacket £99, trousers £50. Psychedelic print shirt £40. All by Apartment (0171-377 9989). Sunglasses £9.99 Global eyewear. Stylist Peta Hunt; Hair/make-up Fiona Moore. HER Purple wrap top £30, Heyday, available September. (0161-228 6442). White plastic coated shirt £55, The Works (0161-237 1108). Grey plastic skirt £23.99. Street Sister, available end-September (01249 822484), over white satin trousers £90 Savoy Cabbaged (01895 639572) available end-October. Stylist Adrian Clark; Hair/make-up Nicole Jariz Pictures for London Interseason, Sept 1-3 most forbidding strand of British culture is the club scene. To those who go regularly, it is a vibrant mixture of changing fashion and music. To those who don't, it is as elitist as Glyndebourne.

Everybody has a story, often apocryphal, about being turned away. One of the more compelling is that of the sixfoot transvestite doorman who terrorised London clubbers in the mid-Eighties. Anyone with the temerity to question why they had been turned away would suffer the humiliation of being shown their reflection in a pocket mirror he kept hidden in his coat.

If you believe the style press, those days are over. Now is the time for social Rip Van Winthe world of clubs and stop hiding behind the "I'm too square" excuse. "Respect" (for clubbers) and "eclecticism" (in both music and dancers) are the buzzwords.

Even so, novice clubbers will want to remain socially inconspicuous, rather than playing a starring role as the oddballs of the evening. In theory, self-expression is what it's all about. In reality, the club world divides into a wide variety of tribes, each with its

TYPICAL

EXAMPLE

endows Blank PLC

HAMILTON

We have the money to hand.

orget the opera. The own tribal dress and tribal dance. Go to a large "house" club and the girls will be in tiny, shiny dresses, the boys in orange T-shirts and jeans. At a jungle night, boys and girls alike will be wearing combat trousers and tight T-shirts, signalling that this is primarily a dance venue, not a meat market. But really hip boys

DO'S & DON'TS

DO ... Talk about "largeing it" (having a good time) ... Get on the guestlist ... Bare some flesh — midriff is best ... Club through Sunday, taking in an all-day

DONT...Wear a work suit, platforms or heels ... Drink too much alcohol, try and pull or talk on the dance floor.

will be wearing boxer shorts from the American designer Tommy Hilfiger, peeping above their combat pants. Goldie, the Metalheadz DJ at the Blue Note, Hoxton, London, and the most famous exponent of jungle, is pictured in his in Vogue this month. So what's at the cutting-Hamilton Direct Bank, and take advantage of our fixed rates.

A LOAN OF £5,000

1143.35

Let spec Tuesdies

Jr.580.80

41.38.76 (A.CA) 48

NEW REDUCED RATES

12.9% APR'

14.9% APR*

an from £5,000 to £10,000.

£532_32

£312.00

APR‡

12.9%

17.9%

15.9%

QUOTING REF 93005/234N

#Flypical example: II you harror £4,000 user 48 months at £4,9% APR, monthly repartment is £104.3% and the rotal amount payable is £5.250.24.

The grounds and it from a large Mapon of barrows are chairs purpose are calculated. The state are are stated to the blood before the hand the state of the blood before the hand the state of the state edge, what's verging on the houses than a Barratt's estate. UNSECURED PERSONAL LOANS

erywhere.

a genuinely diverse range of dress. Some of the most fashionable claim to have a no-policy door policy. Rotation, a funk and hip hop night that takes place on Friday nights at Subterrania in London's Notting Hill, is one of them. Chris Crooks, the promoter, says that he aims to create a good mix of gender and race and will turn people away on the grounds of dress only if they appear not to have

Only a dozen or so people each week are uncool enough to arrive in work suits. But even they are allowed in. But Crooks highlights another seismic shift in club etiquette that will have passed some people by — cool clubs should no longer be viewed as pick-up joints. "In some clubs it would be okay to grab a girl by the elbow to get her attention. Here it wouldn't be." Persistent badgering of girls to accept drinks or a dance is also frowned upon.

"house" is not underground. or even faintly risky. It's the most mainstream thing there is. Music snobs may describe the music as "handbag", the derisive term for the poppier. chart-topping end of house. We are barely even in the post-disco era. Things have moved on to post post-disco, to square and how can you fit in? The first thing to grasp is that the extent that the whole thing. complete with flares and afro wigs, is making a comeback. The two best-known clubs are Love Train, which has nights in Leeds, Manchester and Blackpool, and Starsky and Hutch, which takes place in three different London clubs. Both are kitsch, with outlandish bell-bottoms de rigueur.

Other retro movements doing the rounds include RoMo Easy Listening, the lounge lizard cult that venerates the music of Burt Bacharach.

But it is the modern era that frightens most people. You probably know what hip hop is, but what about techno. drum'n bass and breakbeat? Whatever the name, most things are essentially a variation on house — there is hard house, American house, European house, happy house, uplifting house ... more

The dress codes vary considerably. If it's a mainstream, "handbag" club, then you may not be allowed to wear trainers. At a hard house club, eccentrically-coloured suede trainers, with stripes a la Seventies Adidas, will be ev-

ome clubs do strive for accepted with grim resigna-tion: long queues, off-handedchanged for a few days. spaces to escape for a minute. of the City of London, is one of the new wave. It's part art gallery, part nightclub and find that the heat in clubs.

At the most sophisticated

coupled with dehydration.

plays havoc with the lips.

There are several relatively unisex products on the market. One of the best is Elizabeth Arden's Eight Hour

Cream Lipcare Stick, (£10.50).

a solidified version of the classic "miracle" cream which was first launched in the Thirties. The packaging - a white tube with a gold band -- is innocuous. However, if you want something that will look cool - even slightly mascu-

R&B: still stands for rhythm and blues, but the new wave of R&B is a mix of hip hop. jazz and soul.

Jungle: fast, driving drum beat, with an emphasis on the base. Very urban, it has emerged directly from London over the past two vears.

Drum 'n' bass: another word for jungle. House: mainstream dance music with a hypnotic beat, it has become the Nineties equivalent of disco.

Happy house / handbag: the chart-topping, poppy end of house music. Hard house: hardcore house music with end of the club world, there are moves to change all sorts of things that have always been ness, terrible loos, no tranquil

The Blue Note, on the edge manager Sav Remzi claims:

The courtesy we're showing people when they arrive has brought out second-generation clubbers who had given

However, this isn't a place where fired traders should pitch up in pinstripes. The clientèle is deeply stylish. "The crowd self-selects because this isn't a club for the passing line -- then try Urban Decay's "Ozone" Lipstick, which is clear with a hint of gloss. The tube is brass coloured, with a silver grey outer case. It costs £11.50, from Space NK in Earlham Street, WC2.

MAKE UP FOR EVER range

by the Parisian make-up artist

Dany Sanz sells exclusively at Dickens & Jones, London, Perfect for clubbing, the 1,500

products include gold, silver and multicoloured evelashes.

and bright yellow, orange and purple eyeshadows.

up going out."

MAKE-UP TO STAND THE PACE

less tune and a more pumping beat.

Ballet. Human League and early Duran

Duran. Trip hop: psychedelic hip hop. Techno: very fast music that samples

Trance dance: ambient music, with very little tune and a hard house beat behind it.

trade," as Remzi puts it. and Goldie. If you happen to So, finally, you've decided to drop any of these names (by go out, bought a copy of the accident, of course) you might local listings magazine and also embark on an in-depth invested in some groovy new discussion of how a particular gear. How do you pick out the genuinely cool clubs from the DJ "builds" - how long it takes for the pumping rhythm over-hyped? The best guide is to give way to the main part of the track.

to look for the name of the DJ. If, after reading this, We're not talking about the another dinner party/film/ evening-on-the-sofa still seems stars of breakfast radio here -Smashey and Nicey's reign is long over - but the stars of the the hot ticket for Friday night. club world who are effectively then just remember the feeling music producers, bringing of dismal lost-youth you get when Champagne Supernova The Face magazine recently comes on the radio with the published its own top 25. cutting gibe, "Where were you gleaned from key figures in the music industry. Names to while we were getting high?" and you realise that 1989 was watch for include Carl Cox, spent in a country pub, wear-Andy Weatherall, Paul ing a barbour, not somewhere Oakenfold, Gilles Peterson in a field off the M25,

Mercedes OWNERS

new tracks from abroad.

COMPREHENSIVE INSURANCE FROM

Quality Rewarded by Low Insurance Exclusive Schemes for Mercedes

Tel: 0121 748 2211 NOW! or Phone your Nearest Branch at the Local Rate on 0345 123111

川Hill House Hammond Over 250 Branches Nationwide

What to wear in the cool school

Club fashions change faster than any other, and the only reliable catwalk is the dance floor itself. Any round-up of current styles must include combat pants in either regular cotton, or nylon. Wraparound shades are still worn up on the head. For feet technically advanced training shoes are popular, as are sports poolside sandals and thong sandals. Crop tops and hipster pants, worn to reveal a taut midriff, are everywhere. So are bootleg trousers. Finally, the coolest clubbers now sport ultraviolet tattoos.

WHERE TO SHOP

Trigger Happy for inflatable jackets. transparent puffa jackets, bright neoprene tops and pastel rubberwear. Available from The Big Apple, Covent Garden. London and independent stockists nationwide. Mail order on 0171-736 0732

Hyper Hyper, a design superstore which carries club design labels including No Such Soul's hipsters and bootleg trousers. Vicky Martin's body-conscious stretch Lycra separates, are particularly popular in northern clubs such as Vague (Leeds) and Cream (Liverpool). Hyper Hyper, Kensington High St, London W8, 0171-938 4343

Dexter Wong for a futuristic space-age look. (Babylon Zoo's frontman Jaz Mann favours his designs). PVC-laced shirts. quilted trousers for men and combat skirts for women. Available from his shop at 17 Monmouth St. London WC2, 0171-240

Sue Rowe's high-neck cutaway stretch dresses and fitted hipsters. Available from Hyper Hyper and selected branches of Miss Selfridge, 0171-434 0405.

Nigel Hall for smarter clubwear. particularly popular with men in northen clubs. Available from Hyper Hyper and outlets nationwide including Harvey Nichols, 0171-235 5000.

Sign of the Times, Covent Garden. London, 0171-240 6694. This season they're going retro.

Name Workshop, 44 Shelton St. London WC2, 0171-240 8746 for stylish pieces including glossy nylon army

Army surplus stores such as Laurence Corner, Hampstead Road, London NWI, 0171-813 1010. for authentic army

Sports Stores for sports sandals such as the Converse One Star thong sandal in coloured suede. Plastic poolside sports sandals from Nike, Adidas or Umbro. Hitech running shoes such as Reebok's Pump Fury cutaway shoes. Available from JD Sports nationwide. 0171-287 8802.

Wraparound sports shades still worn on the top of the head. Popular brands include Oakley, Adidas and Killer Loops. Available nationwide from Sunglass Hut. 0171-493 3044.

Are in Manchester and Liverpool sells its own label and other brands. 0161-831 7454 or 0151-707 1168.

Westworld in Bristol and Cardiff. Stocks Miss Moneypenny's black-andwhite Lycra separates, and men's embroidered and fitted T-shirts by Retro and Technics 8-10 High St, Cardiff,

1

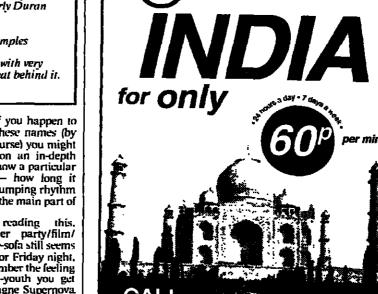

Underground movement: clubbers dance away their Saturday nights at London's Subterrania

Disco: a mix of mostly Seventies soul and Easy listening: Burt Bacharach, Mike

Flowers et al. RoMo: New Romantic Revival - Spandau

Truly obscure.

FANTASTIC PRICES

OPERATORS ARE STANDING BY 24HRS A DAY

7 DAYS A WEEK READY TO TAKE YOUR CALL

Australia Canada Ireland Germany

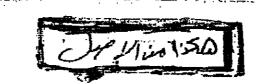

Hong Kong Singapore Japan Taiwan

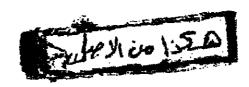

South Africa India Brazil

 FREEPHONE access to our exchange  Pre-payment ensures no bill worries

 Can be used from any tonephone ★ No fuss-quick and easy connection a PLEASE HAVE YOUR CREDIT CARD READY

iat to wear in cool school

Rule Britannia — and the rest of her sisters

ard by the Houses of Parliament, her arm uplifted against the murky swell of the Thames and the muggy London skies, stands the statue of Boadicea, the warrior queen. Brutal in her rebellion, she hurled herself with maddened courage against the shields of her Roman foes, before she was finally defeated and then proudly died by her own hand.

This avenging queen of the native Britons has been upheld as an icon through two millennia. Yet despite her indomitable example, our traditions have shunted women into a secondary role. Royal succession is governed by laws of male primogeniture. These laws are ripe for review. The first-born child of a sovereign or aristocrat should succeed to the throne or the title, regardless of Pericles, that sober Athenian statesman, was one of the first writers to cast women in a negative role. The greatest glory of women is to be least talked about by men, in praise or blame,"

Three Queens have proved to be great monarchs — so why should we fear a change in the law of succession?

he wrote. True, the ancient world did not mind women as a symbol of victory or power. Athena sprang fully armed from Zeus's head with a mighty shout. But it was only Zeus, the Father of Heaven, who might wield the thunderbolt, controlling with its fatal flash his quarrelsome Olympian family.

When women acquired political power in the classical world they were seen as threatening creatures. tures. The avenging Clytemnestra beheaded Agamemnon with an axe, the enchantress Medea slaughtered her own offspring.

Myths such as these shore up an atavistic fear of female potentates: a wariness of the savage female spider who devours her paltry mate, or the wily preying mantis who decapitates her diminutive husband while he copulates.

But the examples of our history should dispel such fears. Three of our queens have proved among the most successful of our monarchs. Gloriana, or Elizabeth I, repulsed not only the Spanish Navy but also all those attempts to press her into a dynastic marriage. Although some now suggest that she won a reputation in advance of her achievements, she maintained relative stability for 45 years. For 64 years Victoria reigned over what was probably the most prosperous and selfconfident era of British history.

In the 20th century and often. parodoxically, in the nations in which they are most suppressed, women emerge as impressive leaders. From Sirimavo Bandaranaike in Sri Lanka. who in 1960 became the world's first female Prime Minister, through Indira Gandhi in India and

Our own Queen is a calm successor for modern times.

Bhutto in Pakistan and our own Margaret Thatcher, women have played a powerful part.

The concept of preferential male succession is archaic. Though the backbone of any monarchy is a tradition which should not be cast aside to accord with any passing mood, the issue of equality is unlikely to fade away until it has been fully accommodated.

The monarchies of Sweden and Norway have already abandoned sexist traditions of primogeniture. At the moment in Britain there is no female likely to inherit the throne. The question is not one of immediate controversy, so it is an ideal time to debate reform.

In many ways there is little reason to change an anyway illogical tradition which has served adequately for hundreds of years. But where laws of succession carry an important effect is where they concern hereditary peerages. Al-though there is no direct link between the laws governing royal succession and the way in which hereditary peerages are passed on, change in the former inevitably carries implications for the latter. It is unlikely that the aristocra-

— the base of the pyramid to which the monarchy forms the

continue to follow a tradition which the monarchy had abandoned. If we assume that Labour Party proposals to bun hereditary peers from the House of Lords come to nothing, one of the chief benefits of change in the laws of succession would be to see more women taking their places in the Upper House, leading to a better balance

as that in 1980, had only

Rachel

one surviving daughter to whom he left his Campbell-Johnston money and es-tates while the dukedom passed to a distant cousin. A noble title and distinguished part of our culture were emasculated. The succession of women would not necessarily mean that the surnames of our aristocratic houses would change. As in the case of Baroness Edith Summerskill, the former Labour minister, children may take their mother's reditary titles would die out. The long history of some Scottish peerages, such as the earldom of Sutherland, and certain English ones - the Mountbatten earldom. for instance - is owing to the fact that they may be passed down the

And the familial disruptions of Henry VIII should not be forgotten, at a time when matrimony seems already a threatened state. The Tudor King famously rid himself of five wives and one Pope in his desperate quest to sire a sturdy son. Bendor, the 2nd Duke of Westminster, married four times in the same quest. He failed. Under today's laws, if the wife of the current duke had not given birth to a son in 1991, the title would have become extinct. Yet the duke has three daughters, too, Perhaps Maria, Marchioness of Ailesbury, foretold more than a fortuitous marriage for a girl when she wrote: "My dear, my dear, you never know when any beautiful young lady may not blossom into a duchess!"

I pray for endurance, not happiness

Mary Riddell meets the author Alice Thomas Ellis, and finds her still an unrepentant rebel stantly in Alice Thomas Ellis's drawing room. This time it Auberon Waugh on the line, with a snippet of news about the incoming Editor of the Catholic Herald. "Oh my Gaad," cries Thornas Ellis, exhaling a waft of Silk Cut smoke towards her nicotine-tinted ceiling. "She sounds like hell, which is doubtless her destination." A throaty laugh, and she replaces the receiver. Yep, that was Bron. He's just saying that the new woman on the Herald sounds like hell." The less than rhapsodic reception for the freshly apnointed Deborah Jones has nothing to do with her unquestionable competence. Jones, however, is a liberal Catholic. Thomas Ellis, one of Britain's leading novelists, is of the orthodox persuasion. The differences between the two camps have, on occasion, made the relationship between God and Satan look cordial.

Three months have passed since Thomas Ellis, then a star Jerald columnist, made a trenchant attack on Derek Worlock, the late, revered (and liberal) Archbishop of Liverpool. The paper promptly sacked her and issued a grovelling front-page apology, but the row smouldered on.

Not that Thomas Ellis fanned the flames. Time, however, has made her less cautious. "Wasn't it ridiculous? I missed all the hoohah and the fun because I was in Italy. The old Church was supposed to be autocratic, but this new mob will not have one word of criticism."

The sensitive souls of modern Catholicism include Cariai Basii Hume, Archdishot of Westminster, who, she believes, had previously taken issue with her traditionalist views. "Oh yes, Hume had tried to get me sacked before. And then the Cardinal claims he's very against censorship. That means he won't have any of the liberal stuff censored only orthodox Catholics.

"They were venemous, the liberal forces." Hume also? "Oh, yes. He's hopping mad with me." So does she consider him the wrong man for the job? Clearly she does. "He's a good monk and a good and prayerful man, but I don't think he's a leader." Indeed, she claims that the only obstacle to his instant removal appears to be the lack of a suitable successor. "The trouble is there aren't very good candidates around at the moment. They're all bogged down in this Protestantised, happy-clappy stuff." Quite the oddest thing about Thomas Ellis is her blend of orthodoxy and irreverence. She is 63, charming and funny, with sweet doe eyes. mink-rinsed hair and an ment. This week's suggestion that heirs to the throne may be able to marry Catholics failed to delight her. It's more dignified not to be a member of that family."

To the outsider, her life seems a divine affair. By day she parks herself on the sofa in the decayed grandeur of her sitting room, dozing and writ-ing by turn. Her new novel, Fairy Tale, betrays none of the indolence and all of the skills of a master storyteller. But she has never been just that.

By night she retires to her boxy bedroom with an iron crucifix above the single bed the cell-like retreat of a once and future nun. A postulant at 19, she left her convent after a year. Now, she thinks, she may rejoin a contemplative order. "I'm still thinking of it. It would cut out an awful lot of fuss and bother. I've got so many beastly, stupid possessions: only memories, for there's nothing of any value."

Sister Anna (Alice is her pen name) would, it must be confessed. make a most peculiar nun. Chainsmoking combined with a passion for wine and Belgian survival kit of the ardent "Darling, in proper Catholicism you can shake such a loose leg. I was brought up among Liverpool Catholics. Out of Mass, into the pub. Drink isn't a problem at all. It's my favourite thing. Bottle of wine. Packet of fags."

chocolates are not the normal

Do not think hers a louche existence, for it is far from that A prodigious worker, she has fought against many setbacks: depression, agoraphobia and personal tragedy. Of her seven children, her daughter Mary lived for only two days, and her son Joshua died, aged 19. when he fell through a roof.

Still her eyes fill with tears at the mention of his name. "It's like having a wound which has been badly cauterised - a burning sensation. Amputation comes to

Two years ago her publisher husband Colin died suddenly of a stroke, leaving her stricken not only by loss but by grief that his last years had been fraught with business problems. "It was very very hard for a time. Colin left no money and a lot of debts, and that was such a worry. I did have a peculiar sort of collapse at one point. I couldn't get off this sofa without help, and I thought my mind was going."

Alice Thomas Ellis: a blend of orthodoxy and irreverence who combines her traditional faith with chain-smoking and a passion for wine and chocolates

Remedies were suggested for her misery. Prozac? That didn't do anything for me. I took thyroxin (a thyroid treatment) too, and I've never felt so bloody miserable in my life." But, for all the sadness, she is not a gloomy woman. rowns of thorns are a trial to be born by a staunch Catholic, and she has done so heroically. Her children, several of whom live with her, clearly adore her, though none has adopted her love of Catholicism; a disappointment, but she has never imposed her morality on them. Sarah, her youngest daughter, is about to get married in a register office.

thing

broke.

Now I am in outer darkness'

and, the wedding over, Thomas Ellis will embark on a The whole long retreat at a monastery in New Mexico — but only if the food and plumbing are up to scratch. After that she expects, sooner or later, to end up in a convent. "I hope I'll be with the nuns in a nice little room somewhere;

not sitting and gawping at Blind Date." Until then she will work at her novels, her journalism, and with her husband's publishing firm, where she is a director. Naturally, she will also carry on fighting what she sees as false ecumenism destroying her Church. "It'll go the way of the Church of England, which is running down. If they loosen all the elastic, there's no point."

On the day before her Catholic Herald tirade, she bumped into the elasticloosener-in-chief. "I said to Cardinal Hume that I knew he was mad with me, and he replied. 'Oh, life's too short'. Then the whole thing broke, and now I'm back in outer darkness."

quarantee and warranties excellence brings.

Free telephone support on all your hardware and

The confidence that buying from an award-winning

Convinced? We thought so.

Visit our showroom!

our friendly sales team free or come and visit our showroom

at 10 Bedford Street, Covent Garden, London WC2,

To find out more about our world-class range of PCs, call

Hours of business:

12.36 pm + 6.36 pm Menbays | 9.30 am + 8.36 pm Tuesday + Friesy 13.00 am + 4.68 pm Saturdays | Closed Sundays and Bank Helidays

software for as long as you own your PC

Fortune 500 company with a reputation for

Sometimes it must occur to Thomas Ellis, as she sits and smokes on her battered old sofa during her days of inner darkness, that life is actually

"I do see it as a vale of tears, but you just have to bloody get on with it," she says briskly. "It's pretty pointless to pray for happiness. What you have to pray for is endurance." A quality which - as the Cardinal will have noted she possesses in abundance. • Fairy Tale is published on and tells you all you need to know to avoid making an expensive mistake.It explains the differences between analogue and digital. How to select the right tariff. Which model to choose. What the real costs are. The pittalls to avoid. And how to ensure you get the best mobile phone package for your particular needs. The Cellphones Directory spells it out clearly, concisely and honestly. Please call now quoting ref 8020 for your free 24 page colour copy by return.

The name to trust in telephone shopping FREEPHONE 0500 000 888

£999 (£1207.90 inc VAT and Delivery)

http://www.uk.gw2k.com

Gateway 2000, Clombaugh Industrial Estate, Dublin 17, Ireland

Configuration and prices are pulper to chapter without busine.

(1)1906 Gateway 2000 Europe, CrystalScan, black-out-white spot design, "G" logo.

"You've got a friend in the business' Jungus, Frankly PC'and Gateway 2000 me trademarks or extend grademarks of Gateway 2000 in the The bush busine Logo, batel, Pennents and Overflows so trademarks or repeated antiferrants of land Comparation.

"Industry standard practice is to meastre monetons many the CRT size.

Actual vacturing areas can be approx. 1.2" less.

Alan Coren

Perhaps the motorway driver's last resort should be his first nometh the hour, cometh the man. It must, of course, be the right man at the right hour: had it been, say, the in-fant Isaac Newton watching his mother's kettle-lid rattling up and down, there is scant chance that his observation would have led to the 8.14 from Orpington, nor may we be any more confident that had a Virginian potato fallen on Walter Raleigh's head, the world would have ended up with gravity rather than chips. For while serendipity has so often demonstrated herself to be the true mother of invention, she has always required an obstetrician who knew what he was about.

How very fortunate, then, that the man who cometh down the MI at the hour of 8.40am on Monday not only listeneth to the Today programme as he cometh, but also, this being the right hour, suddenly findeth himself fancying bacon, eggs, sausages and fried bread, not to say a grilled tomato or three on the side. For convened at the Today programme are two earnest spokespersons. one from the RAC and one from the Council for the Protection of Rural England; and what they have convened for is to argue the fraught toss over the RAC's advice to family motorists in this jammed holiday season to avoid taking motorways to their destinations and take rural roads instead. Unsurprisingly, the CPRE lady is deeply agitated by this, and, no less surprisingly, the two factions are still at shrill loggerheads as their listener, ten miles north of London, spots that the sign for Scratchwood Services has a knife and fork on it. So he leaves the motorway, switches off the debate about the preferred course for the inevitable destruction of his heritage, parks in the last of several hundred spaces, and, negotiating the teeming families scuttling to and from all these serried vehicles, takes his arteries into the Welcome Break restaurant for a welcome furring.

And he is just mopping up the last of the cholesterol with the last of the stodge when two children sprint in and begin nagging the life out of the couple at the next table: the little boy wants more money for the amusement arcade, and his older sister wants more money for the shop. The father says no they have to be on their way, at which the little boy — mark these words, history — cries: "Why? We like it here."

And do you know what happens next? An apple falls. A kettle rattles. We like it here. Slowly, as in a dream (and why not, for that is what he is suddenly in) the eavesdropper gets up, pays his bill, walks out into that brass August sun which throughout the queendom is blistering down upon a million cars grinding as many suffering families through the suffering landscape to countless Why? They like it here.

t least, they very soon would, if the dream were realised. For what do the great British majority require for their annual hols? They do not go to Spain for Spain, nor Greece for Greece, let alone Turkey for Turkey. So, suppose Scratchwood Services offered not a mere hundred cots for conked-out drivers but a thousand wellappointed rooms for fun-seeking holidaymakers, plus a brace of giant swimming pools, a golf course, a casino, a safari park, a boating lake, a go-kart track, six tennis courts, a funfair, bars, ballrooms, shopping malls, and all of this but half an hour from London, what then? And what, the dream continues, of Knutsford Services, as near to Manchester, or Corley Services, as near to Birmingham, or any of umpteen such cur-rent blots athwart each British motorway, serving our every conurbation? Suppose all these were gloriously transformed? Not only would no rural blight be involved (the present facilities were, as you know, all built under the caring auspices of the Eyesore Trust) it would be reversed: we should see imported forests, artificial skislopes, ersatz waterlands, fresh-populated, what's more, with trekking ponies, ornamental ducks, a wallaby here, a peacock there, farmed trout leaping in the floodlight-dappled fishing-pool, IVF grouse hurtling from prefabricated gorse . .

While elsewhere, greenly, pleasantly all England would lie protected. I got back in the car, switched on Classic FM, and, would you believe, they were playing William Walton? I tell you, this was a major hour.

Peter Ackroyd finds himself transported into the past, but loses himself in the mysteries of his own mind

Something odd and perplexing happened to me the other night. I have realised for two or three years that it is possible to direct one's dreams; once one realises that one is in a dreaming state, it is easy enough to create situations or events which then manifest themselves with a reality far beyond the power of what is termed "virtual reality". There is a literature upon this phenomenon. A few weeks ago, for example, quite by chance I was sent an essay entitled "The Dreaming Attention".

Then, very recently, it occurred to me that this faculty (which no doubt all possess) might be tested or widened in interesting ways. And I determined to try an experiment at the earliest possible opportunity. So, a few nights ago, I found myself in a dream which I knew to be a dream. At an appropriate moment in the proceedings I said, "I want to be taken to the 18th century". And there, without the slightest lacuna or hesitation, I was. Or, at least, seemed

I was walking down a street, or a long passage which was opened at one side. Of course there must have been elements of a dream landscape embedded within this scene, but I remarked to myself that the stone exteriors, the windows and the dress of the people seemed absolutely authentic. It was, to be specific, the early 18th century. At one point I remembered being informed that I was in Hendon. I asked to be taken to the pesthouse or hospital - at which

n the general election of January 1906, the Tonbridge constituency (which then included Tunbridge Wells) was lost by the Tories. This was an unheard-of event, never since repeated - though now perhaps once again a possibility, in view of the Liberal

Democrats' capture of Tunbridge Wells in the recent local elections. On the earlier occasion, the 17-year-old Fenner

Brockway, later a famous figure on the Left, acted as Liberal sub-agent in the division. After the poll was declared, he helped to drag the victorious Liberal candidate's carriage from Tunbridge Wells to Tonbridge, where it was welcomed by a large crowd with torches.

In every part of the country, Liberals were celebrating an overwhelming electoral triumph that gave them a Commons majority of 243 over the Conservatives alone, and an overall majority of 130. With their Irish Nationalist and Labour allies they had a majority of 356, but the beauty of their position was that they did not need allies.

They had fought the election as the governing party, since the Tory leader, A.J. Balfour, had resigned at the end of 1905, on a tactical calculation that proved entirely mistaken. It was his belief, or anyway hope, that his

Campbell-Bannerman, would have difficulty forming a government, and that splits and weaknesses in his party would

In fact, Campbell-Bannerman lost no time in forming a strong Government,

asked for a dissolution and then secured an overwhelming mandate. Balfour himself was one of the many Conservatives who lost their seats in the election.

The really damaging split was on his own side, and this was doubtless a major cause of the Tory débacle. Since

Gladstone's conversion to Irish Home Rule in the middle of the 1880s, the

Conservatives had been in power for most of the time, with Liberal Unionists

as their allies. Conservative and Unionist, or just Unionist, became the party's

In 1903, however, the leading Liberal Unionist and Colonial Secretary.

Joseph Chamberlain, launched a campaign which divided the Tories as fundamentally as the Liberals had been divided by Home Rule. He called for the reintroduction of tariffs, partly to fight the competition of protectionist powers such as Germany and the United States, partly to raise money for social reform, but above all to enable preferences to be granted on Imperial goods, so consolidating the British Empire. This would have meant the end

Tariff reform was an issue that split

the Tories while uniting the Liberals.

During the half-century since free trade had been established in Britain, many in all classes and all parties had come to

of free trade.

books, which will be upon us this autumn. They describe the adventures of an 11-year-old princess

My interpretation of dreams: a time machine

they were the same thing. There the pesthouse was before me. I entered it, but the stench was so strong that I retched and rushed outside. There the

Yet it had only seemed to end, and I realised soon enough that I had returned to a simpler dream state. So I decided to try again and, this time, to make a more precise request. I was walking up a staircase, and said: "I wish to be taken to 1858." A door appeared before me. I opened it and I was within a mid-Victorian interior where the carpeting and furnishings were, to my eye, quite genuine. I walked into another room, and found it to be a study. The items upon the desk, and the furniture, were again right in detail and general effect. A woman came into the room, who seemed to know me very

"Whatever are you doing back so early?" she asked me. I replied that I needed some air, and wished to be taken outside - for the simple reason that I wanted to see where this Victorian dwelling was situated. As we went down a staircase I asked her. "If you were to write an essay for a periodical, how would you describe the area where you live?"

"West London, of course." "But if you had to be more precise?"

I left the house and there, to my astonishment (and, I must say, slight unease) was a street of the mid 19th century, with the doors, façades and areas exactly as they once had been. My dream ended rather abruptly when a late-20th-century London taxi pulled up.

These were the two dream sequences which have puzzled me. I do not for one moment believe in "reincarnation" or "regression", and the origins of these dreams may be more interesting. What is this faculty or aptitude of the brain - the dreaming mind - which is capable of creating what seems to be an authentic past? It seemed so real that in the pesthouse I retched. The furnishings of the Victorian house were detailed and complete. How was it achieved?

There is of course a wealth of dream literature in the English language. from Langland's Piers Plowman to Chaucer's Parlement of Fowls, through Bunyan's dreams of the pilgrim's progress and Alice's dreams of wonderland, to Coleridge's Kubla Khan and De Quincey's fervid dreamscapes. Yet these tend to be contrived and highly controlled exer-cises in creating a plausible structure for the material of dreams.

What was so odd, and tantalising. about my own experience was that I was suddenly brought into the presence of a palpable reality which could have been reated only out of the perusal of old books and pictures, letters and diaries. It is a fearful experience in the sense that I had entered a past so detailed and real that, for an instant, it was as if I might never be able to leave it.

The direction of a dream, then, is in no way similar to the novelist's control of a fictional narrative, simply because the reality of the people and the buildings viewed in sleep is so intense and immediate: they seem to dwell in their own extrinsic space and are utterly imaginable in advance of the experience

So we must return to the power of the human brain, itself the product of thousands of long and almost dreamlike developments. One other sleep experience may be useful here. Between dreams I compaires find muself in the dreams. I sometimes find myself in the presence of the mind itself, displaying its capacities in an endless displaying is capacities in an endless display of spectra, signs, patterns, geometrical symbols and rapidly changing images. These are not the whorls and colours of hypnagogic imagery which generally occur just before sleep, but a vast and apparently endless continuum of intricate activity which seems almost to be playing with its own variety. Mystics and philosophers have been suggesting for many hundreds of years that the mind is an image of the universe — that indeed it is the universe. Is it too foolish to suggest that it harbours images of the past which are accessible to those who request them?

It has remained, and no doubt will remain, a mystery. One conclusion, at least, can be reached. The Freudian theory of the dreamer as the passive recipient of unconscious dramas or desires is mistaken. If it is possible to direct or control dreams, then they cannot be the product of overwhelming interior impulses. The true explanation escapes me; but these journeys to the past remain a curiosity. I have a few experiments still to attempt. I intend to ask to be returned to the early 16th century, to the lifetime of the subject of my latest biography. Thomas More. And what, then, if one asked to be shown the future?

Crushed by a landslide

John Grigg compares the Conservatives' prospects for the next general election with their worst ever defeat, in 1906 regard it as indispensable to the country's way of life. In particular, it was seen as necessary to keep the price of food down. Chamberlain's policy could easily be denounced as a policy for taxing food. Balfour did his best to unite the party on a compromise programme, but could not avoid an appearance of confusion and disarray. The Liberals, on the other hand, were able to go to the country as defenders of the economic status quo. Free trade provided them with a good conservative cause, and it was this more than anything else that turned opinion decisively in their favour.

So why is the 1906 election generally regarded as a radical watershed? Its consequences were, indeed, more radiIN OPPOSITION cal than many voters can have expected or intended. The electorate was still far from democratic. No women and only about 60 per cent of men had the vote. Liberal politicians tended to be considerably more advanced than Liberal voters.

What was called the "new Liberalism" was gaining ground among party activists. This was a Liberalism that believed in using the power of the State to combat poverty and improve "the condition of the people". Nearly two out of three Liberal candidates in the election mentioned old age pensions which were introduced in 1908 as the first stage in a programme of social reform associated, above all, with the name of Lloyd George — the basis of the modern welfare state.

How does the political scene today compare with 1906? Now as then, a Conservative Government, after a long period in office, is faced with the likelihood of overwhelming defeat. Now as then, the Tories seem divided and unable to control events, while the main opposition party appears to have regained its confidence and solidarity. Another point of resemblance is the

In 1906, the Liberals gained 1.2 million (there were still seven-year Parliaments). But the Tory vote also rose substantially, since the turnout increased from 75 per cent to 83 per cent. The popular margin between the two main parties was only 300,000, out of 5.6 million votes cast. Then as now, the "first-past-the-post"

Lib-Lab factor. At the beginning of the century there was a secret understanding between the Liberals and the infant Labour Party, which had the effect of maximising the anti-Tory vote and preventing the election of Tories where that vote might have been split. One consequence was the election of 30, Labour MPs in 1906, a phenomenon. viewed by Balfour with special foreboding. Today there is no pact, overt or covert, but there is a convergence of policy and an apparently increased tendency of Liberal and Labour supporters to vote tactically, to the Tories' disadvantage. The effect, therefore, may ust as there was new Liberalism in 1906, so there is "new Labour today. But the two are very different. New Liberalism was concerned with helping the poor, who then formed a majority of the population but still a minority of the electorate. New Labour is concerned with reassuring the relatively well-off, who comprise a majority of both the population and the

BRMANA

₹...

The European Union today divides the Tories, just as tariff reform divided them in 1906. But the European, issue divides Labour no less profoundly. despite a superficial show of unity, whereas the Liberals in 1906 were genuinely united in defence of free trade-What of the leaders? Again there is a great contrast. Balfour was one of the most intellectual of British Prime Ministers (author of A Defence of Philosophic Doubt, among other works) and also one of the most privileged, succeeding his uncle, Lord Salisbury, in the office. ! John Major is neither intellectual nor privileged: no Labour leader has come from a harder background. Tony Blair is a strong and charis-matic opposition leader, differing in this from Campbell-Bannerman, whose fitness for the premiership was doubted. even by many on his own side until he proved himself in the job, though he died in office only two years later, to be succeeded by Herbert Asquith. Despite Campbell-Bannerman's lack of charisma, he was tougher than he seemed, and he had Cabinet experience. If Blair, who entered Parliament only in 1983, becomes Prime Minister next year, he will match the first Labour Prime Minister, Ramsay MacDonald's feat of reaching top votes over the previous election, in 1900 electoral system flattered the victors. Tomorrow: John Charmley.

Sitting comfy

Duchess of York is preparing to bare her soul to America's softest television interviewer. Diane Sawyer, who presents ABC Television's Prime Time Live, has been courting Sarah Ferguson for several years. Now the wooing has paid off, with the Duchess agreeing to a chat in November, to coincide with the release of her autobiography, for which she received an estimated

Sawyer rose from being a weather girl to be a mouthpiece for President Nixon and then a big-name journalist. But do not expect the friend Emily. As they say out West, rocket science, it ain't.

The Duchess and the interviewer: playing softball

 Nepotism naturally has no place in Pakistan's cricket establishnotorious interviews given by the Prince and Princess of Wales. ment, although its Under-15 side smacks of great Pakistani players Not only is there nothing about the Duchess which could shock of the past. The team sent over to compete in the Under-15 World Cup at Lord's yesterday was cap-tained by Faisal Iqbal, the nephew anyone any longer, but as part of her divorce settlement she was instructed not to blab about her of Test batsman Javed Miandad. Also in the side were the sons of leg-spinner Abdul Qadir and of marriage and the Royal Family. What is more, Sawyer is less Jer-Majid Khan, now chief executive of Pakistani cricket and cousin of emy Paxman than Richard and Judy. More likely, the Duchess will imran Khan. froth about her two new children's named Amanda and her American

Ad fab

THE GOVERNMENT'S shameless decision to reward the advertising honcho Maurice Saatchi with a peerage leaves the new lord with two problems: first what to call himself, and then what to do about his dress code. Lord Saatchi of Baghdad, his birthplace, is impossible. Lord Saatchi of Charlotte Street, home to the Saatchi & Saatchi HQ in the 1980s, might smack too much of heady, over-expansionist flash. Lord Saatchi of Staplefield, after the Sussex village where he lives, is

As to his clothes, Saatchi is farn-ous for only ever wearing black and white, down to his black suede shoes. When he is introduced to the House of Lords, however, he will, horrors, have to wear the deep

Those who murmur that Saatchi may feel awkward about the honour are contradicted by Stefano Hatfield, editor of the advertising trade rag Campaign: There were years when the accounts were never fully paid by the Tories. The Saatchis were very accommodating." In short, Saatchi felt the honour was more than his due.

 John Major has commissioned a photographer to assemble a port-folio of casual family snaps. Sarah King, a jumpy little woman who insists she takes pictures rather than snaps, talks confusingly of her latest commission. "I connot confirm or deny that I am doing it, but I

Saddled up WITH pollution prominent in the news and the Government doing its utmost to encourage the use of bicycles, spin-doctors at the Department of Transport are faced with a problem in John Bowis, the junior Transport Minister. Will he be able to step into the cycling shorts of his predecessor Steven Nortis and pose for photographs on behalf of environmentally friendly travel?

Bowis: spokes man?

Although no oil painting. Norris gamely used to pose for the cameras in tight-fit cycling gear. Bowis, a larger man, is not exactly Lycrafriendly, and aides admit that until a strict dietary regime is implemented he is unlikely to be making any bicycle photo-calls.

Tim Allen, the boyish press officer in Tony Blair's office. has taken offence at my suggestion that he is simply clinging onto the shirt tails of new Labour by buying a house in Tuscany. "I haven't been buying anything out there been buying anything out there because I already have one," he says. "I was born there - long before new Labour came into existence."

Inside view

THESE hot August days are unsettling for staff at BBC Wales. When John Birt, the Armani-clad Director-General of the Corporation. isn't pacing the corridors of its headquarters in London's White City, he heads for a little relaxation to his house in the Brecon Beacons. There, he walks the hills and settles down afterwards to a tumble; of sparkling Brecon water or even an iced glass of Chablis in front of the television. And he lets the local staff know what he thinks.

"I see the pollution levels are up again"

"It's very unnerving for them."
says a BBC insider. "Someone from BBC Wales was complaining about it only yesterday. They dread his walking breaks." To settle their nerves, staff have adopted the mantra from London concerning the new BBC Chairman Sir Christopher Bland: "Bland is grand."

Gummer's best-laid plans face dirty future

When the apparently limitless desire for personal mobility comes up against the alltoo-limited ability of the environment to shrug off more insults, the Government has some awkward decisions to make. Today John Gummer, the Environment Secretary, will admit that traffic pollution is a serious health hazard which may be hastening the death of thousands of people every year. He will set new limits on exposure to a range of pollutants, and then tell harrassed local authorities that it is now their responsibility to enforce them. The police will lend a hand, if only the Home Office can be persuaded that this is an appropriate use of police time. A hollow laugh before a croak would seem the only appropriate response.

Governments do not have a distinguished record in dealing with vehicle pollution. When the Clean Air Act of 1956 liberated the cities from the smoke and sulphur dioxide of coal-burning, governments of every colour preened themselves at their success for a generation. Meanwhile a new threat was creeping up on them unawares. Anyone watching the experience of American cities. especially Los Angeles, might have suspected that traffic pollution would become a threat here too. But officialdom was slow to acknowledge it. Monitoring was unwisely neglected and research left undone. Motorists were advised that if there was a problem, it came from petrol-powered rather than diesel vehicles; the dirty exhausts of buses and trucks had no implications for human

New evidence suggests this was very far from the truth. The particles in diesel exhausts are now seen as the worst villains of all, able to penetrate deep into the lung, provoking a defensive response which can hasten the death of vulnerable people, especially those with heart or lung conditions. Nor is it possible to point the finger only at obviously dirty exhausts. Small particles do not appear as black as larger ones: it is possible that even apparently clean diesels may be doing a disproportionate share of the damage. The motorists who turned to diesel because of its green credentials have been cruelly mocked by this change of opinion.

It is true that the new evidence is largely inferential. It does not, for example, appear to be true that vehicle pollution is responsible for the rapid growth of asthma, since that is manifest both in cities and in rural areas. It is more plausible, on present evidence, to argue that pollution provokes asthma attacks in people who have already developed the disease. Likewise, the evidence that particulates are associated with an increased risk of death from heart disease is based on the crude instrument of epidemiology, measuring the deaths in cities during pollution alerts and comparing them with rates when the air is cleaner. Such evidence, however, is as good as we are likely to get.

The new plans to be unveiled today will set limits for eight different pollutants, including particulates and ozone. The limits will be part of a ten-year plan aimed at keeping British cities within the limits, for instance by restricting areas to pedestrians and rerouting traffic. Mr Gummer deserves credit for putting forward these plans, the first of their kind in Europe. There must be doubt about, however, how effectively they can be implemented. Britain has one of the highest densities of cars in Europe; persuading people away from cars will be very unpopular. The Government may hope that new technology, including particulate traps, can make diesel vehicles safer. But the evidence of the past is that every new technology is in vain chase after the effects of traffic

GERMANY'S BLIND EYE

Trade with terrorist regimes needs strict rules and a long spoon

The arrest of two German businessmen on suspicion of helping Libya to build a poison gas factory underlines again the ruthless nature of Colonel Gaddafi's regime. More embarrassingly, it also highlights Germany's failure to take proper steps to control the sale of machinery and deadly equipment to rogue regimes intent on mass destruction.

This is not the first time that German businessmen have been arrested for involvement in Libva's chemical weapons programme. No wonder the Americans are contemptuous of European promises to crack down on international terrorism; no wonder they insist that only sanctions on companies doing business with such regimes will curb the trade in terror.

The scale of German involvement, the failure - despite Bonn's repeated assurances to block loopholes in existing export bans and the impunity with which the men adapted and shipped out the equipment point to serious lapses in German counter-intelligence. The record of German industry in profiting from dictators is extensive; but the involvement in plans to manufacture sarin.
a poison gas invented by the Nazis, should send a chill throughout the country.

Politicians in some of Germany's neighbours, and especially in Israel, will point to the numerous cases of German, or former East German, involvement in weapons programmes that could threaten Israel. From the rocket scientists employed by Nasser to the engineers who helped Iraq to extend its missiles' range and the businessmen who built Libya's Rabta poison gas plant German involvement in Middle East weapons programmes has been controversial. Of course, not only Germans have sold arms to dubious regimes: Britain, too, has profited from such a trade, as the arms-for-Iraq scandal revealed. The difference is that Germany continues to give rogue regimes the benefit of the doubt. Bonn's insistence on maintaining a dialogue with Tehran and others, a legacy of the feeble policies of Hans-Dietrich Genscher, has led to such absurdities as the formal reception of Iran's intelligence chief by Bernd Schmidtbauer. Chancellor Kohl's powerful intelligence supremo. There does not seem to be sufficient determination in Bonn or in the boardrooms of leading German companies to confront governments known to support terrorism - especially if there are profitable export contracts in the offing. Herr Kohl has committed himself to helping end international atrocities as firmly as any Western leader. The minimum that he needs to do now is to improve German counter-intelligence. Germany has a number of laws defining what may or may not be exported. Libya remains firmly on the embargo list despite a recent weakening of some of the restrictions. Responsibility for policing export embargoes, however, appears to fall too often between the federal and state governments.

If, as now appears from recent reports, the BND, Germany's foreign intelligence service, was fully aware of the delivery of equipment to Libya, then many questions in Germany should follow. Did exports go ahead knowingly? Was part of the Government secretly encouraging contacts with Libya? Has Bonn now got a potential Matrix Churchill scandal on its hands? The Americans, and other allies, will be watching the fallout closely. No chances should be taken with a regime as unstable and malign as that of Colonel Gaddafi.

INSIDE THE TOMB

Welcome to the most Victorian mausoleum of them all

This Bank Holiday weekend the public has an opportunity to see inside the most private and peculiar British royal monument. In order to give wider access to the Royal Collection, the Queen has directed that the mausoleum at Frogmore be open from Saturday to Monday. Previously Victoria and Albert's private tomb has been open for only one inconvenient day a year, the Wednesday nearest to Victoria's birthday, May 24. Accordingly it has been little noticed. The interior of the mausoleum is rarely photographed because of the long shadows cast by the Victorian taboo and extravagance about death.

Thomas Browne, the old prose poet of mortality, observed that man is a noble animal, splendid in ashes, and pompous in the grave. Like any mausoleum worthy of the name, Victoria and Albert's at Frogmore offers both splendour and pomposity. The Queen summoned her Uncle Leopold's architects and the spirit of a thirteenth century Italian church. Albert's influence can be seen in the homages to Raphael, the greatest artist, in his view, who had ever lived. Those who look up - attempting to see the view intended for the occupants - see clouds and gold stars on high. But the Victoria and Albert Mausoleum is modest, it must be said, in comparison with the great edifice that gave it its name. When King Mausolus of Caria died in 353 BC, his widow Artemisia built him a memorial at Halicarnassus (the modern Bodrum) that became one of the Seven Wonders of the ancient World. It included 36 Ionic columns and a pyramid that was more than 130 feet high. His statue and sculptures from the mausoleum, following an immortality-beating earthquake of the fifteenth century, came to rest in the British Museum in 1859, appropriately enough just two years before Albert's death.

Subsequent builders and occupants of mausoleums have carried on his tradition. The Taj Mahal and the mausoleum called Hadrian's Tomb, now the Castel Sant' Angelo in Rome, are not inconspicuous buildings. In their mausoleums, Frederick William at Charlottenburg and Napoleon III at Famborough were also defying death by saying, "Look on my tombs, ye mighty. and remember."

Victoria and Albert's grand mausoleum at Windsor has marbles of many colours and Anglicised pastiche of Italian masterpieces. But it also sends a thoroughly Victorian message of domestic order, privacy and selfconfidence. Victoria's effigy was carved at the same time as Albert's, and then waited 40 years to be back with him again. The observant tourist can spot the join.

The Queen and her Prince Consort are well remembered in the great national institutions they encouraged, the literature they inspired (some of it Victoria's own letters), and the stable tradition they handed on. Even a mausoleum is a poor substitute for life. But Victoria and Albert's mausoleum is a unique symbol of the higher Victorian values, well worth the visit.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

1 Pennington Street, London El 9XN Telephone 0171-782 5000

Poor support for British invention

From Sir Christopher Cockerell, FRS Sir. The story of Sir Frank Whittle and the jet engine (obituary, August 10; let-ters, August 15) is sad reading. He was treated shockingly both by the Establishment and by industry, a story that has happened so often before. Lord Kelvin in 1896 stated: "I have not the smallest molecule of faith in air navigation other than ballooning." A few years later along came the Wright brothers. Parsons went broke twice in antempting to launch his steam turbine, which now generates most of the world's electricity. Marconi very nearly went broke in trying to launch wireless.

Baird invented and demonstrated a mechanical system of television, and having alerted the world to it, died in a garret after a lifetime of work. We were the first to produce a really workable computer with a useful memory: and the Americans came over, saw it, went back, and created the world's leading computer industry. An Englishman invented a successful mechunically-controlled hydrofoil boat and spent his life furthering it, but the big battalions came in and he suffered like Baird.

Whittle had his ideas for jet engines in 1928. In 1934 the British Under-Secretary of State for Air said that "scienrific investigation into the possibilities of jet propulsion has given no indication that the method could be a serious competitor to the airscrew-engine combination". Why is the above such dismal read-ing? Why have we let Germany and Japan and the countries on the Pacific seaboard overtake us and outsell us? We had a large machine-tool industry. Now we buy our computerised machine tools from the Far East, along with our cameras and watches and shoes and motorbikes and many other things. The reasons for our decline in the export league lie so deep that the Chancellor of the Exchequer can do nothing to reverse this downward

In this century cheap fuel and technological advances, which most people accept without a thought of how they came about, enabled the Western world to shoot ahead. Now these advances are increasingly coming from the Far East.

I was born and bred in Cambridge, and its university is supposed to be one piece, but it isn't. The arts and classics and the humanities are one piece, the other and newer second piece is engineering and the sciences, and neither half can talk to the other.

for early specialisation and, in the new technological age, turning out a mass of half-educated people. This is all right for cogs, but is hopeless for the future leaders of our society. Our future leaders must have a framework of the humanities and arts, and a framework of engineering and the sciences, so they are capable of understanding and assessing future trends.

Another and important factor in our decline is that engineers and innovators are the lowest paid of all the professions, with the results that engineering does not attract and cannot hold its fair share of bright young people. If our designs were good enough our balance of payments would be in the black.

I think I'd better emigrate. Yours faithfully, CHRISTOPHER COCKERELL, 16 Prospect Place, Hythe, Hent. August in.

BSE cattle cull

From Mrs Judith Pieris

Sir, 1 sympathise with the feelings of Dorcen Forsyth (letter, August 17) who was extremely distressed as her tenday-old calves were being herded into a wagon to be taken away for slaugh-

I have felt similarly distressed at seeing the "confused faces" of baby calves gazing out of crowded trucks in lay-bys on the way to the port of Brightlingsea for export. They, presumably, left their farm gates with their larmer's consent.

There has to be a better, and more humane, way to manage the lives and deaths of living animals destined for the table.

Yours faithfully. JUDITH PIERIS 54 Brooklane Field, Harlow, Essex. August 17.

From Mr Barry Hyman

Sir, Put aside Doreen Forsyth's anthropomorphic concerns about "the confused faces" of the calves leaving her farm for premature slaughter.

Why, as a person who breeds animals to be killed for us to eat, should she be so concerned about their death at ten days, or at a later time of her choosing? Presumably she does not shed tears for those she sends to the abattoir and which provide her livelihood. Perhaps her real concerns, not unreasonably, are exposed in her later paragraphs about "wrecking the agricultural economy" and "cheapest food in Europe".

That farming families are the victims of government muddle and complacency is regrettable, but crocodile tears about the early disappearance of a meal-ticket do not persuade.

Yours faithfully, BARRY HYMAN, 4 Priory View. Bushey Heath, Hertfordshire. August 17.

Business letters, page 27

A-level results: lower standards or brighter students?

From the Headmaster of Bishopshalt School

Sir. The alleged decline in the value of A-level grades by about 25 per cent during the past seven years (letters, August 17) has not as yet brought about a reduction in the proportion of undergraduates getting good degrees at the longer-established universities, quite the contrary in fact. How can we explain this? Has there been, during the same period, a remarkable improvement in the quality and quantity of teaching at those uni-

Perhaps the students are 25 per cent more intelligent than their predecessors and are thus more than able to overcome the handicap of having been prepared only for easy A levels. Another possible explanation is that ly exaggerated? My own observation of the high quality of work produced by many of today's A-level students in-our most highly respected universities have suriously devalued the quality of their degrees. Or could it be that the decline in Alevel standards, if real, has been greatclines me to consider this to be the more likely explanation.

Yours faithfully. LESLIE BATHER, Headmaster. Bishopshalt School, Hillingdon, Uxbridge, Middlesex. August 17.

From Mr Clive R. Hart Sir, As the officer of the School Examinations and Assessment Council (Seac) who drew up the ground rules for modular A levels in 1993, it seems to me that the key issue is whether A levels, modular or otherwise, are intended primarily to testify to subjectbased learning and scholarship, or to the ability to cope with a large amount of (last-minute) learning and assessment all at one go.

Modular A levels are intended to support the former, their critics attach more weight to the latter, believing, in effect, that the ability to cope with multiple examinations is a better indicator of intellectual ability than the quality of the learning itself. Unfortunately, there is no evidence to sup-port or refute this view.

University places

From Mr Barrie Behenna

Sir, I see from your report, "Desperate students on college doorsteps" (August 17), that the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service (Ucas) has advised students so far without places that they should visit universities personally to advance their case with admissions tutors.

May I offer other advice? Please do not do that. At this time universities are totally engaged in the difficult operation of balancing acceptable admissions standards against the financial pitfalls of unfilled (or overfilled) places. Offers must therefore be subect to some kind of overall monitoring, and departmental freedom is reduced at this stage.

The appearance, perhaps in great numbers, of would-be students (many accompanied by parents) is not mere ly unhelpful, and indeed inequitable, but pointless. All cases at this time are determined on academic criteria, and the quasi-blackmail of a personal approach, with all the costs in travel that that may entail, is not to be recommended.

Once again, it seems necessary to remind Ucas that its responsibilities cannot usurp those of the universities

Europe is derived from the election of the 15 national governments; not from the European Parliament, which does not effectively control the Commission, let alone the Council of Minis-among them the election of 15 national parliaments (not governments) and on the direct election of the European Parliament. Many other factors contribute to democracy as we understand it, chief among them the rule of law, respect for human rights and a

As for control of the Commission

(the executive) by the European Parliament (the legislature), doubtless the current negotiations in the inter-governmental conference will result in a strengthening of Parliament's powers

But to criticise the European Parliament for not controlling the Council of Ministers is a paradoxical argument, since the Council is also an arm of the legislature. It is for Council and Parliament to control the Commission.

free press.

in that respect.

Yours faithfully, R. B. BEHENNA (Academic Secretary). University of Exeter. Northcote House, The Queen's Drive, Exeter, Devon. August 19.

Rather than spend time on trying to decide whether modular A levels are easier or more demanding than their traditional counterparts, the resources of the School Curriculum and Assessment Authority and others would surely be put to more effective use in trying to establish which approach results in the better retention of learning and its subsequent application. At least we would then have some idea on how well, or not, A levels are serving the country. Yours sincerely, CLIVE R. HART (Assistant Chief Executive, Seac. 1988-93). 3 Cherry Tree Close. Hughenden Valley, High Wycombe, Buckinghamshire.

From Mr Paul Shepheard

Sir. Examinations do not test the quality of students - they test how well they have prepared for the exams. It is not surprising that exam grades are forever rising when the schools, which might otherwise devote themselves to educating their pupils, are instead concentrating on cramming them with curriculums. Perhaps pushy parents are to blame.

Yours sincerely PAUL SHEPHEARD. 22 York Rise, NW5. August 15.

From Mrs Fletcher Hunt

Sir, John Humphrys ridiculed the notion on the Today programme this morning that A-level students are becoming brighter.
Surely if athletes are running faster and children are growing taller there is every reason to believe that children are becoming brighter too. Let us congratulate them on their good results.

Yours sincerely. PADDY HUNT, 35 Ponsonby Place, SW1.

Bratby's portraits

From Mr Michael Moynihan

Foundation of European democracy

From Mr Michael Shrimpton

Sir, The Danish Supreme Court has decided that a case filed by 11 EU opponents questioning the constitution-ality of the Maastricht treaty ratification may be considered by a lower court (report, August 14). This is a landmark decision and is to be wel-quires that ratification be in accordance with the "respective constitutional requirements" of each high contracting party: if the Danish ratification is now struck down by the courts. the treaty itself will be at risk.

As I understand it, the substantive issue will now proceed to the Eastern High Court in Copenhagen, subject to a further right of appeal to the Supreme Court, and there is no right of appeal to the Luxembourg Court. The interpretation of the Danish Constitution lies within the exclusive competence of the Danish courts. The Danish courts have a reputation for integrity, independence and freedom from political interference unmatched by the courts of any European country. To those qualities we must now add fearlessness.

Yours faithfully. MICHAEL SHRIMPTON. Francis Taylor Building, Temple, EC4.

From the Head of the UK Office of the European Parliament

Sir, William Rees-Mogg ("No EMU without a superstate". August 15) as-serts that "such democracy as exists in which - in their different ways - they Serious discussion about the future of Europe's institutions should rest on as clear an understanding of their present roles as possible.

Yours faithfully, MARTYN BOND. Head, UK Office of the European Parliament 2 Queen Anne's Gate, SWI. August 15.

Northern stars

From Mr Alan Sykes

Sir, Libby Purves writes of the distressing quantity of light pollution in the British Isles ("Under our starless skies", August 13) and fears that National Lottery money will go to projects that exacerbate this problem.

Here in the North of England we are taking steps that will, I am sure. meet with her approval. As part of the celebrations co-ordinated by Northern Sights for the Year of the Visual Arts, the charity that plans and develops cycle routes, Sustrans, has commissioned the Arizona-based artist James Turrell to create a "Pennine Skyspace".

This will be sited close to the coastto-coast cycle route on the Cumbria/Northumberland border at the highest point of the North Pennines.

The skyspace will be a circular stone structure with an open roof, forcing visitors to look up at the sky where there is less light pollution than anywhere else in England.

I am pleased to add that the Arts Council recently allocated this project £80,000 from its section of lottery proceeds. Subject to planning consent from Eden District Council, the skyspace could be up by next summer.

Last night I went up to the site and watched some shooting stars seemingly coming from Cassiopeia. Next year perhaps Libby Purves will join me in watching the Perseid meteor shower from the skyspace.

Yours faithfully, ALAN SYKES. Northern Sights, Portland House, New Bridge Street, Newcastle upon Tyne.

Sir, Are holidays no longer safe from electioneering (report and leading article, August 16)? Now I am loath to book a trip to the Mongolian wilderness for fear of meeting Clare Short.

CUNNINGHAM-HUGHES,

Letters for publication may be faxed to 0171-782 5046.

I remain, Sir, in the garden,

Beach politics

Cunningham-Hughes

From Mr Andrew

ANDREW

August 16.

Plantation Cottage.

Cook's Pond Lane.

Milland, West Sussex.

Devil politics

From Mr Kit Constable Maxwell

Sir, To electioneer by making a devil of Tony Blair (letters, August 17) challenges the foundations of our system. To boast the strength of one political party against the weakness of another is a shabby enough way to attempt to appeal to intelligent voters; but to portray opponents as evil is deplorable.

If the new generation sees such defamation and ridicule what sort of a forum for social, religious or political freedom can we expect in the future?

Yours sincerely. KIT CONSTABLE MAXWELL. Garden Cottage, Itchen Stoke, Alresford, Hampshire.

That is an over-simplification. Such parliamentary democracy as exists in Europe rests on several foundations,

"more than 1,000 of the great, good, rich and royal" painted by John Brat-by (Magazine, August 10) reminded me of an interview I had with the artist in 1976 at his Blackheath studio. Standing in front of one of the dozens of portraits and self-portraits hanging or stacked against the walls, he said of the sitter: "I've been affected by presence more than any personality I've painted."

Sir, Alan Franks's reference to the Earlier I had jointed Bratby at London Zoo, the sitter in question being Guy the gorilla, all 37 stone of him. broodingly gazing out from behind the bars of his cage as he had done for the previous 29 years. "I've been captivated by him, he has this enormous personal magnetism," Bratby said. What I feel when sketching Guy is the primitive side of man, of myself, and how his eyes are mirrors of the subconscious, of the beast-in-man, held in check."

A series of head-and-shoulder portraits of Guy formed the bulk of Bratby's next one-man show. They were priced at £400 each.

Yours faithfully, MICHAEL MOYNIHAN, Nuthatch. Fletcher Close, North Mundham. Chichester, West Sussex. August 13.

Fabians and monarch

From Dr Charles Goodson-Wickes, MP for Wimbledon (Conservative)

Sir, Why should the Fabian Society's plans to diminish the monarchy cause surprise (report, August 12; letters.

What could be a more logical step. following the Labour Party's policy to abolish the hereditary element in the House of Lords?

After all, there are many republicans in the Labour Party. Yours faithfully, CHARLES GOODSON-WICKES, House of Commons.

August 20. From Miss Elizabeth Erskine

Sir, With "supporters" like Mr Paul Richards, author of the latest Fabian pamphlet, the Royal Family scarcely needs apponents. Perhaps instead of scrapping God

Save the Queen we had better reinstate its neglected second verse: O Lord our God, arise, Scatter her enemies And make them fall. Confound their politics Frustrate their knavish tricks, On thee our hopes we fix, God save us all. Yours sincerely, ELIZABETH ERSKINE, 16 Albert Street, Cambridge.

August 16. From Mr Andrew Lawton

Sir, Whatever the views of the Fabian Society, we Odinists - being polytheists - sing a slightly different version of the national anthem: Gods Save the Queen.

Yours faithfully, A. LAWTON, Magclough House, Main Road, Grindleford, Derbyshire. August 19.

11 and 2088

COURT CIRCULAR

THATCHED HOUSE

LODGE August 20: Princess Alexandra, accompanied by the Hon Sir Angus Ogilvy, this evening visited the Silver Trust Exhibition. "The Nation's Silver" at Hamilton and Inches, George Street, Edinburgh, and was received by Her Majesty's Deputy Lieutenant of the City of Edinburgh (Dr John McKay).

Today's birthdays

Princess Margaret celebrates her 66th birthday today Mr John Austin-Walker, MP, 52; Dame Janet Baker, CH. opera singer, 63; Mr Christopher Brasher, Olympic gold medallist and former race director, London Marathon, 68; Mr Donald Dewar, MP. 59; Sir Ronald Garrick, managing director and chief executive. The Weir Group, 56; Mr Tony Girling, president, The Law Society, 53; Professor A.S. Goudie, geographer, 51; Sir Joshua Hassan, former Chief Minister of Gibraltar, 81; Mr

David G. Heywood, chairman, Remploy, 61: Miss Anne Hobbs, tennis player, 37; the Hon Gerald Lascelles, 72; Dr T.P. McLean, former director, Atomic Weapons Research Establishment, 66; Mr Barry Norman, broadcaster, 63; the Earl of Normanton, 51; Mr James Pawsey, MP, 63; Mr Kenny Rogers, country music singer, 55; Mr Peter Thurnham, MP, 58; Mr Sam Toy, former chairman, Ford Motor Company, 73; Lieuten-ant-General Sir Richard ant-General Vickers, 68.

Latest wills

Sir John Saye Wingfield Twisleton-Wykeham-Fiennes, of Preston Št Mary, Sulfolk, left estate valued at £213,341

The Hon Christopher Anthony Robert Emmet, of Selhurst Park, Halnaker, Chichester, West Sussex, left estate valued at £365,830 net. He left his estate mostly to relatives.

Count Jan Badeni, of Norton, Malmesbury, Wiltshire, left estate valued at £439,429 net. He left his estate mostly to relatives.

Lady Coote, of Box, Wiltshire, left estate valued at £224,507 net. She left her estate mostly to relatives.

William Gomersall, of Middleton, fikley, West Yorkshire, left estate valued at £1,233,721

He left £1.000 to each of the following: The Worshipful Master and Brethren of the White Rose Mark Ludge: The Preceptor and Knights of the Airedale Preceptory: Olicana Chapter, The Aireborough Camera John Helliwell, of Halifax.

West Yorkshire, left estate valued at £1,029,034 net. Apart from £70,000, equal shares in his remaining estate go to the following charitles: Halliax Parish Church. St Jude's Church. Halliax Sallors' Farmily Society of Newland. Collingham Road, Hull. Royal Society for the Protection of Birds.
Society for the Protection of Birds.
World Wildlife Pund UK, RNLI.
Salvadon Army, Donkey Sanctuary, Calderdale Society for Continuing Care of Overgale. Marie Curie Memorial Foundation, Bleakholt Animal Sanctuary, National Trust, Leonard Cheshire Foundation, Royal Star and Garrer Home, Cancer Relief Macmilian Fund.

Other estates include (net before tax): Mr Donald Maurice Brown. of Wimbledon, London SW20

£1,255,926. Mrs Kathrine Collinge, of Longridge, Lancashire

£825,861. Mrs Dorothy Mary Fortune, of Hale, Cheshire £767,100. Mr William Gammell, of London NW11...... £2.407,542.

Baroness Lloyd of Highbury

The life barony conferred upon Dame June Kathleen Lloyd has been gazetted by the name, style and title of Baroness Lloyd of Highbury, of Highbury in the London Borough of Islington.

Reception

British Safety Council Mr John Bennett, of the British Safety Council's Board of Governors, was the host at a reception held yesterday at Armourers' Hall for the Diploma in Safety Management awards.

Anniversaries

BIRTHS: St Francis de Sales. Doctor of the Church, near Annecy, France, 1567; William Murdock, inventor, Auchinleck, Strathclyde, 1754; King William IV, reigned 1830-37, Buckingham Palace, 1765; August Bournonville, writer, Copenhagen, 1805; Aubrey Beardsley, illustrator, Brighton, 1872; Count Basie, jazz pianist, Red Bank, New Jersey, 1904. DEATHS: Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, writer, London, 1762; Sir Benjamin Thompson, Count von Rumford founder of the Royal

Institution, Auteuil, 1814; Selwyn Image, painter, Holloway, 1930; Constant Lambert, composer, London, 1951: Sir Jacob Epstein, sculptor, London, 1959; Sobhuza II, King of Swaziland 1899-1982, Embo, 1982.

Sam Browne of the 2nd Punjab Cavalry invented the belt that bears his name, 1858, The Cadillac Motor Company was formed. Detroit, 1901. Hawaii became the 50th state of the Union, 1959.

British licensing laws allowing more flexible pub opening hours came into force, 1988.

Competition cuts show down to size

By Alan Toogood HORTICULTURE CORRESPONDENT

WITH several regional flower shows competing for exhibitors, the Royal Horticultural Society's London show, which opened yesterday, is rather smaller than usual. Basically a show of summer-flowering herbaceous plants, it has a sprinkling of exotics - cacti and succulents, begonias and fuchsias. Ornamental grasses also feature prominently and in the collection from Hoecroft Plants, of Dereham, Norfolk, a huge specimen of Chionochloa rubra with thin arching leaves varying from olive green to deep yellow is creating a fountain-like centrepiece. It is particularly effective when grown in a container.

The zigzag bamboo, Phyllostachys aureosulcata "Aureocaulis", is included in the collection of bamboos and grasses from P. W. Plants, of Kenninghall, Norfolk. The orange-gold stems have the unusual habit of growing in a zigzag pattern instead of straight.

Several new herbaceous perennials are being shown by Four Seasons, of Forncett St Mary, Norfolk, including an eye-catching helenium named "Biedermeier. Growing to about 3ft in height, the flowers are zoned with crimson and gold. Several new Phlox paniculata cultivars are also creating interest, including "Lichtspel" which produces lots of small rose-lavender flowers and is reasonably resistant to mildew. Heather and Brian Hiley, of Wallington, Surrey, are showing tender and unusual perennials and grasses and their beautifully staged exhibit has been awarded a gold medal.

Sherston Parva Nursery, of Sherston, Wiltshire, is showing clematis, including several unusual species and cultivars. Clematis aromatica has small starshaped flowers marbled with purple and pale blue. The red pendulous bellshaped flowers of C. texensis "Princess of Wales" are particularly eye-catching.

Several competitions are being held with this show. In the Saintpaulia and Houseplant Society's competition, the best saintpaulia (African violet) in the show is "Chiffon Masquerade" with variegated foliage, shown by Margaret Reynolds, of Hitchin, Hertfordshire. The best houseplant is Alocasia amazonica whose large shield-shaped leaves have silver veins. Shown by Chris Christodoulou, of Twickenham, Middlesex, this houseplant is quite difficult to grow as it requires plenty of warmth.

In the RHS gladiolus competition Mr A. M. Hills, of Storrington, West Sussex. has won the Foremarke challenge cup for 12 cultivars. He has included some superb blue cultivars, such as "Violetta" (violet), "Blue Skies" (light and deep violet), and "Blue Frost" (pale blue and white). Mr Hills has also won a Simmonds medal for best small-flow ered spike in the show with the primulinus cultivar "Tan Royal" (crim-son, with tan flush). Mr S. Moorhouse, of Wanstead, London, has scooped a Simmonds medal for best large-flowered spike in the show with "Lowland Queen" (pale pink with salmon throat).

Mrs C. M. Bowerman, of Champs Hill Coldwaltham. West Sussex, is the only exhibitor in the heather section of the RHS ornamental plants competition and has entered all II classes. She is showing some of her own cultivars of Erica cinerea - "Alfred Bowerman" (red), "Margaret Bowerman" (pale pink) and "Champs Hill" (deep pink).

The show, in the New Horticultural Hall, Greycoat Street, Westminster, is open today from I Dam to 5pm.

Royal Aeronautical Society

The following have been elected as Fellows of the Society and may use the designatory letters FRAeS:

Air Vice-Marshal Carey W Adamson, Mohammed A Alkhaja, Air Chief Marshal Sir John Allison, Richard Neil Andrew, Wil-liam Henry Armstrong, Air Commodore lan Harley Ashbrook, Norman R Augustine. John Christopher Barker, Group Captain Douglas Mitchell Barr, Peter Beckett, Ernest John Stephen Becklake, Walter Winant Bender, Michael Brian Benoy, Michael Leslie Bridgman, Dennis Meyer Bushnell. Geoffrey Frederick Butler.

John Campbell, Cheong Choong Kong, John Alexander Raymond Chisholm, Ernest Charles Clear Hill, David Ellis Colbourne, Timo-thy Charles Columan, John Cyril Corby, Edward Thomas Curran,

Davies, Air Commodore Terence Charles Davies, Robert Archer Group Captain Mohammad Javed Khan, Colonel Nicholas Paus Davis, Carlos De Andres Ruiz, Thomas Andrew Drysdale, Mar-Knudsen, Commodore Grenville Lamb-Hughes, James Douglas Lang, Robert Little, lan Anthony tin John Earwicker. Stuart George Easthope, Jacobus Johannes Eksteen, Russell Wayne Elliot, Lloyd, Joseph Loughlan, Captain David George Lusher, Susan Peter David Ewins, Morris E. Rhett Flater, Leroy Skip Fletcher. Mary Lyons. Brian John Main, Wing Com-mander Winston Leonard Martin Ehud Gartenberg, Barry Allan Geddes, David Martin Gibbons, Mayer, John McGowan, Terence Waldemar Gustav Haese, Joseph A Harland, Kelvin Frank Harri-son, Noel Raymond Hartley, Dorothy Helen Haffield, Captain Peter McLoughlin, Christopher Douglas Melrose, Iftikhar Ahmed Mir, Air Vice-Marshal Manus

Francis Moran, John Hedley Neville James Hay. Geoffrey Hemingway, Kenneth Harry Heron, John Donald Hodgson, Group Captain Terence Michael Mounce. Mouroc.
Amiruddin bin Mohd Nordin
Noor, Kenneth Robert Arthur
O'Brien. Michael Parry-Evans.
Christopher Pell, Howard William Holloway, Group Captain Robert William Hooper, Philip Thomas Perkins, Jean-Charles Poggi, Stan-ley Leonard Porter, Frank Price, Philip Riley, Captain Robert George Risso, Graham Martin Hopton, Leslie Owen Hudson, David Watson Hughes. Air Commodore Niall Ronald Irving, Professor Peter Swiftsure Road. Rudolf Roos. Michael Peter

Rouse. Captain David Charles Rowland. Air Commodore Charles Hunting

Simpson. Alan Sinon, Gordon John Nicol Smith, Keith Welton Smith, Michael Arthur Spencer. Air Vice-Marshal Anthony James Stables, Dr Ing Rolf Stuessel. Harminder Singh Takhar, Group Captain John Winston Thorpe, Roger Nicholas Tyte, Group Captain Andrew Martin Verdon, Edward Anthony Ward, Kevin William Ward, David John Way, Wilcock, Brian Clappison Winch, Allan Kendal Winn, John Thomas Wolfe, David John Wright, Jan Robert Wright, A Thomas Young.

The following have been elected as Companions of the Society: Mary Sheila Goldring, Thomas Keith Lawrence.

Forthcoming marriages

Mr A.C. Cox and Miss K.J. Edwards The engagement is announced between Andrew Charles, younger son of Mr and Mrs Leonard Cox. of Middleton-on-Sea. Sussex. and Katharine Jane, elder daughter of Mr and Mrs John Edwards, of Welwyn, Hernfordshire. Mr O.J.G. Hartley and Miss L.A. Dunon The engagement is announced between Oliver, son of the late Mr James Hardey and of Mrs Hardey, of Chichester, Sussex, and Louise, younger daughter of Mr and Mrs David Dutton, of Iver. Buckinghamshire Mr M.A. Knight and Miss H.A. Bowern The engagement is announced between Mark, eldest son of Mr and Mrs David Knight of Sunningdale, Berkshire, and Heather Ann, younger daughter of Mr and Mrs Vivian Bowern, of Warbleton, East Sussex. Dr N.T. Ratdiffe

and Miss H.C. Barrett
The engagement is announced between Nigel, only son of Mr and Mrs Thomas Ratcliffe, of Leek. Staffordshire, and Helen, only daughter of Dr and Mrs David Barrett, of Hindhead, Surrey.

Mr D.C. Spragg and Miss M. Arnison-Newgass The engagement is announced between David, eldest son of Mr and Mrs Peter Spragg, of Worplesdon St Mary's, Surrey, and Melissa, daughter of Mr and Mrs Michael Arnison-Newgass, of Sherfield English, Hampshire.

Mr A.J.G. Stiff
and Ms H.M. Hardinge
The engagement is announced between Alexander, son of Mr and Mrs John Stitt, of Barnes, London, and Melissa, younger daughter of Mr and Mrs Kevin Hardinge, of Knutsford, Cheshire,

Mr M.J. Weaver and Miss M.J. Small The engagement is announced between Matthew, younger son of Mr and Mrs J.P.A. Weaver, of Dundee, and Mandy, younger daughter of Professor and Mrs J.R. Small, of Edinburgh.

Mr G.N. Emerson and Miss S.M. Wadeson and MISS S.M. Wadeson The engagement is announced between Giles, younger son of Mr David Emerson, of Carle, Somer-set, and Mrs Margaret Whitfield, of Shillingford Abbot, Devon, and Swanna devigator of Mr. Livnel or smining for the Susanna, daughter of Mr Lionel Wadeson, of Richmond, Surrey and the late Mrs Wadeson. Mr J.H. Launders and Miss T.A. England The engagement is announced between Jason Harry, elder son of Lieutenant Colonel (Reid) and Mrs N.H. Launders. of Peppard Common. Oxon, and Tracy Ann, only daughter of Mr and Mrs Se England, of Westhoughton:

Marriages

Mr J.R.W. Fellowes and Miss A.J. Nicol The marriage took place on Sat-urday, August 17, at Murrayfield Church, Edinburgh, of Mr James Fellowes, younger son of Mr and Mrs Robert Fellowes, of Newmarket, to Miss Alison Nicol, elder daughter of Mr and Mrs Alexander Nicol, of Edinburgh. The Rev Clarence Musgrave officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Mr Nicholas

Fellowes was best man.

A reception was held at the Royal College of Physicians and the honeymoon will be spent

Mr C. Leverick and Miss S.M. McAllister The marriage took place on August 13, in London, of Mr Christopher Leverick, younger son of the late Mr Stanley Leverick, and of Mrs Leverick, of Brandeston, Suffolk, to Miss Susan Mary McAllister. elder daughter of Mr and Mrs William McAllister, of Parbold, Mr H. ap D.L. Morgan and Miss F.E.J. Lloyd

The marriage took place on Sat-urday, August 17, at St John the Divine, Richmond, Surrey, of Mr Huw ap David Llewelyn Morgan, of Thaxted, Essex. to Miss Flona Eleanor Jane Lloyd, of Minery.

Church news

Appointments The Rev John Rowland, Vicar, Fairfield (Liverpool): to be Vicar, Buckfastleigh Dean Prior (Exeter).

Prebendary Paul Smith, Rector, Torridge Estuary Team Ministry: to be Priest-in-charge, St James, Exeter (Exeter).

The Rev Dr Dennis Stamps, Assistant Curate, St Mary, Moseley: to be Director, West Midlands Ministerial Training Course, Queen's College, Birmingham (Birmingham). The Rev Susan Watterson, Hon Curate, Castletown (Sodor and Man): to be Assisersity of Bristol, and Hon

Curate. St Michael and St Paul, Clifton (Bristol). The Rev David Weir, formerly Assistant Curate, St John the Baptist, Locks Heath: to be Assistant Curate, Warren Park, St Clare and Leigh Park,

St Francis, held in plurality (Portsmouth). The Rev Dr David Wenham, Tutor. Wycliffe Hall, Oxford: to be also Associate Priest,

Shelswell (Oxford). The Rev Philip West, Vicar, Stannington, Sheffield: to be also Rural Dean of Hallam

(Sheffield). The Rev Robert White, Vicar, St Clare, Warren Park and Priest-in-charge, St Francis,

Leigh Park: to be the incum-

DEATHS

bent, Warren Park, St Clare and Leigh Park, St Francis. held in plurality (Portsmouth). Prebendary John Widdas, Vicar. Tamworth: to be Vicar, Walsall Wood (Lichfield).

Resignations and retirements

The Right Rev John Bone, Suffragan Bishop of Reading. diocese of Oxford: to retire December 31.

The Rev Richard Davison, Vicar, Streatley w Moulsford (Oxford): to retire December

Canon Peter Hearn, Vicar, Burton on Stather w Normanby, Thealby and part of Coleby and Flixborough (Lincoln): to retire September

The Rev Eric Last, Vicar, All Saints, South Merstham (Southwark): retired May 31. The Rev Michael Unwin, Vicar, St Gabriel, Heaton and Acting Dean of Newcastle East (Newcastle): to retire October 31.

The Rev Elsie Watson, Assistant Curate, Saints Paul and Silas, Lozells (Birmingham): to retire September 30, with permission to officiate, same diocese.

The Rev Colin Way, Rector, Acle w Fishley (LEP) and North Burlingham and Rural Dean of Blofield (Norwich): to retire October 21.

DEATHS

BMDS: 0171 680 6880 PRIVATE: 0171 481 4000

PERSONAL COLUMN

TRADE: 0171 481 1982 FAX: 0171 481 9313

The stands are also at the stand
People will speak of the glori- ous splendoor of your	- DVD
majesty; I shall meditate on your wonderful deeds.	BIR
Panton 146 : 5 (REB)	MESA
	Port 140
BIRTHS	a b
AGER - On August 17th at The	1
Portland Hospital, to Jill	RAE-
Johnson and John Ager, a daughter, Lilian Rachel, a	(256 207) sister to Harry and Freddie.
BATCHBLOR - On 12th August	SCHO
1996, to Relen (née Miles) and Steve, a daughter, Clivia	14tl Maj
jame, a sister for Edward.	daw
CHRESTRE - On August 13th at	siste
The Portland Respital, to fiona (nee Smith) and	SIEBB
Michael, a wonderful son, Alexander James.	191
CUMMERCHAM - On 8th August	Lon
1996 in Maine, U.S.A., to	beat
Charlotte, wife of Mark, a son, Charles.	Isab VOLEN.
ATZGERALD - On August 10th at The Portland Hospital, to	YOUNG at 1
Robyn (née Coltman) and Michael, a daughter, Tara, a	Sher eister for Alexandra.
FLANAGAN - On 26th July, to	-
Ento (née Getley) and Alastair, a daughter, Bila	MAI
Pranceson Cameron, a sister for Louis and Fergus.
HAYNES - On August 17th at	10855
The Postland Hospital, to	Augu
Mary (née Muh) and Tim, a son. Rowley, a brother for	of S
jack.	de to
HAYTON - On August 16th at	Glo
The Portland Hospital, to Carrie (nee McAuley) and Mike, a perfect daughter, Charlotte May, thanks to Mr
Cass and the team!	DEA
HAYWARD-COLE - On Angust 14th 1996, to Nicola (née Salter) and Guy, a daughter, Amelia Clare.	BININES
	poac
HOMA EXESTELL - On August 10th at The Portland	Sout
Hospital, to Sheryl and Mark, a beautiful daughter.	the l

Paphaella Helen (Ella).

incas-on August 14th 1996, in Hong Kong, to Heather (ade Boyd) and Crispin, a son, William Mallorie.

MARCHBANK - On 19th August, to Nigel and Jacqui, a sou, james Louis, a brother for Harry.

Medinity - On 20th August, to Frame (note Besthett) and Sean a densities Esta Sarah.

BRITTOM - Basil, Priest, beloved husband of Esme, passed away on 18th August after a long filmens. Private cremation on Tuesday 27th August followed by a Service of Thanksgiving at 12 noon at 57 Mark's, Source End, Bucks. Everyone welcome. Family flowers only, but donations may be made to The British Diabetic Ausociation, 10 Queen Anne Street, London Wilm GBD. Enquiries to G. Smith Funeral Directors (01628) LEFFELD - On August h 1996, to Helen (née rsball) and Mark, a ghter, Hannah Bethan, a gr for Samuel Jonathan. 523566.

COFFEY - Bridget Rosalind
18th July 1914 - 19th Angust 1996. Whe of Brian, mother of John, Many, Ann, Joe, Peter, Agatha, Cattlin, Dominic and Brigid Ann, much loved by many. St Ednunds Church, The Avenne, Southampton at 10 am Thursday 22nd August.
COMMELL - On August 19th ent-Alves - On August th at St Mary's Bospital, adon, to Catarina standra and Frank, a

NG - Adam on Angest 12th The Portland Bespital, to tri and Mark Young, a ther for Jared. RRIAGES BIS GARLAND - On 17th past 1996 at Somethill, abridge, Alan, son of and and Tromne Bibbas Southfleet, to Louise, aghter of Graham and oria Garland of mingham, Kent.

ATHS BINNES - Om 14th Angust 1996
poacefully at home Mary Stowell aged 70 years of Southleigh, Devon Wife of the late Victor Rinns. Will be sadily bulsed by all her fundly Funscal Service to be held at St Lawrence's Charch, Southleigh on Tuesday 27th August at 2pm. No flowers by request please but donations if desired for the Seaton Hospital Ar Home Service
may be given at the Service
may be given at the Service
may be given at the Service
cor sent c/o Overmass & Chapple (Funscals), Chapple Court, Queen Street, Seaton, EX12 228, tel: (01297) 20644.

DEATHS am Thursday 22nd August.
COUNELL. On August 19th Philly died pascefully aged 87. Dear husband of the late Barbara, much leved father of Annabel, Mizanda, james and Michael, A Thanksgiving Sarvice for his life will be held at 3 ym on Toesday 27th August at the Parish Church of 52 Mary the Vingin, Widdington, Saffron
Waldon, Essex. No flowers picese.

please.
COOMSER - Derok Young.
COOMSER - Derok Young.
Suddenly at home in Release on 18th August 1996.
Devoted father and husband.
Will be sadly missed by Junnifer and by Judith, Simon, Matthew and Sally and their families. Foneral at The Survey & Sussex
Crematorium, nr. Crawley,
Tuesday, 27th August at
2pm. Flowen may be sent to Stonsman Funeral Service,
Decen Court, Redhill.
DAVIES - Ivor Myndin, on Dozan Court, Redhill.

nAvies - Ivor Myrddin, on 17th August, died peacefully at Addenbrookes Hospital, Cambridge, aged 88. Baloved husband for 61 years of Hellie, and father of Bill.
Frzzenzi Serrice at Wesley Methodist Church, King Street, Cambridge on Tuesday 27th August at 2.15pm, followed by private cremation. No flowers please, at his request, but domations may be made to the Harrow Welsh Congregational Church, Lower Road, Harrow, Middlesex,

EVARS - The Very Enverend Thomas Eric, ECVO, Dezo of St Paul's, on 17th August, aged 68, beloved husband of Linda and father of Alex and Comment Environment Linda and father of Alex and George. Everyone will be walcone at the funeral, a celebration of Requiem Eucharist in Gloucester Cathedral at 11.30 am on Wednesday 28th August. Densitions in Hen of Howers to St Matthew's Children's Funed (Ethiopia), 5 Cherington Close, Husstylespoint, ENG 9AY. A Thanksgiving Service will be held at St Paul's Cathedral at 5 pm on Monday, 30th September. "And death shall have no dominion." Mill. - Jane (née Warren) suddenly at home on 19th August 1996 aged 78 years. Funeral service will take place at St Many the Blessed Virgin Church, Punchaowis, Dorset on Tuesday 27th August at 2 pm followed by private cremation. Flowers or donations to the Salvation Artice of a I Walshy & Sons. Fisher - John Stirling, Peacatelly at the Lyndoch Numing Home, Edinburgh on Saturday 17th Angust 1996, husband of the late Jean Tumbull, of New Zealand, hinch missed by his friends and family. Service at Warriston Crematorium Closter Chapel, Edinburgh on Fidery 22nd Angust at 2nd pen by which all family and friends are invited. No flowers please.

FOSTER - On August 19th
1996, pescardily in hospital
Lt. Colonal Owin Foster of Ardbracaran House, Navan,
Co. Meath, Ireland. Aged 80 years. Belayed husband of Pat and dearly loved father and stepfather of Caroline, Robin and Michael, Funezal service at 12 o'clock (nova) on Thursday August 22nd, in Donäaghpatrick Church, followed by private cremation.

GREFFW: - Peacetally on 14th August St. Rotalle, Sister of the Infant Jesus. Reception at St. Manu's. Convent, Weybridge, on 21st August August. Sequiem Mass at St. Manu's. Convent on 22nd August at 10.30 am, followed by Interment at Weybridge. Cometery. Enquiries to F.W. Chitty & Co. Paneral Directors, 1sl. (01932) 842220.

DEATHS DEATHS GRYN - Babbi Hogo Gryn CRE died peacefully after a short illness on 18th August, 1996. Funeral Service at West London Synagogue, 34 Upper Berkeley Street, London, Wil on Wednesday 21st August, 1996 at 12 noon. Prayers at the Synagogue on Wednesday 21st August at 630 pm and Thursday, 22nd August at 630pm. Memorial Service to be abmounced. CEST - Peacefully at Vale of Leven Hospital on 20th August 1996, Ingid Mada, beloved wife of the late Reginald Charles Kent, loving mother, grandmother and auntie.

private cramation. Flowers or donations to the Salvation Army clo A | Wakely & Sons, 91 East Street, Bridgort Donest. Flowers by 10 am please. MOORE - Derek, on Friday 16th August at St George's Nursing Home, Cobham, aged 65. Much 16ved hashend, father, grandfather and friend. Fromtal Service will be held at 8 Francis R.C. Church, Cotonation Road, South Ascot on Tuesday 27th August at 2 pm followed by a private cremantion. Family Rowers only please. Donations it desired may be sent to The Paul Bewam Foundation collines Bannister, 69 High Street, Ascot or a charity of your choice. After the service, a reception will be beild at The Berynsede Hotel, Begabor Road, Sunninghill. HODGSON - On Angust 18th aged 86 years Geoffrey Alan. MRR, TD. DM (Oxon), FRCP, MRCS, IP, Gearly loved husband of Beryl, huber of Lorna and Valeria, Funeral Service at Liandaff Cathedral, Candiff, on Friday August 23rd at 1.45 pm followed by cremation at Thornhill, Family flowers only, but donations if desired to Holme Tower Marie Curie Centre, Bridgesian Road, Femarth, Enquisies to James Symmers and Son, Roath Court Funeral Home, Newport Road, Cardiff.

JEFFARD - We are sad to announce the death of Reginald Jeffard on 15th August 1976. The family wish to thank all his friends for their loving support. JOHES - William Grame Moes, MSc PhD, of Liangellen, died on 18th August after a long illners which he bore with patterne and dignity. Much loved husband of Barburs, father of Anne, janet and Loo, and grandfather of Cathy, Robbie, William, Liurie, Sarah. Tom, Ben. Bachel and Timothy. We shall all miss his kindness and gentle humour. Funetal Llangellen Sion Chapel, 23rd August 11.30 am.

and acmie.

LANGLEY - Peacefully on 20th August after a buyer fight against lilness, Barbara, witow of bubert, much loved mother of Dinah and Deborah, friend for many years of the Mortsons.
Funeral Service on Tuesday 27th August at 2 pm at Putney Vale Crematorium.
No flowers please, but donations if desired to The Friends of Arthur Rank
House may be sent clo Til.
Sanders & Sons, (0181) 876
4673. MOORE - Derek, on Friday

OMMEROD - On 20th August peacefully at Rosemary Lodge Nursing Home, Wimbledon, Marjorle, beloved mother of jonathan, Funeral Sevice at Futney Vale Crumatorium on Tuesday 27th August at 4pm. Enquities to Motor and Cottenill, 169 Merton Road, SW18, tak (0181) 874-7698.

SW18, tak (0181) 874-7698.

PARMAN - On Sundry 15th August 1996 Phoebe of Suffolk. Wife of the late Bertram Parham and drughter of the late Lt. Col.
and Mrs C.G. De Pree of Peech Hill, Haddington, East
Lothian. Faneral at St Nicholas Churchyard, Thames Ditton, on Tuesday
27th August at 12 noon.
Flowers to P.W. Paine, 265
Lwall Road, Surthum, Surrey
176 7AA, tel: (0181). 3992060.

PARTRIDGE - Diana, died pencefully at Sutton Manar Nursing Home on August 19th. Much beloved mother of Vernon and Anthea and grandmother. Fuperal at St. Richalas Church, Blakenoy, Norfolk, 12 noos Friday 23rd August Dunstions to Almakner's Disease Society Clo John Steel & Son, Chesti Bouse, Winchester SO23 OHU.

PHIDER - Robert, "There is some corner of a foreign field which is forever England." Ruper Brooks. Taken from his family and friends in Australia on 16th august 1996. Nore than a Nemory to the Aiderney Club from all members worldwide.

ROBENSON - Mary Angels (née Tolhurst) aged 84 years, wife of the late Kommeth S. Robinson. Much loved mother of Susan, Jonet and Nicky, grandmother of Paul, Katle, Sarah, Claire and Jessica. Died on Angest 19th in hospital after an illness barety bonne, she will be asdly missed by all her family and fringon. Funeral Mass at All Saints Catholic Church, Oxted, on Friday 23rd August at 12 noon. Family flowers only, but donations if desired to Concer Research c/o Ebbutt Puneral Directors, High Street, Limpsfield, RBS OUR.

DEATHS ROSS - James QC. Appointed Circuit Judge 1971-1987, Recorder of Birmingham 1985-1987, Recorder of Coventry 1968-1971. Formorly Solicitor 1938-1945, died pencefully on Angust 17th 1996 aged 83 years at Bryn Arden Residential Home, Claverdon, after a long ilhess Beloved hunband of Clave (deceased) and much loved father of Heather and grandfather of Felix. Requiem Mass at St George and St Teyess R.C. Chutch, Station Road, Dorridge, on Wodnesday 28th August at 1.30 pm. No flowers please, but demations if desired for NSPCC may be sent c/o AE. Bennett & Sens, Funeral Directors, 24 Sheep Street, Stratford-upon-Avon. Warwickshire CV37 6EE.

RUSSELL - Joan Gresham on 19th August aged 82 years of Brightlingsen. Funeral Service Wednesday 28th August Colchester Crematoniam at 320 pm. No flowers. Donations for St Helenn Hospitee c/o Co-operative Funeral Service, Wimpole Road, Colchester, COI 208. SACIG - Lydia, on August 17th 1996 pencefully at her home aged 93 years. A loving mother, grandmother and creat-mandmother.

SCOTT - On 13th August after a long filmess at Guinness Court, beactfully in St Mary's Bospital, Fraed Street, Hartin (jimey). Funeral Service at Golders Green Crematorium, East Chapel, Tuesday 27th August 2.45 pm. Enquiries please to W. Garstha & Sons (0171) 935-4868.

SOAMES - Sue on Sunday August 18th 1996, pascefully at home. Much loved wife of Robin and dervised mother of Tamein, Sendy, José and Sophie and delighted grandmother of five. Memorial Service at Toppestied Church, Ever, an Tuesday August 27th at 3pm.

الراب المستقلين والمتعارض المستقلين والمستوا

5TABLER - On Angust 20th aged 97 years, Donothy (nose Challener) of Jeamond, Newcastle upon Tyne, wife of the late Frank. A dear mother, grandmother Friends please meet at West Road Crematonium, Newcastle, on Friday 23rd August at 3.15pm.
THOMAS - On 17th August at Bridgemead, Bath, Lucy Briton, aged 98, late of Eweime, Oxfordshire, widow of Canon Kenneth St. Clair Thomas. Beloved by her children, grandchildren.

of Camon Remeth St. Clair Thomas. Beloved by her children, gamachildren and great-grandchildren and great-grandchildren and great-grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Cremetion at Haycombe, Bath, on Tuesday 27th August at 1 pm. Thanksgiving in Ewelmee Church to be announced. Donations may be sent to Save the Children Fund. His Servants shall serve Him and they shall see His facer. The Children Fund Him and they shall see His facer. The same hall see hall same for the same hall see hall same for the same hall see hall same same hall see hall same same hall see hall same washed and same hall see hall same same hall on Thursday 15th hall an hall same hall same hall on Thursday 15th hall same hall on Thursday 15th hall same hall same hall same hall same hall same hall on Thursday 15th hall same hall on Thursday 15th hall hall same ha only. Donations it desired to Austins, Stevenage, for EDA.

WATES - William lames Round on Thursday 15th August whilet travelling in Honduras, South America. Much loved son of Andrew and Saah, younger brother of Timothy, Jonathan, Fiched and Simon, frivad to many. Funeral arrangements to be continued, all welcome especially friends of William, please contuct Shedock and Sons (01306) 882266.

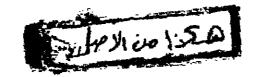

WELTON - Eilis (ade Findlay), widow of Jimmy of Alton, Rampshire, Born Charters Towers, Queensland, Died peacetully on 19th August 1996. Loved mother of Bill and Ellis, Loving "Wallah" to her grandchildren. WHEATLEY - On Angust 17th 1996. Peacefully in Holcombe House, Worthing.
Elieen Florence saged 91 years. Funeral Service on Friday 23rd August at Worthing Crematorium at IIam Flowers, if wished, c/o
H.D. Tribe Ltd., 130
Broadwater Hoad, Worthing, tek (01903) 234516. Wallesserrow - John Henry William, Priest, Canon Emeritus of Canterbury, died in hospital on Monday, 19th August, Beloved husband of Kirsty and father of John, Graham, James and Caristine. Funeral Regulem at St Mary the Virgin, Blechingley on Wednesday, 28th August at 11 am, followed by private cremation, Family Rowers only, but donations, if wished, to Christian Aid.

WGODBRIDGE - On August
14th suddenly at Gernards Cross, Particia Madeleius, widow of John Nicholas, Beloved mother of Tony and Nicholas and beloved grandmother of Stefan, Lisa and Christian. Funeral Service at All Saluts Church, Oval Way, Chalfont St Peter, at 12 noon on Friday August 12 noon on Friday August Lidouse, Family flowers only, Donations if desired to Doctor Pye and Partiners Asthma Cilnic and all anguirles to H.C. Grimsteed
Ltd., tek (01753) 891200.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS . MOOPER - Rosemarie and the family of the late Allan Hooper, who died 26th July 1996 wish to express their sincere thanks to all who attended the funent service, also for the floral utbures, messages of sympathy and donations for The lan Rennis Hospice at Home Pund.

المرابعة المتحددة والمتحددة والمتحدد

OBITUARIES

BRIGADIER ROY SMITH-HILL

Brigadier Roy Smith-Hill, CBE, Royal Marines, Combined Operations staff officer, died on August 4 aged 99, He was born on May 5 1897

oy Smith-Hill was the last surviving officer of the oth Battalion Royal Marines Light Infantry, a formation that was deployed to North Russia in July 1919. This was done under circumstances which were to end in a disgrace deeply felt by a corps which had such a reputation for discipline and steadiness under fire.

After the collapse of Tsarist Russia, Britain's North Russia Expeditionary Force was initially designed to prevent Germany capturing the ports of Murmansk and Archangel and advancing through Finland. The end of the First World War saw some 200,000 foreign troops in Russia, including 20,000 British; the threat had ceased to be Gerand had become

But an international policy to support the White Russians and, in Churchill's words, no strangle at birth the Bolshevik State* became increasingly unpopular in Britain. In January 1919 the Daily Express was probably echoing public opinion when it said that the frozen plains of Eastern Europe are not worth the bones of a single grenadier". It was in this social and political climate that the 6th Battalion was scratched together from a company of the Royal Marine Artillery and companies from each of the three naval port depots. Very few of their officers, including Smith-Hill, had seen any land lighting. Their original purpose had, in any case, been merely to deploy to Flensburg to supervise a plebiscite to decide whether Schleswig-Holstein should be German or Danish, and their training in "aid to the civil power" reflected this. Many of the Marines overseas, while others were exprisoners of war and believed themselves exempt. All recognised that Britain was not at war with Russia.

1

There was thus a crisis of morale when, at short notice, they were shipped instead to Murmansk to assist in the withdrawal of British forces. Still not expecting to do any fighting, the battalion was ordered forward under army command to hold certain outposts and, on August 28, 1919. to take the village of Koikor from the "Bolos", as the Bolsheviks were known.

The attack in company strength was not pressed home effectively and resulted in three men killed and 18 wounded, including the bartalion commander who had somewhat ineffectually led the attack himself. Equipped with machineguns and artillery. the Bolsheviks were very far from being the disorganised rapple that had been expected. A week of sporadic operations revealed the battalion's low morale and lack of experience at all levels, with several incidents of indiscipline and lack of aggressive spirit.

Smith-Hill's company was then ordered to take the same village and was repulsed; the battalion adjutant was killed and both the company officers senior to Smith-Hill incapacitated. Now in charge of the company, Smith-Hill held the position for two hours until ordered to retire.

The next day, faced with a further attack. Smith-Hill's company refused to obey orders, and withdrew from the front line. Smith-Hill pursued them and ordered them to fall in, telling them that they would all be court-martialled. And, indeed, 93 men from the battalion were tried by court martial; 13 were sentenced to death and others received substantial sentences of penal servitude.

all the officers, save two, suffered penalties such as dismissal; Smith-Hill received an expression of Their Lordships' severe displeasure.

For their lack of leadership.

In the event, the acquittal of unbiased inquiry had been held in England, the battalion might have been shown up as second-rate, but not cowardly and mutinous." A contemporary Admiralty minute acknowledged a lack of care in raising and training this temporary battalion, given its

Aspatria, Cumberland, his

Roy Smith-Hill was born in eventual employment.

a Marine who was later tried at Chatham after recovery from a wound cast doubt on the proceedings; a series of petitions and parliamentary questions resulted in the withdrawal of the death sentences and the reduction of the rest. Smith-Hill's request for a court martial to clear his name was refused. He afterwards wrote: "If an

There then followed four vears' secondment to the Army in staff and regimental posts. This was excellent preparation for what was to be his major contribution to the Allies in the Second World War. Clearly a natural staff officer, with a talent for orderly planning and an ability to persuade others by charm or, if that failed, by personality, he was in important posts for the abortive attack on Dakar in September 1940, the assault landings at Algiers during Operation Torch, and the subsequent invasion of Sicily in July 1943. His experience was put to good use on the staff of the Director of Combined Operations at the Admiralty before and after D-Day.

being appointed to the Army Staff College in 1935.

After the war he command-ed the Infantry Training Centre at Lympstone and, although allegedly liable to stand to attention when hearing Rule Britannia played, he was finally Commandant of the Royal Marine School of Music and oversaw the amalgarmation of the school at Burford with that at Deal. He retired in 1950, having been appointed CBE in 1946.

Always a Cumberland man. he retired to his old home at Braithwaite with its view of Skiddaw and for a few years took up chicken farming which "didn't really help the pension much". He was also the County Cadet Commander for four years and a Deputy Lieutenant for Cumberland from 1955 to 1973, resigning to make space for younger men when the county was combined with Westmorland to form Cumbria. He was Area Civil Defence Officer for six years, a president of the local cricket club and a churchwarden. Blessed with remarkable recall and a sound old-fashioned education at Seascale and St Bees, he was able even in old age to recite poetry in English, Greek and Latin, and was a renowned storyteller.

His wife and he is survive to their two sons and two daughters.

COLIN HAMPTON

The Griller Quartet with Colin Hampton (right)

Colin Hampton, cellist. died on August 10 in Oakland, California, aged 85. He was born in ondon on June 6, 1911.

THE death of Colin Hampton breaks the last link with one of the linest string quartets of the century. As cellist of the Griller Quartet. Hampton toured the world, giving more than 3,000 concerts between 1928 and 1961. He and his colleagues - violinists Sidney Griller and Jack O'Brien, and violist Philip Burton - introduced generations of music lovers to the intimate pleasures of the quartet repertory. They played for Queen Elizabeth (now the Queen Mother) at Buckingham Palace in 1940. while Augustus John painted her portrait, and for the delegates at the Potsdam Conference in 1945.

The son of an organist. Colin Hampton took up the cello at the relatively late age of 12 attending the Herbert Walenn Cello School in London. When Hampton entered the Royal Academy of Music at the age of 16, Walenn continued to tutor him. He and his three future partners first played together as students in the chamber music class of the legendary violist Lionel Tertis, who encouraged them to form a permanent string quartet.

Other than the Amadeus Ouartet, no other British string quartet has remained together for longer while keeping the same personnel. Their well-received London debut in 1928 was followed in 1930 by their first tour of Europe and in 1938-39 by a successful tour of the United States.

During the Second World War the quartet joined the RAF, working alongside the pianist Denis Matthews and the horn player Dennis Brain. and also appearing at the National Gallery concerts organised by Dame Myra Hess. As well as most of the standard quartet reperioire. the Griller Quartet also played a good deal of modern music and formed links with contemnorary composers. Among those with whom they were associated were Edmund Rubbra, Arnold Bax, and, especially. Ernest Bloch, who wrote his Third String Quartet (1952) for them and whose Fourth (1953) and Fifth (1956) quartets they also premiered and recorded. Arthur Bliss was another who wrote various works for the Grillers. including his Second Quartet. and they in turn marked the bowing of his Music for Strings (1935). In 1932, with Leon Goossens, they gave the premiere of Benjamin Britten's Phantasy for oboe and guartet. After a visit to the Music Academy of the West in Santa Barbara, California, in 1947. the Griller Quartet were invited to become quartet-inresidence at the University of California at Berkeley. There were occasional forays to other parts of the world, including a 25th anniversary recital in the Festival Hall in 1953, but they remained in California until the death of Philip Burton in 1961, when the surviving members decided to disband.

Hampton was settled in the New World and quickly found a niche for himself as a teacher. Latterly he composed a great deal, often writing for small string forces or arranging works for multiple cellos. During the past year he had arranged the Holy Sonnets of John Donne for tenor and string orchestra. They were given their first performance two months ago at Berkeley. Colin Hampton was three times married. He is survived by his third wife, Megan Dalton, and by two sons from his first marriage, one of whom, lan, is a professional cellist in Vancouver.

ALFRED DOULTON

were under 19 years old and customarily not employed

ALFRED DOULTON was one of London's leading headmasters, to whom it fell to guide Highgate School through nearly 20 years of postwar expansion and development. Perched on the brow of Highgate Hill, the school went through a remarkable period of growth in the 1950s and 1960s. Doulton presided over the building of a new dining hall and swimriming pool, new tennis and squash courts and, in 1964 to commemorate the school's 400th anniversary - the addition of a music and arts centre. Dyne House.

On his retirement in 1974

TICKETS FOR SALE

TICKETS

FOR SALE

When responding to a divertisements readers are advised to establish the face due and full details of ticket before entering into any commitment. Most sports cheen are subject to strict sale and transfer rules.

TICKETS

All Cricket, Rugby 5 Nation Celine Dione, Reading. G Estelan, Oasis, All Concerts

Phenton, Saigon, Les Mis Oliver, Cats, Sunset

0171 488 4414

ALL TICKETS

LAST NIGHT OF PROMS, NAT WEST FINAL ENGLAND & PAKISTAN

PEARL JAM, STING, CASI TINA TURNER, READING ROCK FESTIVAL

ALL POP & THEATRE ORTS TICKET SPECIALIST

0171 323 4480

ill major sold out events, the ere, pop, sport tel: 0171 821

ALL TICKETS 5 Nations, Crick Time Turnet, Fronts, C. Died all unjuk pop. sport & theat Tel: 0171 925 0085

1791-1996 other

FOR SALE

Doulton accepted an invitation to join the Independent Schools Information Service (isis) — the body created promote the interests of Britain's fee-paying schools, while also helping to advise prospective parents.

As comptroller of Isis for the next six years Doulton, with his head for figures and business acumen, helped to set the organisation on its feet. He also pioneered its annual census, providing reliable statistics on independent schools for the first time. Doulton, who also served as vice-chairman of the Headmasters' Conference in 1967 and was its treasurer for ten years, was held to be an outstanding example of a classicist who was able to apply his mind to practical matters. When the Conservatives won

MIDWEER

CIFTS

RENDEZVOUS

LIMP PARTNERS National Dat ing Agency, if you are plants of prefer a plump partner rise 01352 715909.

SELF-CATERING

PLATSRARE

WANTED

showls, oriental 0171 229 9618.

MUSICAL

INSTRUMENTS

SUMMER SALE

THEY'RE LOSING LLE's! 180's of planes for sale or hire with option to buy from £20 per month.

0171 935 5682 HW1 6181 854 4517 SE18

(Est 1970) Professional (Is share service, 0171-589 549)

COLLECTOR wishes to purchase old dolls, dolls bouses, toys and musical flows. G171 229 9678 control of Haringey council. they persuaded him in 1968 to become an alderman - and to be on the education committee as vice-chairman.

FLIGHTS

DIRECTORY

and botel accommodation, call in for Monich Betr Festival 20 Sept to 6th Oct. 0181 429 2900, Visa/ Access. ASTA 90685. ATOL 2977, IATA.

ALL WORLDWIDE & ELROPEAN DEST AVABABLE BEST RATES FOR WINTER SK SLAMMER 87
ARIA D 881 Real ages & ATOL MARIE.

WORLDWIDE

01273 700737

ES Africa II 69 Aprilado 20 Fer Ezs 159 India 495 Crotus 219 Mandon

Open 7 deys Bers - 70m 0171 713 7770

israel Ausprafio Ortando S. Alivon Cotada

Al Groups Makin Sign

£129 £449 £189 £288 £289

01476 574111

(759 (56) (68) (185) (125) (127) (729 (759) (559)

Afficiente Politiu Control Granto Master Turbey Cypnos Montrol

PERSONAL COLUMN

VAMABLE Now. Centrall located serviced apts0181 45 3094/ Fax 0181 459 4422

OVERSEAS TRAVEL

Villas/apts, horels, posseder golf hols, flights Longmen fur'l DISI 654 2424. Rotal montus ABTA 21432.

CAPITAL FLIGHTS

0171 209 4000

VICEROY TRAVEL

0171 419 1919

FLIGHTS

DIRECTORY

UK HOLIDAYS

Doulton accepted the invitation only after the governors of Highgate had endorsed it. It was felt that his experience and energy might help to raise

ANNOUNCEMENTS

How near the cure..

we are to

.depends on you

LEUKAEMIA

RESEARCH FUND 43 Great Ormond Street

Cancer Fund For Childre

The young people to whom we give practical help have the will to live and many o

the Fund in your Will you will crable us to expend

Information please contac us on 0171 937 4405 or write to 14 Abingdon Ros

forget you

THE ARMY BEHEVOLENT FUND

our work, For fur

London WE GAR.

Charity No. 256435

them do l By remembe

headmaster a

whose great-grandfather founded the Doulton china firm, was born in Dulwich. south London, where his father was a housemaster at fun which he practised in Dulwich College. He became mischievous letters to his friends. But professionally he a day boy in his father's house was a traditionalist, who before winning a classical strove to win Oxbridge scholscholarship to Brasenose College, Oxford. arships for his school and was His first teaching post was perhaps rather too prone to as assistant master at Corps with the rank of captain. But in 1940 he left to join the Army. Starting in the Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire Light Infantry, he transferred to The Royal Welch Fusiliers and commanded "young soldier units" for a time, guarding airfields and other vital installations. In 1943, however, after going through Staff College.

he left to serve in India as a

Uppingham School, where he also ran the Officers' Training

father being the principal of the local agricultural college.

During the First World War

he served in battleships of the Grand Fleet. In 1922, while in the light cruiser Carvsjort, he took part in the extensive naval operations which attempted to restrain Kemal

Ataturk's ambitions in Thrace.

He later served in the battlecruiser Hood, before standards in state schools. But those were the days of student riots and "sit-ins" (not least at requiring Doulton on one occasion to arrive home with a nolice escort. He left the council without regret after

Alfred John Farre Doulton.

three years.

staff officer. He subsequently served on the Adjutant-General's and Quartermaster-General's staffs in 11th Army Group and saw active service with the 23rd Indian Division in Burma, Malaya and Java. He was appointed OBE (mil) and was twice mentioned in dispatches before being demobilised in 1946 as a lieutenant-colonel. Returning to Uppingham, he was head of

He wrote two books: The 23rd Indian Division in 1951 and Highgate School 1938-44. the story of the school's wartime evacuation to Westward Hol in Devon.

Doulton had a first-class mind which he exercised every morning by polishing off The Times crossword in his study. He also had a famous sense of regard this type of achievement as the benchmark of He played the trombone in school orchestras, served as commodore of the sailing club in Salcombe - where he lived in retirement - and travelled the world as an amateur ornithologist until cancer during the last 18 months of his life restricted him to watching the birds in the bird-bath outside his window. He was passionately fond of cricket. He played for Dulwich and Brasenose, just missed a Blue and turned out for the staff XI at Highgate. His last words were "Good ondrive, Stewart as England's opening batsman powered his way to a century in the second Test match against Pakistan.

He first met his wife Daphne when she went Uppingham School to watch her brother playing cricket for the Colts tto whom Doulton was the coach). They married in 1940 and she survives him. together with their four sons and a daughter.

JIM NICHOLSON

Jim Nicholson, former art director of the National Trust for Scotland, died on July 25 aged 71. He was born on December 21, 1924.

AN ACCOMPLISHED artist. Jim Nicholson managed the art department of the National Trust for Scotland for 20 years. He brought a freshness of vision to his department and was responsible for updating and upgrading many of its publications.

He loved the Scottish landscape and would walk the moors as often as he was able, later painting what he saw. He staged several Edinburgh exhibitions of watercolours of the Highlands and Western Isles, and produced a series of limited edition prints. But he also became known for the eclectic shows in which he would screen his own slides and tell stories from the Western isles. These, whether they were held in Edinburgh's Usher Hall or in little town halls on the island of Harris. consistently attracted enthusiastic audiences. Nicholson always donated the proceeds to charity. Born in Yorkshire, James Hugh Nicholson was educated at Prince William Grammar School, Otley. After a few months in banking it was a relief to him to be called up into the RAF in the last years of the war. As a radio operator he flew in the destructive bombing raid on Dresden on the night of February 13-14. 1945, the horror of which scarred him for the rest of his

After working in advertising he joined the National Trust for Scotland in 1964 as its first artist-designer. One of his earliest tasks was to persuade the Trust to set up a special studio to cope with its rapidly expanding design work. He remained there as its director until his retirement in 1983. Aside from his painting and photography. Nicholson played the accordion with great verve and enthusiasm, and in the 1950s he formed his own Scottish country dance hand - affectionately known as "The Jim Nick Band". Together the group made several records. He was also one of the early members of the Silver Cross Club, formed by a group of young Edinburgh people to entertain visitors to the Festival and introduce them to Scottish music, songs and dance.

Nicholson remained unmarried.

SPAIR IN STANDARD TO THE PROTECTION OF THE PROTE CO WCIN 35 921-405 9101 COSTCUTTERS on Higher & bold to Enrupe, USA & most destina-tions, Diplomat Turvel Surface Ldc. 071-730 2201. ARTA 25703 LATA/ATOL. 1355. classics and housemaster of The Lodge for the next nine years before being appointed 0171 360 1111

CZECHOSLOVAKIA Prague radio announced early today that roops of the Soviet Union, Poland and east Germany started to cross the Czechoslovak border at 11 o'clock last night without the knowledge of the Czechoslovak President, the Chairman of the National Assembly, or the First Secretary of the Communist Party of

RUSSIANS MARCH INTO

Czechoslovakia. The Praesidium of the Czechoslovak Communist Party appealed to all people of Czechoslovakia not to resist the advancing troops and said the National Assembly and the Central Committee of the Communist Party had been called to meet to discuss the

Neither the Czechoslovak Army nor the People's Militia had been called out to delend the country, the broadcast said.

The broadcast came at 2 u.m. today over the direct broadcast network of Radio Prague. An announcer started to broadcast a statement about a meeting of the Czechoslovak Praesidum before the radio went dead.

There was unusual activity at Prague airport, with jet lighters apparently landing. The broadcast said that the entry of Russian. Polish and east German troops into Czechoslovakia without permission "goes against the

ON THIS DAY

August 21, 1968

The invasion of Czechoslovakia by troops from the Soviet Union, Poland and East Germany shocked Western Europe.

basic rights of states and relations between socialist countries". All officials of the Government and of the Communist Party were told to remain in their jobs, and the population asked remain calm. • The Czechoslovak Army of 14 divisions-

the Russians have 140 divisions under arms--showed no sign of movement or action. The Czechoslovak Communist Party

Praesidium had held a meeting last night. There was no indication of what it discussed. but it meets from time to time without issuing any statement. Vienna. Wednesday--Travel to Czechoslovakia from the west has been harred since

The entry ban into Hungary cume into force at midnight at the main crossing point of Nickelsdorf facing the Hungarian border check point of Hegyeshalom.

The closing of the Czechoslovak border was early today, the Austrian Interior Ministry said today. From midnight last night, travel to Hungary from Austria was also stopped, An official of the Ministry said tanks were blocking the bridge at Bratislava. He said he was told by Austrian travellers who were still allowed to pass the Czechoslovak checkpoint that soldiers in the tanks had ordered them to go back to Austria. Soon afterwards, travel was also blocked at the checkpoint.

if the tanks were Russian or Czech.

guard duty.

The official said the travellers could not say

There was information at the Interior

Ministry, however, that Soviet tanks were moving from Hungary into Czechoslovakia, and that they might have taken over border

done in a more erratic way, leading to the belief that the Czechoslovak border officials were surprised by the sudden order.

The official said he had not yet received word from smaller border crossing points. about the situation there. He said there were no reports so far of any Czechoslovak refugee ment into Austria

Wat a sun

TO ADVERTISE CALL: 0171 481 1986 (TRADE) 0171 481 4000 (PRIVATE)

PROPERT

0171 782 7828 (TRADE) 0171 782 7799 (PRIVATE)

SUFFOLK

SE APARTMENT Call (1903) S.C. MYN MINTH (1995) Statuth bedrooms, main hed pressing ame, vignerte genet told (Sachen separate W.C. pelvete Bill, Kachen separatems, box owinger (Sachen sparatems, low owinger (Berneybout, Broughout, low owinger (Berneybout, Commentated) (Sachen private ganger, video entry phone. Your chance practices an individually designed pendousie

a Co 0171 289 1692 Inside REGENTS PARK 2 bed 2nd floor apartment in prestigious Cumberland Terrace with magnificent views. Private parting & gardens. Portered, laundry room & basement storage rooms. 26 year lense with option to extend. OIRO £290,009 ± 0181 845 9293

NORTH OF THE THAMES

bed, period conversion, must sell £99,995 0171 723 9988

ARGARS. Repossessions and Reduced for quick sale props. Capital Property Lists. 7 days 10am-10pm 0171 833 1104.

JTTLE VI

ST JOHN'S WOOD LONDON PROPERTY UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY To acquire a plot with 2 detached houses (1

FRIEEHOLD
TOWNHOUSE
IN VERY QUIET
STRIEET.
ROCKEY RING WI4
close to Stephands Bealv Halland park table, 2 bads, 2 bats, bright fisher room, note Haben, Garage, Olf street
patiety, paid, - a lift leady patiety, and to a lift leady
Cuick stale $180,000, 0171 803 1348

LONDON PROPERTY

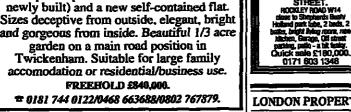

MOM

01582

29404

ASK FOR

PLUMMER

and gorgeous from inside. Beautiful 1/3 acre Twickenham. Suitable for large family accomodation or residential/business use. = 0181 744 0122/0468 663688/0802 767879.

HOW KITCHENS WANTED WE WILL BUILD YOU A SUPERB KITCHEN AT A Fraction of the Normal Cost - If you ET US SHOW IT TO 6 PROSPECTIVE CUSTOMERS This is a genuine offer to enable us to quickly establish a network of PHONE

LUXURY SHOW KITCHENS across the country to support our national advertising campaign. Over 15 eyecalching ranges with many combination options in a multitude of finishes to choose from.

Arthur Rathbone KTTCHENS LIMITED

A superb choice of luxury

3 and 4 bedroom detached homes

interior dough have excited one of Pairclough Homes' most successful

A rare combination of great location, superb exteriors and thoughtful

Add to this an excellent choice of attractive house designs and you

Exchange Schemes - you could be moving sooner than you think!

Ask for details of our Homemaker and 100% Full Value Part sales combinations.

NEW HOMES

2 recep. Brkfst/gining rm, kt., gdn, collar, £355,000 F/hold Flaky Betwee 0171 371 4171

MEJCO Modam nownhouse is good condition with fiscable actogrambation and a possible game. 2/3 bods, study, 2 beth-rocase, shower room, littches, dhalag room, ler floor drawing poots. Freebold E239,000 Winksorth 0171 528 1786

N2 Stylish & spac 2nd fir 2 bed flat in period biding £249,950 Westways 0171 792 2167

TEDDINGTON Riverside Cal do Sac Impressive 3 dible budwin less in idylik une-lined and do sax to own private glits and moorings. Thru rac/dishing room overlooking 2 x 17 san nervato & 65 woodsan glo, GPCH, garage and OSP Close to all amenicies

EGENT'S PARK NW1 Ext 3 be bad, 2 bath pariod mansion flat, close park £210,000 Smatfords 0171 723 9988

MAIDA VALE

W9

SOUGRT-AFTER LOCATION

Large 1st for 2 bed massion. (let & gion, Long lease & stare of Phoid. £162,590

0171 286 6697

SW11 Newly refurb has 3 bd et

£179,500 0171 733 1116 (day)

wiff ARE now in receipt of an effect of 636,000 for the property, Wingfield House (1981). Anyone wishing to place at differ on the property with a view to purchase should conject the spark prior to swinners, Ladlow Thompson 0171 820 0123

BATTERSEA

Tet 0181 788 4455

9956 283 991

Open 1 Control only Victorian business in the State of St

SOUTH OF THE

THAMES

€299,950 Teb 0181 9771767 CITY & WEST END ernised 2 bed, 2 bath fist. Long lease £245,000 0181 381 4845

LONDON PROPERTY

BRENTFORD

PROPERTY

ONDON - Central and week Specialist investment property search service to find you the best properes for growth 4 yield Citisearch 0171, 256 8400 OCREET ST, Wi Cheming, bright 3 bed flat, her grd of period bile. Share of FR. E229,000 Park Lane Apts 01/71 629 07/63 PHONE for lists of flats and houses for sale in Central London, lunes Salway and Company 0171 258 0800

SW7, Robund Gdma. 1st adv. Split level 2 bed, 2 beth flar, ideal ramal invest. 2250,000 Report Williams 0171 495 3662 Vicinada GATE WS Spacions 1 bed flat in portrate black closs High St. Lausshold £135,000 stc Asron & Levis 0171 244 9971: 0171 244 9838f

DOCK SERVICES LTD. -

West London's Premier Riverside Residential Estate.

On a superb Thames riverside site opposite Royal Botanical Gardens, Kew. The Dock is an exciting scheme, incorporating a marina based on Brunel's Great Western Dock Yard. Developed in 1978 we now offer for resale a range of properties on behalf of existing owners.

Over 21 acre site with landscape gardens/river walks. Easy reach of Central London M4/M25, Heathrow. Many properties with south facing balconies, river, marina or park land views. Freehold Management Company, owned by residents full on

PRICE GUIDE One bedroom apartments £55,000-£65,000
Two bedroom apartments £70,000-£105,000
Three bedroom apartments £84,000-£125,000
On the bank of the River Thames with superb views into KewlSyon Park.

4 Bedroom plus study with large terrace £200,000 For full list of details contact: Mark Keen or David Procter Brentford Dock, 2 Justin Close, Brentford, Middlesex Tel: 0181 568 5096

IS AVAILABLE ON

SELECTED PROPERTIES. ASK FOR DETAILS.

NEW HOMES

BERKSHIRE KENSINGTON & CHELSEA house conversion on 2 Scott overlooking Thames £389,000 Legschold 0171 480 6815 sonotte. Views transm.

Re-decorated, new carpet Owned by Barrier House, I available 689.950, Hamily, Estate Agents 01753 62400

CHESHIRE

DWE HELL 5 mine, brand new 1 bed apt, firted kitchem, all appliances, Parking, 597,995. 999 yr lesse, 0271 480 6815 T. HAPPING 3 bed, 3 bath house, 2 receptions, numero overlooking MAYFAIR receptions, terrace overlooking canni. Gazage, plung. £193,000 P/H. 0171-480 6815 T AYFAIR Specialists Fints houses for sale call Goldenber & Co. 0171 491 4101 or Sur http://www.goldenberg.co.uk TOWER BRIDGE DUNE ST. St. James'. Ideal 1 be flat close Fortnum & Heson, S ym, £139 500 Goldenberg & C 0171 491 4101 Sandio Apari. with secont parting HE Perfect Mayfolt spartment 3 bedrooms, 2 large beautiful receptions around large private south Racing tentages, 2625,000. Home & Sons 0171 499 9344

RICHMOND &

KINGSTON

HAM BORDER

Quiet rd to River Thamen. Det, mod, architect-dougned house overhooling playing fields. Light, dual-espect ingerlin. rm, featuring Adam style lineplace with mathle surround. Well St. kh., 2 dbi

0181 748 8833

THE CIRCLE First offer over £75,000 secures

DOCKLANDS

KINGSTON FULHAM OUR BED period house, 33ft reception, 2 baths, kitchen, 32ft lawsed south facing gdn, £215,000 0171 381 8272. THE WATER GARDENS (Fig. WA LEA GARDER
Warren Rd. Kingston-on-Tram Prantigious award winning Octogs built development are in approx acres of landscaped grounds.
Lineary 3 bed top floor aps.
Dib aspect Drawley/Dasing Rm.
with turnen. Kindson/6°5act Rm. Fill-HAM Meticulously modernised 2 bed patio flat, e/s shower, buth & fixted wardrobes £137,500, Tel 0171 385 7000 t GOWAM AVE, period have loft extension & ext nerous side period, buds, both + short range, say let & dining material, 30rt hward gds. 2279,950 0171 381 3272. with terrace. Kitched/is remainded to 2 care batherns, St. e'grad plog for 2 care 220,000 L/H TOWNCHOICE 0181 947 735

OWAN AVE, period hee reconstructs, 25 ft recop, 3 dishe bed £254,950 0171 381 6272. ground FLR Rowly refuse 2 this bed flat, lifet kit, 20ft recp with conservatory back, 40ft gdn. £160,000 0171 381 8272 er Fish SROWY, Period has 24st resp, 18st kit, study, 2 baths, 4 bods, sth fac bale + 35st pario, 6297,000 0171 381 8272 ERIOR Negotistor with management aspirations, 25+ with energy, three and least 3 yes seconsful track record. We effer an excel salary + comm. (OTE 549E) + car. Box No 8322

KENSINGTON & CHELSEA

BERKSHIRE HOMESEARCH LORDON LTD. Let us search for you london's No. 1 specialist search company 0171 460 6444, Pax 460 6445

Historich appartname, 3 bedrooms, expelle bedroom & elector selle se, eonge, dicing men, fully litted leitchen 2 sen tenames, feologied gerden £159,950, privete sale. Tel: 81494 464266 (Office) (11622 26644 (Home)

CUMBRIA

ING VALLEY No.

LIDGERIOUSLY APPRINTED CONNTRY COTTAGE IN THE SOUTH LAKES. Tel or Fax 015242 71049 O.A. £120,000

Henry Adams & Partners

COUNTRY PROPERTY

5 W SCOTLAND KIRKCOWAN NEWTON STEWART Freebold £175.000

Tel 01671 830426 (7 days) Hayes Mccubbin Macfarlane

ABERDEENSHIRE PRODUCTIVE ARABLE FARM ABOUT 355 ACRES (144HA) Mainly Class 3 of which about 310 acres Eligible for arable aid payments FOR SALE WITH VACANT POSSESSION TTRACTIVE AGRICULTURAL INVESTMENT OFFERING POTENTIAL FOR RELATIVELY HIGH YIELD

OFFERS OVER £417,000 Royal Bank Building, Alyth Perthshire PHI1 8AA TEL 04828 632786, FAX 01828 632214

HERTFORDSHIRE DERBYSHIRE ESTREE A unique 5 hed char her residence with thatch tool as for hed superh bouths tool as of Amongst magnific secluded grounds (2.25 acc Offers in supers of £1 milli Cornect john Harris of Vita Extress 0181 207 0085 ROMFORD Nr Matlockbath. 2 betwoom red brick cottage ideal holiday bome in the heart of the peak district. Offers 1780 £55,000 01629 826465 WANTED

BERKHAMSTED Period family be 15 beds m Substantial detached Victorian home. Six Within 45 mins Sheffield. Cash purchaser. bedrooms, Large reception rooms, Gardens, Double Garage, Euston 31 mins (310,000) Immediate exchange with pletica prior to 1st June 1997 if required. 0114 267 0453 CASTLES Tel: 01442 865252

KENT

DEVON FOWEY RIVER Estate Ages Country and Waterside speci-lets for the picturesque Fow Estater; Wide selection properties from cortages castles.Tel 01726 B33000 CORNWALL

Castles.Tel 0.1726 B33000
SOUTH DEVON, 'Lindridge Park's analyze and limited development of upperb characters broaders from the second part of the SOUTH CORNWALL HELFORD RIVER WATER FRONTAGE TO PORT NAVAS CREEK

Mawnen Smith (Tel) 01326 250228 (Fax) 61326 250185 Quality det bome v. well presented. 4 beds (1 e/st, v. bge loungedfining, hit/break, util, eller, batturu with corner buth. Di/plaz, gas C.H., saum, 1 membership for pur 73 golf course. Rurai vetting 8 PIBLACS HORSE AGENCY

COTSWOLDS BROADWAY Neading restoration, charmi-rade II Cosswold stone house any original features. Stoing re-with implements desired.

£137,500. 0171 720 2477/0468 810369(mob) BROCKHAMPTON SUPERS LANGE GROUND FLOOR, 2 BED APARTMENT I JACOBEAN MANOR HOUSE O'VILLE RURAL LOCATION 8 ACRES OF GARDEN WITH

LAKE CONVENIENT CHELTENHAM. BR PADDONGTON 65 MINS $92,000 TEL: 01242,821037

HAMPSHIRE

0171 419 2020 Wee

DEVON

$135,000

rwood Warmi 61271 23296

IDEAL HOLIDAY HOME

arch, 2/3 bedrooms, butter

setie, sesseg room, ter of g pool and backing one or ld shooming on Roser Store

£112,000

DORSET

COUNTRY COTTAGE Rare location, 2 reception, good ized kitchen, 3 beds. 2 bathan on exacts: Located almost 344 mile sized fatchen, 3 beets. 2 magam one emsuite. Located almost 34 mile down private tree funed drive. Gardens & paddock of 3 acres. Outstanding minterrupted views over woodlands in heart of Exbury Estate.

Offers to excess of £165,898
Crashon Ltd
Tel 01296 668304 Fax 01296 669020

GRIEGS GREEN
Nr Liphook, Harnts
Two brand new detached loses, but by Berbeley Homes in byt spec, mr, golf course, 45 peds, 2 baffs, 3 mes, fit.

A HOUSE in North Morfolk? Leves help, Morfolk Coestal House Search 01485 210641 24 has NORTHAMPTONSHIRE

SCOTLAND

Nain, or inverses Unique property in peaceful, rural location, Beautifully converted Corusali with 3 back, open plan £129,900.

Tel: 01667 453087/454411.

SHROPSHIRE IN OSWESTRY Det 4/5 bed o r in own grounds approx 20, £96,500. 01691 65218 SOMERSET

Living the nace

SURREY

SURBITON Peaceful southborgh conservation near. Spacious 1st floor convention apartment in 18 acrs. SW aspect. 19 ft sitting room. FVF meater bedroom with ensuin, 17 ft 2nd bedroom (or dining room), traditional landers. £124.950. Offers considered. 0181 399 0543

BUILD PLOTS 3 ONLY! Fantser views across channel to Fran Unrepeatable white chiffs por ten. Bentiful high class as Planning for bur houses £500 to £146. Belidem peckage 570 Must be viewed kicoal food. 1 Margarets Bay, Nr Doves, 0123 610637 (Pax 622405) SUSSEX HERSTHORICEUX 400 yr old, 4 hed corrage with views, busi sea, £120,000, 01323 833094. need 1220,000. 01323 853094.

BRIGHTON Central North Laines Conservation Area. Chose str. Unique mews 11 cottages garvate plac, 2 bedwar gas thread the 1669,950 494,000 Emittar Property Sarvices 01273 200122.

TURSHINGE WELLS 5 mines (Mark Cross). Victorian village Police Station converted turn spectous interesting 4 bedroom house, ensuits bathroom, 3 recoppions, bicheen, editer, garage, good garden, views over Susser Wesld. Only 2159,500 Quality convention from tepotable local builder. Phone today 01892 512449. Nr DEAL 200yr old, 3 storey contage. 24th split-level lounge with beamed celting (3rd bedroom string room, litchen/dimer, double Bedrooms, Bethroom Boarded Loft Space, GCH, ng room; Estimesvaner, a sie Bedrooms; Bethroom: artical Loft Space, GCH, ly double glazed, 90th Re Gartien, ondon/France 114, lss. No chain 263,399 01243 431496 0202 424780 02 434789 Chichester 4 mls SANDGATE Victorian Sessironi terracosi brusse arranged as 3 technoom malsonesse with badhnoom and shower notine, SCH and 1 bedroom "grampy flat" near Eurobassed and chanstel ports. Unobstracted sent/was.

275,000

HERTUK

ESSETTIVE
Weer Maidenry
Eschishin Grade II 5 bed barn, 5 Institutes, 4 reception, study, IF Smallborn inicitum and high quality fizzion. In cuteranting position with quaternatic views agreement by lead private drive. Asy 3 bedroug store cottage bach in lessettind countywal speting, 8% acres plus studies;
(2225,000 for Sam
£195,600 for cottage or

2475,000 for leads Tel: 01233 758638

coin. Individual 4 had metural stone house with double garag in sought after conservatio area £130,000. 01775 71060

KRRAINGTON VALE, North Lines.

19th Century Boune and Coach
House in 3 5 acres. Forusar Carlicens Mess. Swinsming pool and termis court. By suction to be said 3 September 1996.

Gaide price £330-2400.000.

Bensom Auxtlons 01404

234562.

NORFOLK

LINCOLNSHIRE

REGENCY VILLA C1780 her single sorry, mitable retirences or weekend hee. Master bedriff & bath es mite. 2nd bedriff & bath es mite. Fif ist, large recep, law died gardens, superio extensive views. Garner, £155,400 Tel-01243 544472 pc Tel: 01303 240473 0850 963862

BRIGHTON/ROTTINGDEAN ptel, integral garage, new litebes, jugazi batheena. Offers even £265,864.

Tet: 01273 325007 (W) 01273 307037 (H) HOVE SEA FRONT

Luttry grad in fixt in Grade II lated building with patio & walled gds. Magnifects are views, 17% lough. Original features including markle frepling & painted calling, 2 bods as saite, 1 with buth, 1 with shower, indy ferred letection, GC £39,500 to include curt Tel: 91273 726627

PEVENSEY (Carque Port) CHURCH SCHOOL HOUSE (1876) Conversed for elegant iverg retaining original passelling & courtyard. paion, 3 Bedrooms, 1 en badroom, 4 W.C's

£124,950 BRADLEYS 01323 460632

SHOREHAM DETACHED

BUNGALOW

3 between, large losage, large double garage, private drive, very stebulod. large pusions
seasonan with recluded

Pauchouse in period building in excellent position on seafrow. 3 eds, 2 buth, 2 receptions. Big ne-frinchen, Central Hearing, lift.

Bargain at only £135,000. Tel:0181 995 8547

WALES

WARWICKSHIRE

THESE ARE JUST SOME OF THE NEW HOMES CURRENTLY AVAILABLE. FOR DETAILS OF THESE AND ANY OF OUR OTHER PROPERTIES AND DEVELOPMENTS ACROSS LONDON AND THE SOUTH EAST CALL ANY OF THESE NUMBERS TODAY.

01628770070

Belvedere Grange. A beautiful recreased country style massion, the Evening Standard Award Best New Apartment winner, contains just six luxury apartments. The 3 bedoom penthouse, with glorious views over Sunningdale Golf Course and beneficing from an interior design scheme, is now available. Viewing by appointment only. BUCKINGHAMSHIRE American From £157.500 01494 677777

Oakfield Park Gardens. A choice of 3 or 4 bedroom curage style homes and 2 or 3 bedroom apartments on a prominent, mature size in the centre of American-on-the-Hill, adjacent to

Queensgate - Kingshurst, Hertford

For a private viewing please Come kome to quality

CALL 0181 938 3848 TO RECEIVE DETAILS OF OTHER NEW FAIRCLOUGH DEVELOPMENTS

3 bedroom detached houses at £116,950

telephone 01992 501828

BERKSHIRE

4 bedroom detached houses from £119.950

the shapping centre and only some 350 yards from Amerikan commuter station (Marylebone 35 minutes). nd From £187,500 rd Place, Seeleys Road.

01494 677777 £865,000 Beconsided £865,000 014946///
Spencer House. A decached 5 bedroom home in one of Beaconsfield's premier roads. Featuring 5 reception rooms, including a games room large enough for a full size snooker table, fitted kitchen, 5 hadrooms (4 en-suite), and a triple

£104,950 to £2,10,000 01256814314 Poste £100,950 m £10,000 0120 819514
Canford Claffs, Canford Heights. An exclusive development of only sixten prestigions 2 and 3 bedroom lumny apartments in a private, secure setting, close to both the beach and village centre. All have secure storage areas, the use of a gymnasium and a porter (optional). Canford Heights offers a choice of layouts and is ready for occupation. 60% already reserved. LONDON

Fairclough Homes

Berners Street, WT £255,000 to £525,000 York House. A luxury development of 1, 2 and 3 bedroom apartments intuated in the W1 area of central London. Each dation and en-suite fac

From £247,500 Danemere Place. An auractively designed development in keeping with surrounding Victorian and Edwardian styled properties, featuring brick detailing, inconvork and pillared entrances. These high specification 3 and 4 bedroom townbooms feature beauty letchens and appealing bay windows. ONFORDSHIPE.

Oxford £195,000 m£193,500 01235 559111
Summertown. Four delightful rown houses, with south facing gardens and conservatories, close to local facilities. With bedrooms, 2 bathrooms, sitting room, kitchen and om, and private parking.

Pyriard 1114.950 to 1339.000 01932.868999
St Nicholas Crescent. The opportunity to purchase into this idyllic hillrop "village" within twenty acres of private estate. Secured gated driveway through parkland and tennis courts. Magnificent Green Bele location just one mile from West Byffiert and within 3 miles of Ad/M25 (Junction 10). I and 2 bedroom lift serviced luxury apartments, 3 hedroom woodland cortages, 3/4 bedroom homes and 4/5 bedroom homes in a grand crescent all built to a high specification. A REPORT OF THE PROPERTY.

Visit a showhome this Bank Holiday weekend and... experience the difference.

Call any of our sales offices now for details of showhomes open across London & the south east.

01256 814314

Above all else, it's a Berkeley Home

SALTO LO

35

Abandon clutter for the Minimalist style and a world of wide open rooms, says Rachel Kelly

Living in the new space age

only for the tidy. In this Modernist architect's new development in Pollen Street, London WI, the eight flats feature hidden sliding doors. They peel back to create open-plan spaces obliterating the divisions between bedrooms, sitting rooms and

The conversion of a former office building developed by Jeremy Samuels of Samson Properties will be ready in the autumn: flats will be offered from £230,000 through the agent Winkworth. The showers are circular, the baths of limestone, the walls stark and white and the scheme marked throughout by its absence of door knobs, cornicing or architectural frills. It is a case of Minimalism par excellence, what Doris Saatchi described as "freedom from the tyranny of knick-knacks".

As Herbert Ypma points out in his new book, London Minimal, London leads the world in its Minimalist approach. A small crop of London architects and designers led by John Pawson, Stanton Williams, and Mark Guard are exponents of the theory that in the chaotic hustle and bustle of urban life, one's home must be a serene retreat.

Sue Crewe, the editor of House and Garden, says: "As 'out there becomes more challenging — more to do, more choice, more information, more traffic, more people, more fear - so we need our homes to be serene and safe. Pale, uncluttered interiors are appearing, not at the whim of interior decorators pronouncing The Nineties are neutral but because of an instinctive need for our houses to be more tranquil."

The quickest way to serenity is to banish clutter in favour of the luxury of space. Minimalism may seem to be about having less but, as Mr Guard says, it is about providing more options. "My work is not a process of reduction," he says. "It is one of addit-ion. I believe that I add extra functions to a house. People can change the way they use my rooms. Giving my clients the chance to change the push of a button rates as the ultimate in convenience and luxury. The main feature of my work is to make space flexible. In Pollen Street, you can space using the sliding control doors."

In an earlier Guard project in Paris, one small space was unified by a stone-tiled floor that ran out to include a terrace. Press a button, and a slah of previously hidden wall slides out to enclose a bedroom, so an unexpected guest can be accommodated. Though the glass wall of the bathroom provides a greater sense of space, it seems to lack in privacy. But at the push of yet another button, the clear glass becomes opaque.

The second characteristic of this hand of Minimalists is to stress the quality of the materials used in their developments. So in Pollen Street, for example, the stress is on the lime-stone baths and the birchwood floors.

ronically, such a movement had its origins in London, home of chintz and cluttered houses. Yet as Mr Ypma points out, the cosiness we associate with our domestic interiors is relatively new. Until 50 years ago, England was seen as the home of advanced technology. so much so that the American author Ralph Waldo Emerson could talk about the country's "passion for utility".

Mr Ypma says: "A minimal approach is much more part of the national character than people imagine, from the restraint of Georgian London's Classicism to the high-technology standardisation of the Industrial Revolution.

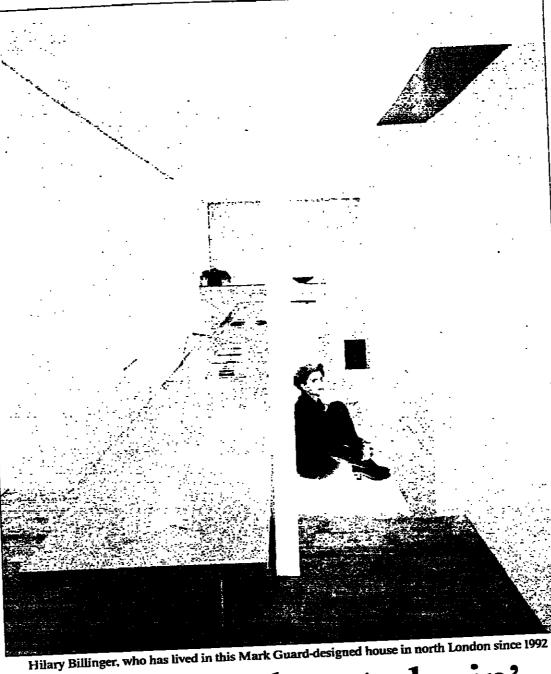

This passion was taken by Britain in the work of George Gilbert Scott, through the Festival of Britain in the 1950s and on into the 1960s when London again scooped the world with Terence Conran's Habitat, which was the first chain of shops to take the principles of good design to the ● London Minimal, by Herbert Ypma, is published by Thames and Hudson (£16.95).

SHOW APARTMENT OPEN FRIDAY TO

WEDNESDAY FROM 11AM TO 6FM. THURSDAY 11AM TO 7FM.

TELEPHONE 0171 631 1083

A warm place to be in'

People think it must be very clinical and cold to live in a Minimalist house. In fact, it is quite the opposite," says Hilary Billinger, who has lived in a Mark Guard-designed house in Kensal Rise, north London, since 1992. "Thanks to the glass, there is masses of light, which makes it a very warm place to be in."

The lack of clutter is relaxing. "You are not always having to pick things up," says Mrs Billinger, a 37-year-old BBC employee. "The house is cleverly designed so that there is masses of storage space."

Both Mrs Billinger and her husband Steve came from Canada, which she thinks has inspired her desire for space. "Homes there are larger and more spacious. I

from £150pw

Security & Parking

CLUTTONS

0171-237 7575

WILTSHIRE

LONDON RENTALS

think traditional Victorian houses in London tend to have small rooms to hold the heat," she says. "We yearned for space."

The house has folding doors that can enlarge or reduce the size of the rooms, and four bedrooms upstairs have been knocked into one living area.

When the Billingers moved in, they did not have any children. Now they plan the house with children in mind. Since the arrival of their first baby five weeks ago, they are considering whether or not they will have to move, "It is okay for the moment," Mrs Billinger says, "but in the future she might fall down the stairs, to which a stairgate cannot be fitted, and there are glass walls."

HAMPSHIRE

Rooms with a view to improvise

good collection of Minimalist houses is for sale. Conan Walsh writes. Knight Frank 10171-480 6848) is asking £845,000 for a flat at St Peter's, 25-29 Henrietta Square, London WC2, Designed for the existing own-er by Philip Gumuchdjian and decorated in an unadorned style by Anna Norman, the flat has views of the historic gardens of St Paul's Church. The spa-cious, double-height reception area leads via a sliding oak door into the master bedroom and dressing room, and a timber, steel and glass staircase leads to the mezzanine study or secand bedroom. Knight Frank's books can also boast that rare thing: a Minimalist conversion outside London. About 1500,000 will buy you Strood Place in Warnham. West Sussex. Externally. care has been taken to retain the old-world charm of this country house, and the gardens and courtyard remain highly formalised. But the interior has been redesigned to give a new owner almost endless scope improvisation, and walls have been demolished to provide larger spaces.

in London. Savilis (0171-824 9033) is selling the newly rebuilt 39 Queen's Grove, St John's Wood, for £2.25 million. Behind a stucco-fronted period facade. the house has been enlarged to accommodate at least five bedrooms. The reception areas are open-plan and the lower-ground floor can be opened out into one reception area, leading to the garden. The area could also be divided to provide a din-ing room with a high ceiling.

The Manhattan Loft Corporation (0171-031 1888) specialises in buying, firing and selling shell apartments, often converted from redundant commercial and industrial buildings, en-abling buyers to define their own space. The company has redeveloped the former Marquee club in Richmond Mews, Soho, into a building which now houses not only Sir Terence Conran's Mezzo restaurant but 28 flats (priced at between £88,000 and £700,000) and three penthouses (£850,000 to £2.5 million).

The corporation's latest development at Bankside Lofts, Hopton Street SEI, has 130 flats, ranging in price from £70,000 to £050,000, and forged from a Victorian warehouse, a 1950s office building and a 12-storey tower. The flats look on to the City and St Paul's Cathedral.

that also houses 28 flats and three penthouses

NEW HOMES EDINGTON THE BRIARLEY - HAREBELL HILL - COBHAM acious modern proper Beautiful rural views GRACIOUS LIVING, s, 4/5 beds, 2 en s en (1/3 acre) BERKELEY STYLE. 5300'000 reme farete. UE Rd NWS Lass flat, phg. 4 4 bth, 2 rec, port, unfurn Oper or sale. 01277 651659 Tel owner: 01380 R30872 ngs, decorations, garden. Gard YORKSHIRE £850,000 turn Ot. odn. pp. lge l per. 0171 371 6696 WEST YORKSHIRE STONE BUILT 4 bed detected in 0.8 acres. Susted A1/M62. diédin, pario gán, CEI, dbl ga infurn E525yw. Beds essenti eposit req. Day 398 6438 £195,000 The Briarley is an individual 5 bedroom family home set in its own secluded and mature MOUTH KEN, SW7. Short let mouths. Int des 1 bed gdn II Furn. £290 pw. 0171 371 669 Phone 01977 $\mathbf{1}_{t_2}$ acre plot within the leafy surrounds of Harebell Hill. Offering the ultimate in 676957 comfortable living, the Briarley features an impressive specification that includes: ♦ 5 reception rooms ♦ Concrete first floors ♦ Triple garage ♦ Light fittings Mayflower Gate ♦ Ensuite hathishower room to each bedroom ♦ Marble entrance hall ♦ Fully Carpeted T PAULS 2 mins. Viux targe brand new 2 bed [/f, pkg ar tube £395 pw 0171 488 1458 MORTGAGES ◆ Light fatings ◆ Fitted Fireplaces ◆ Video entry system ◆ Central Oak staircase Ocean Village Fully ♦ Marble en-suite Bathrooms to Master & Second bedroom Southampton Fully fitted French designer kitchen furnished LONDON RENTALS Full hardwired security system A superb 3 bedroom development Fully W2. Bayswater. Escalant 3 bed flat with Cable TV. Must be seen. E385 pw. Call Christian 0171-284 3111 of 1, $\bar{2}$ and Marina 3 bedroom W11. U/F house, very good order 4 bods. 2 recep, off st perking gdn. E/50pw. 0171-727 1997 townhouses homes. London WI furnished HAMPTONS from 1 bedroom CRESSWELL PLACE - SWIO apartments from £120,500 WHEREEDOM - Delightful 2/3 bedrm cottage, quiet loc, off street plug & sect. gdm immuse cond. 6275 pm 0181 944 6844 Marina 2 bedroom. apartments from Furniture CHISHIGTON WE 2/3 bedroom move house. Close to Tabe, shops & park. Furn. / unfurn £485pw Tet-0171 385 1192 Carpets townhouses Curtains CENTRAL have fully fitted kitch CONTRACTOR, WS Let floor bal cony flat. Good recep. £325 ps DM & Co. 0171 225 3111 Light fittings and carpets. TO COUNTRY RENTALS Oven, hob & hood designed For further details Washing machine 01703 222012 F.W. GAPP your Dishwasher NEEDS with you in STONDON MASSEY Fridge 2 dal bed koury maisoneste. Lgo ldt., inge & gallery. £375pw. NOTTINGHILL GATE actory with 6 bedrooms PVCu double glazing The Property Manager 1 bed lineary period flat. All 0171-243 0964 (4,000 port. Long Let We have now opened our magnificent show apartment at York House. mind. ST. JOHN'S WOOD Patio garden OWDENS ESTATE AGENTS In what is considered by many to be one of the most sought after residential areas of 01279 653067 01371 820382 London, York House offers the opportunity to live in gracious splendour and style. Garage 0171 872 5776 GRAYSHOTT SE16 • TO LET ♦ NEW 999 YEAR LEASES ♦ EXCEPTIONAL INTERIOR SPECIFICATION ♦ FULLY RITTED DESIGNER RECORD OUEENSGATE SW SURREY WILCON HOMES 1, 2 & 3 Bed Superb house, exchange pyt. nd. Set in sechaded 2% acres, besutiful gata, 45 bdrus, 3 bdrus, 3 bdrus, 3 bdrus, 3 to 24 nn. no. nds. nds. 3 to 24 nn. nd. 1 ddrus, 45 nnss Waterloo, £2000pcm. Long let, unfara. PRICES FROM £255,000 TO £525,000 Furnished/ Unfurnished

Tel: 01428 604856

Tel: 0171 937 5852

Pollution.

The Germans are looking to Britain for humour

Don't mention the war...

JOE

JOSEPH

ou would think that any nation willing to entrust its fate to Helmut Kohl already showed quite a rugged sense of humour, but the Germans just don't see it that way.

Germans, according to a weekend newspaper report, are so desperate to develop a nose for madcap fun that they are scouring Britain for sit-coms and sit-com writers. But what does that prove that British sit-coms are king of the heap? Or does it merely underline - as critics of British sit-coms would probably argue - quite how clueless Germans are when it comes to knowing what's funny and what isn't?

There are only two hit German comedies: the Harald Schmidt Show, styled on David Letterman, and Samstag Nacht, based on America's Saturday Night Live. This is why ZDF and RTL, the state-owned

German television stations, have been sent to frisk the Edinburgh Festival for hot comedians and scriptwriters who can craft Germany's first situation comedies: the sort of thing Germans like are Fawlty Towers, the slapstick of Mr Bean, Blackadder and the bad behaviour of Ab Fab.

All very watchable, of course. But what else is there lower down the British batting order? Are there many other current or recent triumphs - or are the critics right when they say that the best British sit-coms now live in the archives, alongside Faulty Towers, Dad's Army. Hancock. Steptoe and Son and Porridge?

Today the big noise in sit-coms is made by the top American imports such as Friends, Seinfeld, The Larry Sanders Show, Frasier, Roseanne and the late, much lamented Cheers. What chips can British sitcom producers throw into this pot?

Simon Nye's Men Behaving Badly has done speciacularly enough at home to arouse interest abroad, and an Americanised version will take a bow on NBC this autumn. But American highbrows. used to the sly wordplay of Seinfeld and Friends. and maybe less used to the slapstick and bottom jokes that are a staple of British sitcoms, are already getting sniffy about the arrival of Men Behaving Badly.

Elaine Showalter, Professor of Literature at Princeton and TV critic of People magazine. is aghast. "The characters are stereotypes, the jokes predictable," she sniffs. The best and most successful American sit-coms, like Friends and Seinfeld, are superbly written: each episode usually has three plot lines that are brought together in the most ingenious way. Such subtlety is beyond Nye." Yikes!

GIBRALTAR

TIE ANSWER TO YOU AN PROBLEMS PLA Meditemmeso Lifestyle & Clin

Low personal tax and CTT - No CG

Low personal tax and CTT - No Ush Minimum 30 day skay qualification English language, law and currency Luxuuy merina apartments & pents 20 nains from 197 Ryder Cup Excellent medical tecilibes Inspection 111g hts Price range £160-450k

UK 0181 477 5050 Gii 00 350 40550

PORTUGAL

Even The Economist recently found itself fretting about the British sit-com's chances against all the heavyweight American competition. Its conclusion about the cutthroat sit-com world was that working out "which succeed, and why, seems as mysterious as ever". Though maybe not quite so mysterious in the case of such sad British stabs as Nice Day at the Office, Oh Dr

Beeching and others too grim to recall.

Champions of the American sit-com (we must keep reminding ourselves that brilliant as Seinfeld and Cheers might be, we see only the cream of the crop here) argue that the group-writing technique, combined with the practice of rewriting right up to the last minute, will obviously produce sharper, tighter scripts. It is hardly a very new idea: the German-born film-maker Ernst Lubitsch took months to polish his jokes, constantly sending back drafts to writers with the accented reproof: Funny, yes. But is it hilahrious?" Well, Cheers and Seinfeld and Friends might not solve the world's problems, but they are more often "hilahrious" than much of the current British crop. And it is not just Yankee boasting. Even Simon Nye rates Friends "a masterpiece of dest humour". Returning recently from a trip to American sit-comland, Sue Teddern, who writes for Birds of a Feather, cooed that Friends "isn't just funny, it's funny in a cool, confident, we-don't-have-to-try-hard kind of way . . . it's too easy to dismiss the American process as a big-scale production line, compared to our cute cottage industry. Whatever they're doing, they're doing it right because of their approach, not despite it."

That's the trick? Whereas the best American sit-coms are certainly www.more daring, sophisticated, intelli-gent, metropolitan, fresh and adult, as well as being funny, their English rivals are still peopled with characters who huff and mug and panic histrionically like Terry Scott in Terry And June, who say "Oooh, I say" and smirk suggestively when someone asks them if they've got a Curly-Wurly in their pocket, and who act in the exaggerated gestures of provincial panto performers.

But why can't Germans nurture homegrown funny talent? According to Andreas Rolf, who writes for Germany's equivalent of Radio Times, German humour today is stodgy because it lacks Jewish bite: "Our culture has suffered from the loss of the sharpness, the Jewish wordplay, the verbal duelling." Now that really is funny. Even to Lubitsch. Actually, it's even a little spooky.

A drink to your health, Oz

THERE was a spine-chilling moment for Alan Yentob, the BBC's newly appointed director of programmes, last week. At the unveiling of the not-sogripping daytime schedule at Television Centre, all was going marvellously until Pat Smylie, the veteran freelancer. piped up with a question about the BBC's new programme Style Challenge, which offers fashion and hair makeovers to prison officers and frustrated housewives. Tell me. Mr Yentob, how come you are still listing Oz Clarke as one of your presenters when he was in fact murdered last week?" she Panic flickered across Mr Yentob's handsome features and his eyes darted from one aide to the next as collective sniggers were stifled. But after a hasty word in his ear from a press officer, the famous Yentob smile returned. The hapless Ms Smillie had confused wine expert Oz Clarke, star of Food and Drink, with Ossie Clarke, the Sixties fashion designer stabbed to death at his home earlier this month.

 MUCH as she yearns to be left alone to enjoy a life of privacy, the Duchess of York's arm has been sufficiently twisted into giving her first live interview in America to Diane Sawyer, the TV host.

In a show which coincides with the launch of her autobiography on November 13, the Duchess will no doubt open her heart about how she has coped with relentless media intrusion into her life etc. etc. But the cynics who are already groaning inwardly should perhaps be grateful for small mercies. For news reaches The Listener that Britain's favourite redhead had formally agreed to host her own chat show on one of the big American networks. The man behind the scheme was her loyal friend, the multimillionaire impresario Robert Stigwood, who had the deal signed, sealed and delivered. It was only after concerned friends in Britain persuaded her that it was perhaps not a good idea to become the Royal Family's answer to Gaby Roslin that she pulled out. Shame.

Acting president

THE French may still be spitting on our beef, but at least the Union Flag will be flying in a small corner of Normandy from August 30. The Listener can reveal that the fragrant British actress Charlotte Rampling will be this year's president of the jury for the Deauville Annual American Film Festival. Ms Rampling will be judging a series of big-name blockbusters, picking from Eddie Murphy's film Professor Foldingue, My Doubles.

James Major: troublemaker

My Wife and Me starring Andie McDowell: Ken Russell's Escape from Los Ange-les and Bill Pullman and Will Smith's Independence Day. the No 1 American box-office film this summer.

One Hollywood star will not be gracing Deauville. The diminutive Tom Cruise. whose film Mission: Impossible will be represented, is too busy holidaying in Capri.

• JAMES MAJOR, son of the Prime Minister. is showing unnerving signs of becom-ing a chip off the old block.

TCC. The Childrens' Channel, carried out a survey for the launch of its "Looks Like Trouble" season of programming which marks its transformation to a cable channel for teenagers. It asked 40,000 youths. via the Internet. whom they considered to be the country's biggest troublemaker. In at number two was the Prime Minister, who polled 6.000 votes. At number ten was James. "It is quite cool for him to get a place in the top ten." a TCC spokesman says. "He comes in just after Paul Gascoigne and Camilla Parker Bowles."

· 经公司

 $\lim_{n\to\infty} |A_n|^{\frac{2}{2}n}$

440, 123

Small wonder

CONSIDERING the hundreds of column inches devoted to the story of the single mother pregnant with octup-lets, would it be reasonable to assume that Mandy Allwood is now a household name?

Not if you work for The Observer. In an article last Sunday headlined "I've been misquoted", the woman in question became a Mandy mallwood. Confused possibly by the paper's erratic new layout, subs have perhaps been treating themselves to longer-than-usual lunches.

An eye for the main chance

Cheek of the devil: Branson hijacked the Tory campaign shopping. Sulta opportunity. US$ David Brown. Liceux 001 941 7921731

104A ROEBUCK ROAD

CHESSINGTON

TO LET

230.11 SQ.M. FACTORY (2,500 SQ.PT) 64.5 SQ.M. OFFICES (660 SQ.PT) RENT: 23,000:00 p.a.z.

TEL/FAX: 0181 241 1921

BARRATT

WITH EUROPE'S PREMIER TIMESHARE RESORTS

shown below buys you your own apartment or lodge, for one week each year - SO YOUR HOLIDAYS GO

And should you occasionally feel like a change of ne - you can exchange your week for a holiday at one of 3,000 superb resorts around the world. So go for it - there's never been a better time to buy.

DISCOVER A P

A PASSION

GS Orlando and

COMMERCIAL PROPERTY

TIMESHARE OVERSEAS

.FOR

VIRGIN Atlantic boss Richard Branson, never one to miss an opportunity, hijacked the publicity surrounding M&C Saatchi's "New Labour.

New Danger" poster at the weekend. As the Tory party scrapped over whether it should run such a campaign, Branson used the affair to take a potshot at his old adversary, BA. His agency. Rainey Kelly Campbell Roalfe, put together a press ad which carried the line: "BA/AA merger, real danger" and featured pictures of the two airlines' chiefs with their eyes replaced with the sinister pair from the Labourbashing poster.

Branson's agency spotted the opportunity for a one-off ad and contacted him on his private island for the goahead. Such is the nature of client servicing these days.

ADVERTISING ...

M&C SAATCHI'S bubble has finally burst — and the rival Cordiant group agency. Bates Dorland, has most happily burst it.

Dorlands has lured a key creative duo away from Maurice's breakaway shop back into the Cordiant fold. Richard Dean and Martha Riley. both former employees at Dorland's sister agency Saatchi and Saatchi, are to join Dorlands next month. Riley worked on the Club 18-30 poster campaign at Saatchis, and the pair both worked on Silk Cut and Courage Best while at M&C

Saatch Their departure marks the first senior staff loss at M&C Saatchi since it was launched 17 months ago.

THE Advertising Association is to give parents practical advice on how to bring up their offspring in a consumerdriven mass media culture.

The trade federation has assembled a set of guidelines which draw on a fund of academic research and parenting knowledge and are aimed at returning power to those who are older and wiser (and who, after all, hold the purse strings).
The guidelines, drawn up in handy booklet form, are to be released this week and are being made available to par- k. ents through the National Confederation of Parent-Teacher Associations, while additional copies are being sent to local education authorities and central libraries. Kids, you have been warned.

Belinda Archer 🤃

PROPERTY

COUNTRY RENTALS GIBRALTAR HERTS London 35 mis U/F 5 bed Manor has, 10 acre gdn/graning £2,500 pcm 01462 432953 OKSIG, Surrey, Ranch-style undura 5 bedrm house, 3 buths 3 receps, smoother its, annexe ongers 6 bearing goine, 3 letts 3 recept, smoother rin, annex stabiling for 8 houses, 5 acre 68,000 pcm, 01483 762626

PROPERTY WANTED 1/2 Bed flets required to let, S.W. London, Puther/Fullars etc. MSL Estates, 0171 823 4142

CANARY ISLANDS MERIFE Vast cale F/H apts & Miles £60k-£800k opt. gtood catal income, Also land plots sysilable, 01202 311318.

FRANCE

PANISCE. Provence. New 3/4 hed wills on quiet one accession of the separation of the separation stopped of the separation stopped of the separation of the s

SCZ - Promeundo des Angleis Last 2 and 3 room spattments with large balcoules & sew view for said in one of the most prestigious new blecks on the kivigez. Superp vario. Tel SPA: 0171 483 0606 Fee: 483 0438

THE ALGARVE raciolas, wer interiorists. Fally fisted letectures. nished. Bezutikul kocarlon £59,000. Tel: 01622 695615 Fac 01622 765451 rian 15km 4 yr old Alpine Cha-let. 3 bod, baydon, FF kinchen and games. Mrs views, nr Shi lifes, £125,000. 01753 888281 RETIREMENT HOMES

COTE D'AZUR House in small sectors private development of 14. Seasonal sea, views on edge of tay of Carnes. 2 bedrooms, 2 bedrooms, 2 bedrooms, 2 bedrooms, 2 bedrooms, 2 bedrooms, daily equipped buthes, daily/loungs, sea terracts, garage and stared pool & garage and stared pool & garage.

FF2_180_000 Tel: 01756 749649

MOORING ed. South of France Part Grissant. 30mm or 7 and Gris of St Tropez. 18 Heaves, 25 year least. 675,000 or 45,000 part APARTMENT Learny 1 bed, raised ground floor with large perio overlooking prooring also available at £100,000 freshold. Tel:01895 820222

SWITZERLAND enizzal AME) Verbier. For pale lexantious 3-4-5 rooms small chalets, fox (0041) 26 31 64 65 Real Estatu Valena, CH

. NEW HOMES

PREMIER

Saxons Loa, set in the heart Sheer Quality of beautiful Leicestershire conservation village of

Tucked away in the beautiful Pickwell, you'll find 5 individually designed 4 & 5 bedroom homes This exclusive development is ideally situated for schools. shops & leisure facilities, close to Rutland Water. from £199,950 Call 01775 710600

PORTUGAL ALGARVE Absoncti to Lagos, Val do Lobo, Quinta do Lago Carvosiro, Villas & apartments do Lobo, Carvostro, Villas & sportson.
Carvostro, Villas & sportson.
For personal service Prims
Property Int 01628 778841. PRAIA DA ROCHA

ALGARVE
1 bedroom ternished
atwent, fully light liftchen, rooms, businge, shared pool, arps pattle, 200 yeards to beach. Apply to: leafaet Amado Alvas Solicitor, Plus do Carvelho, 3/2/8 8500 Portiman, Alganya, PORTUGAL

SPAIN

COSTA DEL SOL Vest selec P/H villas à apris £602-£500k, opt. g'esed incomes 01202 311315 ANDALUCIA - RONDA as srudi guestiouse: 5 double, 1 single bedroom, 40 wish own basinoom. Living-room, diving-room, kicchen, large sassile, ear. raishod. Swinstang pool. Sepanla views. 20,000 m2 land. 85,000,000 pesettas

Phone/fax for leadet: 0034-5-211 4227.

Right now at Barratt timeshare - we are offering our best ever prices on write of the few remaining English Courtyard have a limited number of luxury holiday ownership weeks retirement cottages & apartments available at:at many resorts. At our Ilminster, Somerset - £119,000 exclusive Villacana resort South Petherton, Somerset - £115,000 on Spain's fabulous Costa del Sol – you can save up to a massive 50% - in even more. Remember, the discounted price

Stanford-in-the-Vale, Oxfordshire - £162,000 Freephone 0800 220 858 quoting ref NAB 8 Holland Street
contaction W8 447 English Courtyard Keenwaton W8 447 FRANCE

FRENCH PROPERTY EXHIBITION 6TH, 7TH, 8TH SEPTEMBER 1996
FILL II OF AN AUTO TO PARKET, 1990 AN TO SOO PARKET, 1990 AN TO SOO PARKET, 1990 AN TO SOO PARKET, 1990 AND THE EXHIBITION CENTRE, NOVOTEL, 1990 AND THE PARMETERSMITH, LONDON WE

...AT HALF PRICE OR LESS RCI RED BAND

SUMMER SIZZLER OFFERS! NOW SAVE STUDIO - SLEEPS 2 £4,250 £1,550 £2,700 RETYL BATH - SLEEPS 4 17.794 2 BED/1 BATH - SLEEPS 6 £7,250 £3,250 £4,000 2 RELYZ RATH - SLEEPS 6 48,499 3 BELYZ BATH - SLEEPS 8 45,499 14,249 £4.250 £4,249 RCI WHITE BAND WAS NOW SAVE RED/I BATH - SLEEPS 6 14.250 12.250 £2.000 RED/2 BATH - SLEEPS 8 15,499 $2,950 52,549 FOR MANY MORE GREAT SAVINGS CALL NOW 01590 673582

र केला मुक्ति का करिएको सरक्षी अभी स्थानकारक या स्थान विकास विकासी प्रतिस्थान क्रिक्स है। (उस स्वास CALL NOW TO RESERVE YOUR PLACE IN THE SUN - OR SIMPLY TO REQUEST A COPY OF OUR LATEST SPANSSH VIDEO. Purchase from £2950 60 MONTHLY CALMENTS . 159.76 TOTAL ASSIST PAYABLE , £3881

Climery (Pet [93] APR OPLY 9% BARRATT WHITTEN DUDINDENS MADABLE ON REQUEST FROM CONTRAL SALES, BARBATT MICHARICAL RESORTS, ELMERS COURT, LYANGTON, HABESINGS, SOAT 528 International RESORTS A Member of Barrate Developments PLC-Britain's Pressure House Builders IT'S ANOTHER LIFE ALTOGETHER! MEDIA, SALES & MARKETING

Make £20,000 ... as a Travel Writer This free Newsletter and orospectus shows you escate how to become a lance Travel Writer.

0800 371 500

MANAGEMENT TRAINEE in private limited company expanding is Central London. Individuals aged 23-35 seeking apportunities in financial markets. Contact: LEWIS SMITH

FREELANCE

JOURNALIST Study from home and make writing a new career or a omfitable second income. 25 week Diploma Course in Free 0800 371 500 MORRIS
COLLEGE OF JOURNALISM

FINANCIAL PRODUCT SALES PEOPLE indirects securpted but spent leaves po openiones: an ambas,

ALL BOX NUMBER REPLIES SHOULD BE ADDRESSED

TO:

Pax C V. to: Mr Roberts on fit#1 936 5864 or call for an interview on fit#1 938 4485

BOX No:-

The Times Newspapers PO BOX 3553. Virginia Street, London E1 9GA

ROYDS RAPHAEL NEW BUSINESS c230k ++ ACCOUNT MANAGER £25k ries w Basiliusso Casur ++ ACCOUNT MANAGER 255k interest mail & catalogue design Creative services agency with a possitiants. High profile retail rapidly expanding client base aceds itents. Must have established experienced Account managers act mail production techniques. Design communications express. PRODUCTION e220k MARKETING EXEC e220k moduction co-ordinator for Photographic/Image & digital and ridentity designers. A good storage managers used a graduate ordining knowledge of print with marketing exp & photographic butchion less, ideally in the design / technical knowledge or print with marketing exp & photographic lessity. Mar gkills. 50 + wpm typ their range of services.

0171 287 2050

sports and arts

to join the IMG Hospitality team. All applicants should to join the IMG Hospitality team. All applicants should have proven track record in sales, including experience of cold-calling. Confidence and communication skills to develop and sustain a wide range of client contacts are essential and will be complemented by a high level of organisational shifty, and capacity to remain calm under pressure. Good business sense and initiative in creating new and bespoke events will be important for the future development of the role. Preferred candidates will be 20-30 years old. Previous experience of corporate authorizing useful but not essential. entertaining useful but not essential

Caroline Ward, Personnel Manager, IMG, 5th Ploor, Axis Centre, Hogarth Business Park, Burlington Lane, London W4 2TH.

Could you commission a strong piece on 'are Britain's beaches safe', or an incisive feature on 'the latest changes to the national curriculum'? Is your contacts book packed? Could you write a similar piece

We are working on a new launch aimed at busy parents and their children and we are looking for an mportant addition to our small team. You'll need bags of enthusiasm, tons of ideas and be able to work well under pressure.

There is also a possibility of flexible hours to suit the right person.

Group Ltd., Times House, Station Approach, Ruislip HA4 8NB Tel: 01895 677677 Ext. 265.

Recruitment Consultant Mayfair, W1

Picase call Jane Street on 0171 493 4006 or fax her on 0171 629 4165.

Senior Copy Editors

with excellent editorial skills and experience in editing academic work required for

> Fax CV with covering letter to: Truestar Ltd.

J.B. BODA (UK) require

Hospitality Sales Executive

Write with full CV stating current salary/package to:

COMMISSIONING EDITOR/WRITER

Please reply enclosing CV and copies of published/written work to: Diane Loizou, Personnel Manager, drng Exhibition

A Division of Daily Mail & General Trust

International Domestic Agency (Butlers, Housekeepers, Cooks/Chefs, Gardeners, Chanffours and Nanwies) requires an exceptional person to run their own department. Previous experience is essential as is the ability to communicate effectively at all levels, a quick mind, sense of humore, accordance and their internations that the property of the contract and their contract that the contract of humour, good adr r, good administration, creative thought, plus city for hard work with the ability and desire to didates must be educated to at least 'A' level standard. reside in London, be 28 yrs + and seek long-term Popular Educational and Scientific Magazines.

0171 561 0057

SALES & MARKETING MANAGER in LONDON for Aviation/Marine/Engineering business done by the Company in Nepal and Bhotan. Must have 7 years experience in these types of insurances. Also full knowledge of computer operating systems such as SCO UNIX. NOVELL and Windows Environment, Microsoft Office and INFORMIX Relational Database environment very essential. The successful candidate will have complete fluency in Nepalase and Bhutanese.

Educational Qualification: A Level. Diploma in Business, Marketing preferred though not a pre-requisite. SALARY: - ATTRACTIVE PACKAGE.

Please apply within 4 weeks of first publication with CV. IB BODA AND CO. (UK) LIMITED 18 LONDON STREET. LONDON EC3R 7JP.

THE TIMES

REPORTER The Times Higher Educational Supplement has a vacancy for a general reporter based in London,

The position calls for a thorough understanding of higher and further education issues. Previous journalistic experience is essential. Knowledge of science, technology and/or medicine would be an

The appointment is full-time, commencing in November 1996 and offers a competitive salary. Applications accompanied by a CV, should be sent

The Editor, The Times Higher Education Supplement, Admiral House, 66-68 East Smithfield, London, E1 9XY. By September 6th 1996.

Can You Afford Not To Join Us? Direct Sales Closers OTE £25 - £50k

As one of our consultants you will be aged between 30 and 60 and can expect to: Benefit from substantial earnings/bonus opportunities Be paid weekly
 Be associated with a 23 year old multi-million pound

 Be provided with comprehensive on-going training and Be provided water assignment apport as professional environment as professional environment assignments. Have a guaranter of continuous assignments are a continuous assignments.

We want professionals to work with professionals, so if you think you fit the bin call Carrie Kellett on Q1263 783234 (We are an equal opportunities organisation.)

Mans program hine, high nont amountaries. THE COURTS . od dod! dicap which network, in the budgettery compa You Dechie des gente passe T I was different to moved by the this office last lineumn heard that + ehad got three \!ethe land, most of the delight or suffered the sorrors ponte ot collegate to the results were puried There was no jes

ii et

$)c. L.

DD9. - -

1

1 - - :

u 🔐 -

M2',:--

ŧщ.

160

(d) [...

200p.

digning:

(final) dance i

THE WALL

shaker ...;

Mappoint in n inggaring

M31 1.17 →

inds.

But Sign

Richards

Street however i d. onstantly publications between ain's failures Morse More in the triumphs of those Andenis in 1-2217 Wales their way their parents. It was the confirmation that I t prefers had move. I the new is grand prefer to maich distance heavy bet the Basic Milleutt 42. ain's scepticism; in France and Japan Venance the form pull societ continues amonimate of Leating Pening in The Line English West by to celebrate viscor on easterness vicinity and achievement of the living achievement of th

Hold the front page for a scoop on the girl next door

f famous faces sell maga-zines why does Gardeners World (circulation 267,165) sell more copies than Vanity Fair (82,137)? This not unreasonable question confronted readers when they opened Ben Arogundade's new magazine Extract last Delving further they found two pages blank, except for the words: "Close your eyes right here and imagine an eightpage fashion spread featuring slammin' celebrity supermodels wearing wildly expensive clothes... NOT in this magazine, baby!

Extract, you see, does not do celebrities. In a bold move designed to set it apart from the Hello!s of this world. Arogundade has banned the mmous from getting so much as a chiselled cheekhone in his magazine. No photographs of the Princess of Wales, no interviews with Paul and Sheryl Gascoigne, just 100 pages devoted to the editor's specialist subject, real people. Arogundade believes the public is now suffering from star fatigue after years of being fed a diet of recycled pictures and interviews from people who, he says, have ceased to be interesting. The public, he says, needs an

To judge by the sales of his first issue, which featured an unknown house decorator from El Salvador as its cover star, he may well have a point. Of an original print run of 50,000 copies. Extract has virtualy sold out. More than 43,000 people were willing to fork out £2.50 to read about neel-clampers, prostitutes, housewives, drugs dealers and

The second issue, due out in two weeks' time, promises

Carol Midgley reports on a new publishing success story as jaded readers finally succumb to star fatigue

CK One and his jeanswear.

Non-famous people were photographed alongside Kate

Moss. When his "Lolita" jeans

ads were accused of being too close to child pornography for comfort. Klein responded by saying: "The whole point of this campaign is that regular people have a glamour inside them which is tied to their independence. And you can find it anywhere, not just at the modelling agency or movie

Arogundade, 31, says: "Editors and television producers think that the public is obsessed with Hollywood movie stars, but it obviously isn't true. Twelve million people tune in to watch Blind Date, a programme whose stars are ordinary people. More and more fashion designers are using non-famous models.

Reader's Digest has never had

Madonna on its front cover,

but it is still the most popular studio."

real-life killers, a day-in-thelife of a Manchester launderette. The concept is not new, but what Arogundade claims makes Extract different is that it is exclusively about ordinary people and a celebration of their lives.

The new issue (right) fea-tures the face of Christiana Deutsch, a 22-year-old student from Wiesbaden, Germany. At a glance she appears to be a classic Hollywood starlet with pouting lips and a Marilyn Monroe hairstyle. Closer inspection reveals that her face is not, in fact, famous at all, illustrating, says Arogundade, that all of us have charisma which stems from our individual personalities.

lt was Calvin Klein who recently redoubled the interest in the "real revolution" -using ordinariness and imperfection as a marketing tool with his advertising campaigns for the unisex perfume

this must mean something? "Celebrities cannot guarantee high sales or good ratings. Gaby Roslin had a lot of A-list, blue-chip names on her Channel 4 chat show and it still didn't grab people. One of the problems is that there are too few celebrities to go round. When a big star visits Britain or has a new record coming out they are couried by every magazine so their face ends up on two or three covers. *Once a celebrity has given

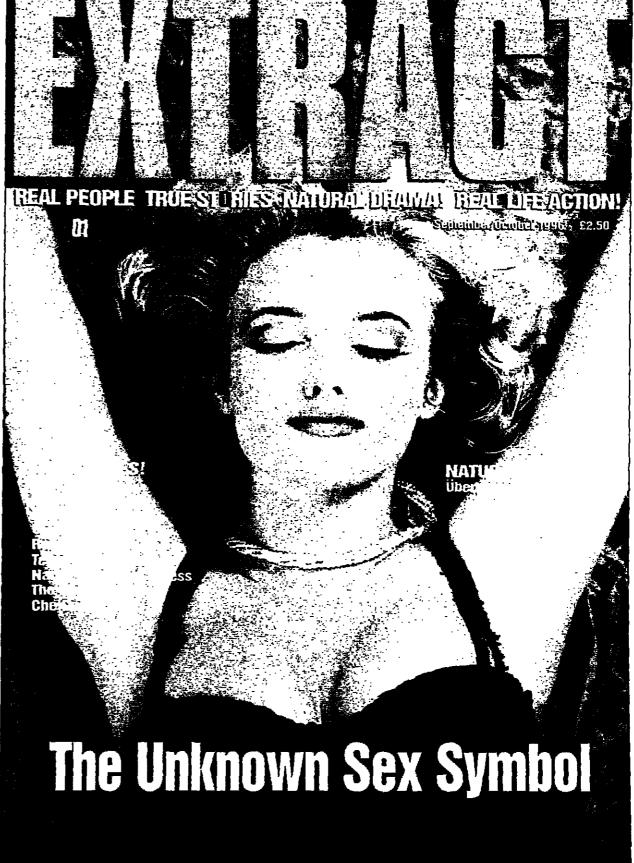

I(X) interviews it is unlikely they will be able to tell you anything new ever again. Robert de Niro, George Michael and Prince never give interviews because they have realised there is little left to say of any great significance."

Arogundade, a bachelor born in London to Nigerian parents, is a former architect vho, after being made redundant, began his interest in magazines. He noticed how much material was duplicated from one title to the next and set about investigating a radically different option.

He now produces Extract with the help of contributors and a tiny staff from a small office in Fulham, west London.

The magazine is published by a new com-Enterprises, which is funded by the American-based publishing software develop-ers, The Media Services

"It is not as if people will get our magazine, and never read about famous people again." Arogundade says. "We simply believe that there is so much fascinating stuff to be written about the experiences of people who have never given an interview or been chased down the street by the et's not descend into personal abuse." ▲Jeremy Paxman implored one of the participants in You Decide, the BBC's new public participation current affairs programme last week. It was a request that many of his interviewees on Newsnight might well have wanted to put

Extract's cover girl may look like a film star: in fact, she is Christiana Deutsch, a 22-year-old German student

When a definition of hell is being 'kebabed' in public

From my experience as a Tory press officer booking Cabinet ministers on interview programmes, most politimans would describe the prospect of being berated by a combination of Paxman and a studio audience as the very definition of interview hell.

But giving the public the chance to interrogate politicians and other movers and shakers without the medium of a professional interviewer is an increasingly popular format for news and current affairs programmes. It combines high ideals of democratic accountability with pragmatic considerations about cost - studio audiences are cheap, which is always a strong selling point to the networks in these days of tight budgetary controls. You Decide is the latest of this genre. Paxman has estab-

Simon Brooke reveals that the worst fear of government politicians is being interrogated on radio or television by aggressive interviewers lished a niche for himself as a tenacious and irreverent interviewer, but at least politicians believe that he plays by certain rules and his style has the merit of familiarity.

hand are, to a large extent, an unknown quantity. For a press officer whose party is in government, studio audiences present particular difficulties. Government ministers know that they will be given particularly rough treatment: a small proportion of the audience may not agree with something that the Labour Party or the Liberal Democrats stand for. but a large number will hate most of what the Government is doing. When members of a studio audience or a phone-in publicly berate a wriggling politician it is known as being kebabed".

and live studio audiences implication that there is something magical about being a member of the public is frankly daft," says John Humphrys. a presenter on Radio 4's Today programme. "We are all mem-The public on the other bers of the public as well as being professional interviewers: we all have kids, we pay taxes, we are worried about crime and we vote." He is sceptical about what can be achieved by allowing viewers and listeners to interrogate politicians directly. The public have been interviewing politicians in one form or another for 25 years or so. I can only think of three or four examples of where they have come up with something. so I don't think that there is an overwhelming argument in favour of it."

Naturally, the producers of nublic participation program-But many interviewers mes have other ideas. "Other believe this is a nonsense. "The than at election times politicians rarely get to meet large numbers of ordinary people in a formal setting," says Nick Utechin, former producer of Radio 4's Any Questions? "We get people from all walks of life raising issues which seem important to them and that is very unusual. Even in an Oxford Union debate the audience is all of a certain type, whereas we might get 400 ordinary people who have come together in a hall in Houndsworth, for example."

Jeremy Paxman: tenacious

Today: Most politicians prefer being interviewed on breakfast radio because they can use a radio car rather than travel to a studio. The interview slot just after the eight o'clock news is regarded as the kudos spot.

Question Time: Some politicians enjoy the opportunity to debate with the public directly but many, especially Tories, hate it. Opposition politicians find the programme much easier than vision's Question Time.

er than try to meet them.

ministers since they can fuel an important programme for rounding off the day's the audience's concerns rathevents. A dust-up with

There is also the belief that the only viewers are political

Jeremy Paxman is generally regarded as good fun rather than a terrifying ordeal. Any Questions? Some politidans take the view that because it is a radio programme Any Questions? On the Record: Politicians don't like doing Sunday programmes — when else do provides a more civilised. thoughtful debate than telethey see their families?

Newsnight: It is viewed as journalists listening out for a WHAT THEY LOVE AND HATE Monday front-page story.

Frost: Frost's loose, relaxed style of questioning gives politicians the feeling that they can get their message across. "It's more inquisitorial than accusatorial," according to one former minister.

Dimbleby: Politicians have discovered that Jonathan chairman and that his audience is well-behaved.

"I enjoy being interviewed by both professionals and the public, but then I am never hiding my views," says Ken Livingstone, MP.

The lorceful interrogation of Margaret Thatcher by Diana Gould, a housewife, about the sinking of the Belgrano in the 1983 general election cam-paign, is cited as an example of how the public can go further than a professional would.

John Humphrys is seen by some politicians as too aggres-- last year Jonathan Aitken, then Chief Secretary to the Treasury, accused him of interrupting the Chancellor 32 times in one five-minute interview on Today. He went on to argue that Humphrys's style of interviewing "had poisoned the well of democratic debate".

Humphrys points to the reaction from Today listeners in defence of his interviewing techniques. "I had the biggest postbag I'd ever had - about 1,200 letters and faxes. Ninetysix per cent said keep at it and 4 per cent agreed with Aitken.

I am eternally grateful to Aitken because you can never be absolutely certain that you're getting it right, but that reaction was immensely encouraging."

was rising in some elements of A level.

The Guardian uncovered

a study going back to 1910 which judged that A-level maths had become harder since 1951. The Sunday Times found a school where the sixth form had increased from eight to 120 in seven years and A-level results had improved by 95 per cent in the past three years.

THE Subscriptions

The Times will match any subscription offer you receive from other daily national newspapers.

For further details please call us FREE on the following number:

FREEPHONE 0800 120 130

Mon to Fri 9am to 6pm, Sat 9am to 3pm

Offer available in the UK only

t was difficult not to be moved by the whoop of joy that rang through this office last Thursday as the editor who subs this column heard that her daughter had got three A levels. Across the land, most of us enjoyed the delight or vicariously suffered the sorrow of neighbours or colleagues as A-level results were posted. There was no joy in Fleet Street, however, Editors who constantly publish why-oh-why articles bemoaning Britain's failures spat on a success story, insulting the triumphs of thousands of students in England and Wales, their teachers and their parents. It was powerful confirmation that Fleet Street prefers bad news - and that if the news is good editors prefer to snatch defeat from victory. Yet the same trend passes without any of Britain's scepticism in Germany. France and Japan.

Only yesterday Terry Venables, the former Eng land soccer coach who led England so gloriously to the semi-finals of Euro 96, was lamenting in The Times that the English were too reluctant to celebrate victory and too eager to downgrade our own achievements. I have news for Tel It's the same for schools. As record results were posted yet again last week, most editors, yet again led by the Conservative MP Sir Rhodes Boyson - who last taught in a school more than 20 years saying that if so many more students were passing, standards must be going down. "Suspicious", said The Daily Telegraph: "A cruel betrayal", said the Daily Express. "A bogus education", said The Sunday Times.

Fleet Street gets an A for moaning but E for analysis

One of the qualities of a good journalist is curiosity. the ability repeatedly to ask the question "Why?" in the search for at least some sort of partial truth. Yet so many of the A-level newspaper reports were lazy and uncurious. Submitted as A-level papers, they would have been lucky to get a D or an E. Few reporters bothered to do even few simple sums.

Among all 18-year-olds in England and Wales, about 40 per cent - 240,000 study for A levels. One in five fails. So about 32 per cent of all 18-year-olds - say about 190,000 -- succeed in passing at least one subject. Only 16 per cent of that cohort achieve an A grade — a maximum of about 30,000. given that many candidates get two or three As. That puts a spin on the A-level results that has yet to appear in any newspaper and suggests a conclusion at odds with the arguments in so many thundering leading articles.

The question becomes not whether we are doing too well but whether we are doing well enough if only 30,000 IS-year-olds a year obtain the highest A-level grade. It is surely also good news that more 18-year-olds matter what the subject; at least the general level of attainment in the British population is rising.

(As they do so, it is worth noting one small item of British social history which occurred this week - the appearance for the first time in a tabloid daily of a 36-page supplement listing university vacancies and confirming the arrival of mass higher education. All credit to the Daily Mirror, which repackaged the list offered in its sister paper, The Independent.) It is a pity that more editors of national newspapers do not have children in sixth forms. If they did they would understand how hard this they are taught and just how bright the best of them are. Unlike my generation, they study science until the age of 16, most speak two foreign languages and they do nine or ten GCSEs and up to four few newspapers did try to put the annual sort of proper context. A study in The Daily Telegraph showed that the standard of questions had certainly not changed (although it was less certain about standards of marking). The Observer had the bright idea of asking the head boy of Sir Rhodes's old school, who got four A grades, to sit his 1943 Higher School Certificate. It showed that he would have been marked down in 1943 for being too clever. A letter to The Times from the Headmasters' and Headmistressguardian of academic standards, argued that quality

controversy in some Conference, a fierce

The view I shared was put in The Guardian by Tony Higgins, the chief executive of the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service. The critics could not have it both ways, he argued. The improvement this year was met by a cacophony of complaints. Yet if the results had been worse than in previous years, the question would have been what was wrong with our schools. Editors might also look up their back copies of The Baokseller or Prospect, both of which have published a recent lecture by Professor George Steiner. He pointed out that entrance exams in mathematics and physics for the first year university students were what would have been post-doctoral research less than 15 years ago. And we dare to say that standards

NEWS

Advertising guru is made a Tory peer

Maurice Saatchi, the advertising guru behind the controversial "demon" poster of Tony Blair, becomes one of 14 new life peers to be announced today. The honour is a reward for over 17 years' service to the Conservative Party.

Mr Saatchi, 50, is joined by Peter Gummer, the chairman of Shandwick plc and chairman-designate of the Royal Opera House, who has also been a key public relations adviser to the ..Pages 1, 2 Tories for several years ...

DNA tests clear boys on school trip

■ DNA tests have ruled out five British teenage boys in the continuing investigation into the rape and murder of schoolgirl Caroline Dickinson in Brittany, French police said. The boys. who were on the school trip with the murdered girl, gave blood and saliva samples with their parents' permission Page 1

Tomb worth seeing

Bank holiday sightseers with a taste for the sepulchral will have an opportunity to see inside the grandest of all English royal

Russian turmoil

Russia's leadership was plunged into chaos after Aleksandr Lebed charged Kremlin hardliners with forging President Yeltsin's signature on a decree ordering the recapture of Grozny Pages 1, 9

Head in the clouds

John Taylor, whose attempt to become the first black Tory MP sparked an ugly race row, said his elevation to the Lords was like a "rainbow"...Page 2

'Caring' WPC at a loss A special constable who used her warrant card to help a penniless neighbour to obtain benefit has been told to resign from the Metropolitan Police.... ...Page 3

Hold your breath

Britain's air will be fit to breathe by 2005, according to the Environment Secretary who unveils Europe's first national air quality strategy today Page 4

21-carat revenge

A diamond sorter, wrongly accused of theft, got his revenge when his wife stood outside De Beers' HQ with a poster of him in a graduation gown emblazoned with the words "Here's justice,

Victory for Nimbys

Residents in Aldridge, a quiet West Midlands suburb, won their battle against the expansion of a bail hostel Page 6

Row over superbean Food manufacturers and retailers are divided over a genetically modified form of the soya "super-bean" about to hit supermarket

...Page 8 FBI's power grab

The battle for control of the US intelligence community entered an endgame with FBI plans to almost double its overseas presence and apparently leave CIA agents out in the cold...... Page 9

Dole's lieutenant

Colin Powell unexpectedly joined Bob Dole on the campaign trail for the first time amid renewed speculation that he would be Secretary of State in a Dole adminis-

Child-sex link

Belgian police are investigating the possibility of an East-West link in the European child-sex trade after charging a fourth paedophile suspect...........Page 10

Poison arsenal

The arrest of two German businessmen suspected of smuggling equipment to Libya for making poison gas has confirmed fears of Western intelligence that Colonel Gaddafi is building up a chemi-....Page 5 cal arsenal...

For better, for worse, at a D-I-Y store

"You can do it if you B&Q it," says the jingle, and the possibilities will soon extend to instore marriage if Britain's largest D-I-Y retailer gets its way. B&Q has applied for its new superstore in Cambridge to be registered as a venue for civil marriages. Store manager Emma Carrigan said: "It is being done very tastefully".

Tony Heffernam puts the final touches to the stage for tonight's inaugural production at the reconstructed Globe Theatre. Report, page I

ARTS

Edinburgh nights: At the Edinburgh Festival the Martha Graham Dance Company celebrated

the early work of its pioneering

Classic Beckett: An exquisite Dublin Gate Theatre production of Waiting For Godot has come to the Kilkenny Festival fresh from its

New York triumphPage 34

Much prized: American playwright

Wendy Wasserstein brings The

Heidi Chronicles to London - the play which won her a Tony Award

TOMORROW

IN THE TIMES

Arnold Scwharzenegger

Geoff Brown reviews

blockbuster Eraser

John Habgood on the millennium, Peter and the Pulitzer.

■ FILMS

■ BOOKS

ACKIOYU UII

T.E. Lawrence

in the summer

BUSINESS

Halifax Halifax Building Society has spent nearly £300 million in two years on special mortgage incentives such as discounted home loans and cash-backs to attract ...Page 23 borrowers ..

Hotels: Thistle Hotels plans a flotation next month, valuing the company at between £1 billion and £1.5 ..Page 23

Economy: Fresh economic data showing further strong growth in consumer credit and a continued demand for home loans brought cheer to the CityPage 23

Markets: The FT-SE 100 index rose 19.7 points to close at 3883.4. Sterling's trade-weighted index rose to 84.8 after a rise from $1.5453 to $1.5471 and from DM2.2996 to DM2.3043...

Cricket: Ed Giddins, one of the English game's brightest young fast bowlers, was banned until April 1988 after being found guilty of using excaine... ... Page 44

SPORT

Football: Alan Shearer will make his home debut for Newcastle United against Wimbledon in a probable three-man attack alongside Faustino Asprilla and Les Ferdinand.

Motor racing: Friday practice is to be abolished and an extra grand prix added in a package of changes to the Formula One programme from next season Page 44 Racing: Halling, winner of consecutive victories in the Eclipse Stakes. broke the record for the Juddmonte International Stakes on the opening day at Ebor ..

FEATURES

New on screen: The Drambuie Edinburgh Film Festival showcases a great collection of independent productions, including the British-made Gallivant and an Irish tale, Trojan Eddie Page 33

Church disunity: Mary Riddell interviews Alice Thomas Ellis, the orthodox Roman Catholic whose attack on the late Derek Worlock had the liberal Catholics up in Page 13

STYLE

Club culture: If you are not in the know, the culture of today's club scene can be as elitist as going to Glyndebourne...

Kebabed: Politicians' worst fear is radio interviewers Page 21 Star fatigue: A new magazine success story that relies on images of the girl next door. . Page 21

Minimal comforts: The image of Minimalist architecture is cold and unyielding but, says Rachel Kelly, there are benefits.

Who's next: Three of our greatest monarchs have been queens, so why fear a change in the rules of royal succession, asks Rachel Campbell-JohnstonPage 13

. Page 12

MEDIA

being grilled by tough TV and

HOMES THE PAPERS

The greatest value he [Perot] could bring to this year's election would be to continue to harp on the deficit and entitlements, if for no other reason than to egg on Dole and Clinton to respond

D)

— Los Angeles Times

ADON TOPAL

MODERATE

TY LISTINGS .

preview: Some marriages seem doomed from the start. Inside Story: Betraval (BBC1, 10pm) Review: Matthew Bond on a gem of a film about two girl guides......Page 43

OPINION

Diesel exhaustion

The Government may hope that new technology can make diesel vehicles safer. But the evidence of the past is that every new technoof traffic growth.....

Germany's blind eye

No chances should be taken with a regime as unstable and malign as that of Colonel Gaddafi Page 15

Inside the tomb

Victoria and Albert's mausoleum is a unique symbol of the higher Victorian values, well worth the

COLUMNS

JOHN GRIGG

How does the political scene today: compare with 1906? Now as then, a Conservative Government, after a long period in office, is faced with the likelihood of overwhelming defeat. Now as then, the Tories seem divided and unable to control events, while the main opposition party appears to have regained itsPage 14 confidence

ALAN COREN

Cometh the hour, cometh the man. It must, of course, be the right man at the right hour: had it been, say, the infant Isaac Newton watching his mother's kettle-lid rattling up and down, there is scant chance that his observation would have led to the 8.14 from Orpington, nor may we be any more confident that had a Virginian potato fallen on Walter Raleigh's head, the world would have ended up with gravity rather than chips...

CONTRAPIES

Brigadier Roy Smith-Hill, Royal Marine; Colin Hampton, cellist; Alfred Doulton, former headmaster of Highgate School; Jim Nichoison, former art director of the National Trust for .Page 17

A-level results; university places; British inventions: European democracy; the cattle cull; Bratby's portraits: Fabians and the monarchy...

🂢 Sunny

Cloudy

📤 Drizzle

Rain

Sunny showers

Sunny showers Sleet and Hail 💂

Snow

ø₹

Lightning .

Overcast

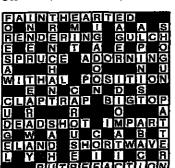

THE TIMES CROSSWORD NO 20.252

ACROSS 1 Crooked

- receiver redistributed
- 6 Musician taking time to form
- 9 Port tastes extremely third-rate (7). 10 Meeting with the Queen about
- marriage (7). 11 Little girl's at a dance (5).
- 12 Statesman, a combination of Bright and Pitt, say? (9). 13 Staff shut up in a factory (8).
- 15 Game bird losing its way in the desert (4).
- 19 Question possible cause of infla-
- 20 Where you'll see Cockney strip off
- 23 Weather that's unusual in middle
- of gale (9). 24 Subsequently remove lead from part of roof (5).

Solution to Puzzle No 20,251

26 Make long car journey abroad (4.3)27 Anne's getting drunk on gin (7).

28 Crew employed aboard freighter 29 Spanish literary hack's name senorita recollected (9).

DOWN I The impression a letter might convey (4.5). 2 Sales patter - in European language originally (5). 3 Let's fence (8). Developing work unit in Eastern China (8).

Sailors making someone fierce (6). 6 Rather rude, like a joke I get embarrassed about? (6).

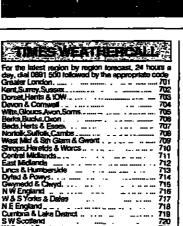

7 High-flier on the French embassy staff (9). 8 Scotswoman goes to church for this reason (5).

14 Lame man's right to be treated (9). 16 Mediate to bury the issue, reportedly (9). 17 My advantage point! (8).

18 He hits animal repeatedly with it 21 Helper briefly welcoming soldiers to class (6).

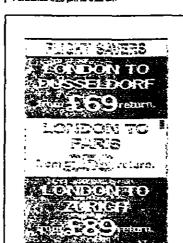

22 He won't eat more quickly (6). 23 Refuse to be profligate (5). 25 Run on track to prepare for races (5).

Times Two Crossword. page 44 The answer to 21 down in crosses puzzle number 20,250 should have read Egeria.

AA ROADWATCH For the latest AA traffic readworks information hours a day, dial 0336 401 followed by

HOURS OF DARKNESS Moon sets 11.15 pm First quarter to London 8 10 pm to 5.58 am Bristol 8.20 pm to 6.07 am Edinburgh 8.34 pm to 5.58 am

Phone Air UK on 0345 666777 or contact accepted. Subject to availability, amport tex

and different travel periods. Restrictions apply.

Airtk

your travel agent. All major credit contis

FORECAST General: England and Wales will be cloudy at first with outbreaks of rain. The showers will increasingly become con-fined to western and northern parts, where there is still the slight risk of of thunder. Winds light, mainly southwest-erly, and it will feel cooler and fresher. Scotland and Northern Ireland will start wet, but clearer, showery weather will edge gradually from the south. Temperatures will be about normal in a moderate breeze.

☐ London, SE, E England, E Anglia, E Midlands: Showers, largely dying out later. Wind moderate mainly southwesterly. Cooler, Max 23C (73F). ☐ Central S. Cent N, NW, SW England, W Midlands, Channel Isles, Wales: Showers, perhaps thundery at first. Wind moderate mainly southwesterly. Max 19C to 21C (66F to Lake District, lete of Man, NE England, Borders, SW Scotland, Glasgow, N Ireland: Outbreaks of rain.

possibly thundery at first, becoming clearer later. Wind light and variable. ☐ Edinburgh & Dundee, Aberdeen, Central Highlands, Moray Firth, NE, NW Scotland, Argyll: Thundery rain, slow to clear. Wind moderate to tresh, mainly northeasterly. Max 17C (63F).

Orkney, Shetland: Outbreaks of rain, possibly thundery. Wind moderate to tresh northeasterly. Max 15C (59F).

☐ Cutlock: Becoming mainly dry for a time with further rain later AROUND BRITAIN YESTERDAY

0 05 0 40 0 04 0 04 0 14 0 08 0 01 0 02 0 04 0 01 0 03 scarboro' Hurstanti. Cromer Lowestofi Clacton Southend Margate Folkestoni Hastings Eastbourn 77770707270707266868 25 04 10 0 13 0.02 0.17 0.40 0.03

ABROAD Dublin Dubrown Faro Florence Franklur Funchel Geneva Gibratian Helsinki Hong K Innstrek Invernes Istanbul Jaddah Alacticha Alagiera Alagiera Alagiera Alagiera Almstidm Athens Bahran Bangkok Berbedos Burcelon Beirut Beigrade Bermuda Blenntz Bendera Bernada Blenntz Cape Tin Chichurd Chicago Cologne Configuration Configu

ANTE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY

Total number of lives saved so far this year: Total number of lifeboat launches so far this year: Cost to RNLI per day: Cost to taxpayer:

To make a donation, telephone:

2,210 £173,000 0800 543210

I SHIM THI Lifeboats

Howard

·й. --

Marie

Commercial Bur it KTYIJia. right.

Art by Marco . ines. 00000-1-1

 $Mr \notin \S_{\mathbb{R}^2}$ 'y blac'. add Arr - the Court of $V_{L_2, L_2^{-1}}$ blade object to श्या हिस्स्टूट ine Taxa rempoli_{1.} Yearray . ume Vi.

Va_{ik},

on the plants. Temperature (Celsius) gou ou g Wind speed (mph) & direction

advinus jud 2. ional lam

. We RADIC WEATHER